LONDON, Sunday (AP) — The Sunday Times reported that Red Chinese troops had been observed crossing into North Viet Nam and that big concentrations of Chinese forces are massing near the North Viet Nam-China border.

More than 200,000 Chinese troops were reported concentrated along the direct rail line to North Viet Nam.

The reports were confirmed by a front-page story compiled from information filed by two of the paper's correspondents — Richard Hughes in Hong Kong and an unnamed special correspondent in Saigon.

The specter of another Korea-style struggle with Communist China suddenly appeared over Southeast Asia Saturday as reports began to come in that units of the Chinese People's Liberation Army had begun moving into the satellite state of North Viet Nam, the article said.

The story reported only two battalions of troops had been sighted actually moving into North Viet Nam. But it added:

“Reports (from Hong Kong) of U.S. air reconnaissance over South China pay particular attention to Nanning on the line to Hanoi, capital of North Viet Nam. Military rolling stock including freight trucks and troops’ carriages are said to be concentrated at Nanning in considerable numbers.”

The article said that since the Tonkin Gulf incident six months ago Nanning has become the headquarters for a force of some 200,000 troops.

The two battalions entering North Viet Nam were said to have been seen on the highway running parallel with the Nanning-Hanoi railroad.

“Observers in Saigon, however, believe that forces in far greater strength are likely to be deployed if the Peking regime has decided to take the fatal plunge in Viet Nam,” the article said.

The story continued: “These observers concede that the current outlook is strangely reminiscent of the crucial turn of events in the Korean War in October 1950, when Chinese forces crossed the 38th Parallel and went into action against the Americans, but they seriously doubt whether China is now prepared to risk a major war involving the Americans.”

Explorer of Cave Trapped, in Coma

DOLGEVILLE, N.Y. (UPI) — A young cave explorer was trapped Saturday night in frigid, waist-deep water at the bottom of a 1,000-foot shaft in a little-explored cavern. He was reported unconscious and “barely breathing.”

Rescue officials said there was little hope of a quick rescue.

“We’ll be working here all through tomorrow,” one rescue official said. Two veteran cave explorers from Gloversville, N.Y., were called to the scene to help free the youth.

A GIRL companion of the man also was trapped for a time but rescuers pulled her free and she was taken to a hospital for treatment of exposure. She was not believed to be seriously injured.

The man was identified as James Mitchell, about 21, of Lynn, Mass. Mitchell, the girl, Heddie Miller, about 19, of Boston, and Charles Bennett, about 23, of Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y., entered the cave Saturday afternoon.

They entered a little-explored passage called “Schroeder’s Cave.”

Mitchell apparently fell into the shaft and then the Miller girl became trapped.

BENNETT, a Harvard graduate student and experienced “spelunker,” ran to the home of Russell Gressler, owner of the farm on which the cave is located, to seek help. The farm is about 35 miles east of Utica, N.Y.

Rescuers who could squeeze near Mitchell said he was “barely breathing, still unconscious.”

Rescue workers operated in shifts, each man taking a turn in a narrow shaft where Mitchell was trapped.

Herkimer County Sheriff Richard Folts said the man’s midsection was wrapped in rope, holding him above water.

SACRAMENTO BUREAU

SACRAMENTO — A legislative committee Saturday called for abolishing California’s political spoils system in the appointment of state inheritance-tax appraisers, terming it “a system that invited abuse.”

Proposed was enactment of a self-assessment procedure similar to the federal inheritance-tax system, passing on an estimated $3 million in savings to estate beneficiaries.

POLITICAL appointees now take a bite out of inheritances that otherwise would go to widows, orphans, etc.

Some 150 appraisers—the blue-bloods of California politics—now serve as the political appointees of the state controller, Harold Brown, brother of the governor, was an appraiser until he was appointed a judge last year.

Thirteen of the appraisers grossed more than $50,000 each in 1963 for their part-time jobs, the report showed. Only eight were in the over-$50,000 class in 1962.

THE REPORT noted that the appraisers openly kick back campaign contributions to the politician who appointed them. “It is neither the committee’s duty nor desire to pass judgment on such political activity,” said the committee.

The report, signed by all but two members of the 20-man Assembly Ways and Means Committee, gave the strongest prod yet to the Brown administration for spoils-system reforms.

Revitalizing Downtown L.B. to Take Concerted Effort

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON (Last in a Series)

Which way, Mr. and Mrs. Long Beach? Boomtown or Gloomtown? Little Iowa or International City?

Businessmen, housewives, government officials, financiers, teen-agers and civic leaders are taking a new look at the face of our city.

Many do not like what they see. The pessimists are asking, “Can we change?” The optimists are saying, “Sure, we can!”

In letters and telephone calls to the newspaper, in street-corner conversations and club speeches, all are voicing pros and cons about the way our urban community looks and works.

Some have called to express alarm at so-called “criticisms” in this series of articles about the city we love.

“You’re doing more harm than good by pointing up our downtown problems,” said Murray Levin, owner of 34-year-old Levin’s Men’s Wear, 316 Pine Ave.

“We have been looking at ourselves for the past several years, have acknowledged our faults and, under auspices of Downtown Long Beach Associates”—he is a former board member and present promotion chairman—“we are attempting to correct them,” Levin said.

“But, at the same time, we don’t want anyone to gloss over the fact that downtown Long Beach is a vital, thriving center of industry and retailing. Major stores are doing business at a greater volume than ever before.”

Many others, however—alarmed at the more than 100 vacant, gaping storefronts that pockmark the core area—are clamoring for an over-all, organized program to revitalize the downtown area.

One such is Harold Jones Jr., co-owner with his father of Jones Cafeteria, 126 E. Fifth St., one of those who recently spent thousands of dollars ($100,000 to be exact) on renovations and expansion.

“We’ve been talking behind closed doors about our downtown problems for years,” he said. “It’s time for a real shock treatment. I would be one of the first to join an organized campaign to turn downtown Long Beach into the beauty spot it deserves to be.”

Freighter Fired on By Crew

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A salvage expert returned Saturday from a freighter grounded on a Mexican island and said the disgruntled crewmen are firing on the ship.

“We could hear the bullets whining,” said William C. Miller.

The 426-foot, 1,700-ton Irini Stefanou, of Liberian registry, ran aground on San Benito Island off Baja California last week.

The ship’s 16 Greek crewmen waded 20 yards to shore and have refused to board the vessel again. Miller said. They claim the ship is unsafe and they want to go home, but on another ship.

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Brown has offered to dump his lieutenant governor in a bid to buy “cooperation” from rival Democrat Jesse Unruh, it was reported Saturday.

Assembly Speaker Unruh promptly rejected a Brown offer to make Unruh the state’s No. 2 constitutional officer, according to an informant of the Oakland Tribune.

Unruh was quoted as saying he already considers himself No. 2 man in California’s political scene.

WORD OF the Brown deal to drop Lt. Gov. Glenn M. Anderson so Unruh would abandon his Assembly leadership post was leaked to the Oakland Tribune, a newspaper operated by Brown’s 1953 gubernatorial foe, William Knowland.

The Tribune disclosed that the Brown deal for a Democratic musical-chairs game was made at an all-night summit meeting in the governor’s mansion between Brown, Unruh’s executive assistant Larry Margolis, State Finance Director Hale Champion and others.

BROWN’S legislative program is in deep trouble. And Unruh is the governor’s No. 1 statewide rival for Democratic influence.

The Costliest

EDITOR’S NOTE—While American servicemen today are dying in the jungles of Viet Nam, it seems only appropriate to remember that only 20 years ago this week the bloodiest battle in history was fought on another foreign battlefield—the shores of Iwo Jima. There were more than 23,000 American casualties.

By MARY NEISWENDER

Black sand, blood and valor combined 20 years ago to make history.

It began on Feb. 19, 1945.

It was made on a stretch of desolate, volcanic rock labeled Iwo Jima.

It was the World War II battle which has always been described in superlatives:

“The bloodiest...

“The costliest...

“The Marines’ bitterest fight in history.”

“Uncommon valor was a common virtue,” said Adm. Chester Nimitz.

“Surviving on that beach was like standing in the rain and hoping you wouldn’t get wet,” was famed photographer Joe Rosenthal’s sum-up.

And not many survived.

THE AMERICAN casualty roster listed more than 23,000 names.

An equal number of Japanese died. Few—only a handful—were taken prisoner.

Preparation for the assault was thorough.

For 72 consecutive days, the island fortress underwent sea and air bombardment. Then for three more days and nights guns and planes chopped away at specific defense positions.

Then came the deadly, bloody invasion. “People forget quickly,” says former Cmdr. Gordon Hebert of 12502 Martha Ann, Los Alamitos, beachmaster during the assault. “But I can’t forget it.”

And neither will the thousands of fighting men who survived.

Hebert, an insurance company executive, was in the first waves to hit the black-sanded island. For his work as beachmaster of Yellow Beach One, he won the Bronze Star.

It was his baptism of fire.

“They knew we were on our way,” Hebert recalls, “because the day we left Pearl Harbor for Iwo, Tokyo Rose discussed us on her ‘show.’”

Rose, he says, reported that the Third Fleet was on its way to Iwo Jima and after the battle there

Low-Flying Truck Bombs Central L.B.

Midtown Long Beach was bombed Saturday. There were no casualties.

The first stick of bombs fell near Long Beach Boulevard and Anaheim Street and a second load hit on Park Avenue.

The bombs were 25-pound practice rounds manufactured by the American Electrical Co. of Paramount and the bomb run apparently was made by a delivery truck which dropped part of its load.

Police Capt. Howard Sweet said six bombs were found about 9 a.m. by J. M. Kirkland of 422 W. 233rd St., Wilmington. The second package was found by Walter L. Carpenter of 1941 Canal Ave., a city bus driver.

The bombs were turned over to police and later surrendered to Storekeeper 2nd Class P. G. Smith of the Naval Weapons Depot, Seal Beach.

L.A.C. Says: Defaults Growing in Student Loans

A federal program aimed at helping needy college students is causing a major headache for schools and for Uncle Sam. This lead in a Wall Street Journal story tells of the dangers to student loan programs where graduates fail to pay off the loan which made it possible for them to go to college. It is tragic because it will affect future loans and terms for those looking forward to such assistance.

Under the most widely used plan deserving students can borrow up to $1,000 a year to a maximum of $5,000. The government contributes 90% and the college 10%. The graduate is supposed to start paying back the loans a year after graduation—and pay it off within the next five years. But, a lot of graduates are ignoring their obligation to the college which is charged with collecting the debts.

Boston College, with 1,600 students, is reported to be trying to contact 228 of its graduates who owe $28,000 of such debts. Its officials say about 40% of the borrowers are in default of their payments. Of this number, two-thirds have been delinquent for over two years. Other colleges do not report as large a percentage of delinquents. But a study made by the Office of Education last year showed $2 million of loans in default in schools surveyed.

This was equal to one-sixth of all the loans that had become due. By comparison, the delinquency rate on installment loans from commercial banks averages 1.7%. The startling fact is that these school loan defaults are increasing. The director of student affairs at the Henry Ford Community College, Dearborn, Mich., says: "This collection problem is getting out of hand." In a large percentage of cases the graduate has disappeared as far as the college is concerned.

A Dallas, Tex., administrator said: "One of the biggest things we have to fight is the attitude on the part of the borrower that anything from the government is a handout and that, if he dilly-dallies long enough, we'll forget about his obligation." Loans made by banks are usually guaranteed by parents. Many scholarships do not require repayment. But this federal government-college system is to help the thousands who are not eligible for scholarships.

The college graduate is usually quickly employed at a much higher salary than he, or she, could have hoped for without the diploma. It is true most of them are married soon after, or before graduating, and therefore take on added obligations. But they are making a poor start when they become a defaulter on a loan that made it possible for them to be among the favored group.

If this trend continues and expands, it will inevitably bring curtailment of loans. It can affect the graduate's younger brothers or sisters who may need such a loan. Above all, it affects the character of people who ignore obligations they took on after requesting such loans. It is essential that greater assurance of repayment be given if this large program is to continue.—L.A.C.

He said the cut in the normal four hours and 53 minutes for the flight was made possible by strong tailwinds.

Fraternity Prank Ends in Drowning

GEORGETOWN, Ky. (AP) —

The body of a 22-year-old Georgetown College sophomore football player was pulled from the icy waters of Elkhorn Creek Saturday, ending a 17-hour search which began when the youth fell into the water during a fraternity prank.

The body of Richard Winder, Bethel, Ohio, was found six inches beneath the surface of the creek by another student who was dragging the water from a motorboat. Six boats had been operating through the day in the search.

WINDER WAS a pledge of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. He and other pledges were tossing two members of the fraternity into the creek late Friday night. Fraternity members said it was traditional at all Georgetown fraternities for brothers who had given their lodge pins to girls to be tossed into the creek.

Winder had transferred to Georgetown from Ohio State University this term. His father, Richard S. Winder, who brought his wife to the scene, said his son was "a very good swimmer."

College officials gave this account of the incident:

—Winder and the other pledges took Larry Yoder, Baltimore, Md., president of the fraternity, and Dave Stallard, Louisville, to the rain-swollen creek near the crossing of U.S. 25 north of Georgetown.

—Yoder was tossed into the creek below a small dam. He climbed out without difficulty.

—Stallard was next, but he was tossed in above the dam, which had backed water up to a depth of six to eight feet. As he was thrown, he reached out and pulled Winder in with him.

—Stallard was caught up in turbulent waters near the dam, but was pulled to safety. Winder broke surface once, then disappeared near the dam.

11 Whooping Cranes Hatched Last Year

REGINA, Sask. (AP) — Whooping cranes had a whopping population explosion last year.

Giant Radio 'Ear' Soon to Probe Sky Mystery

PASADENA (AP) — A multi-million-dollar probe of the most powerful — and most mysterious — objects in the universe gets under way this year with start of work on a radio "Ear" three miles across.

California Institute of Technology announced Saturday a $1,645,000 grant from the National Science Foundation to build the first of eight 130-foot-diameter dish antennas to be trained on recently discovered radio sources so far away scientists can only guess at what they are.

THE 130-FOOT dish will be built atop a six-story-high tower mounted on a railroad car on tracks 44 feet apart at Caltech's Owens Valley Radio Observatory 250 miles north of here.

Seven other giant antennas are planned. All will run on a T-shaped track layout extending three miles in one direction and two miles in the other. Placement of dishes at opposite ends of the track will give scientists the equivalent of an antenna three miles across.

THEY WILL be used with two 90-foot dishes now at the observatory.

Dr. Lee DuBridge, Caltech president, said "the addition of these radio telescopes will increase the observatory's power many fold and will enable it to 'see' farther and more accurately than any other radio observatory."

L.A.C. Says: Defaults Growing in Student Loans

A federal program aimed at helping needy college students is causing a major headache for schools and for Uncle Sam. This lead in a Wall Street Journal story tells of the dangers to student loan programs where graduates fail to pay off the loan which made it possible for them to go to college. It is tragic because it will affect future loans and terms for those looking forward to such assistance.

Under the most widely used plan deserving students can borrow up to $1,000 a year to a maximum of $5,000. The government contributes 90% and the college 10%. The graduate is supposed to start paying back the loans a year after graduation—and pay it off within the next five years. But, a lot of graduates are ignoring their obligation to the college which is charged with collecting the debts.

Boston College, with 1,600 students, is reported to be trying to contact 228 of its graduates who owe $28,000 of such debts. Its officials say about 40% of the borrowers are in default of their payments. Of this number, two-thirds have been delinquent for over two years. Other colleges do not report as large a percentage of delinquents. But a study made by the Office of Education last year showed $2 million of loans in default in schools surveyed.

This was equal to one-sixth of all the loans that had become due. By comparison, the delinquency rate on installment loans from commercial banks averages 1.7%. The startling fact is that these school loan defaults are increasing. The director of student affairs at the Henry Ford Community College, Dearborn, Mich., says: "This collection problem is getting out of hand." In a large percentage of cases the graduate has disappeared as far as the college is concerned.

A Dallas, Tex., administrator said: "One of the biggest things we have to fight is the attitude on the part of the borrower that anything from the government is a handout and that, if he dilly-dallies long enough, we'll forget about his obligation." Loans made by banks are usually guaranteed by parents. Many scholarships do not require repayment. But this federal government-college system is to help the thousands who are not eligible for scholarships.

The college graduate is usually quickly employed at a much higher salary than he, or she, could have hoped for without the diploma. It is true most of them are married soon after, or before graduating, and therefore take on added obligations. But they are making a poor start when they become a defaulter on a loan that made it possible for them to be among the favored group.

If this trend continues and expands, it will inevitably bring curtailment of loans. It can affect the graduate's younger brothers or sisters who may need such a loan. Above all, it affects the character of people who ignore obligations they took on after requesting such loans. It is essential that greater assurance of repayment be given if this large program is to continue.—L.A.C.

Fraternity Prank Ends in Drowning

GEORGETOWN, Ky. (AP)—

The body of a 22-year-old Georgetown College sophomore football player was pulled from the icy waters of Elkhorn Creek Saturday, ending a 17-hour search which began when the youth fell into the water during a fraternity prank.

The body of Richard Winder, Bethel, Ohio, was found six inches beneath the surface of the creek by another student who was dragging the water from a motorboat. Six boats had been operating through the day in the search.

Winder was a pledge of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity. He and other pledges were tossing two members of the fraternity into the creek late Friday night. Fraternity members said it was traditional at all Georgetown fraternities for brothers who had given their lodge pins to girls to be tossed into the creek.

Winder had transferred to Georgetown from Ohio State University this term. His father, Richard S. Winder, who brought his wife to the scene, said his son was "a very good swimmer."

College officials gave this account of the incident:

—Winder and the other pledges took Larry Yoder, Baltimore, Md., president of the fraternity, and Dave Stallard, Louisville, to the rain-swollen creek near the crossing of U.S. 25 north of Georgetown.

—Yoder was tossed into the creek below a small dam. He climbed out without difficulty.

—Stallard was next, but he was tossed in above the dam, which had backed water up to a depth of six to eight feet. As he was thrown, he reached out and pulled Winder in with him.

—Stallard was caught up in turbulent waters near the dam, but was pulled to safety. Winder broke surface once, then disappeared near the dam.

the 80% interest in the tide-land section of the field, turned out to be lower than the subsequent bidding for smaller interests. The high bid for a 10% interest was $8,277% of net by Pauley Petroleum-Ally Chemical.

An even 100% by Richfield-Standard was easily the high for the 5% interest.

However, only the 80% contractor must make advance payments. These will amount to $51 million in a three-year period.

Speculation in oil circles was that when bidding resumes Monday for a 2½% interest, it may take another 100% offer to win the contract. The same may be true for the 1½% on Tuesday and the 1% on Wednesday.

Horrors of Iwo Jima Battle Live On...and On...

would be "not enough American survivors to fill the back of a postage stamp."

"WE LANDED on the beach at 0900 hours under a smoke screen—the only thing we could see was the water."

"After we hit the beach—the ones that got there—we were pinned down for five hours. The Japanese were in antitank trenches 30 feet from the beach."

The weather was foul—it was raining—and the waves ran high. Hebert recalls, and many of the boats which successfully ran through a hail of enemy shells were swamped trying to get ashore.

Many Americans drowned without touching the coarse volcanic sand.

OTHERS died kneedeep in water.

Others waited until they were ashore to die.

"It was hell," the beachmaster says.

Constant explosions shook the shore as the Japanese "walked" their mortars up the beach, Hebert remembers, with men running, scattering frantically for cover.

The beach was a tangled mass of wrecked landing craft with the wounded crying with terror as the shells rained down.

Twenty thousand men of the 3rd, 4th and 5th Marine divisions swept ashore that day, and within four hours Iwo Jima, that volcanic dot in the Pacific, almost turned into a disaster.

TO MOVE at all from a sheltering shell crater, Hebert says, was almost certain death.

"We were stacked into the craters like cord wood," the former Navy man says. "I remember jumping into one that was pretty full. One of the men didn't like the crowded quarters—he jumped up and dove into the next hole, six feet away, just as a mortar hit it. It blew his face off."

One of the best "hiding" places, Hebert says, was under a mired jeep.

"I'd dive under it when the mortars started walking my way," he says. "I used it for a couple of days before some wounded Marines for exaction told me a dead Japanese was stuck under the front bumper."

HEBERT, a cavalryman during ing World War I, was a 47-year-old Navy lieutenant commander on that bitter February morning.

His job: to boss operations on the beach, maintaining a steady flow of supplies from the invasion fleet and keeping the beach clear of wrecked craft so others could land to unload their cargoes of men and machines and take aboard wounded Marines for exaction to the ships.

For five days and nights the former recruiter from Boise, Idaho, was on his feet, his hoarse voice amplified by a makeshift public address system, booming directions across the littered shoreline.

"Scared?" he says. "Hell, I didn't have time."

THE FIRE, Hebert says, came from the escarpments, the high ground, the airfield perimeter, caves and hidden gun positions.

"They couldn't miss."

One of the reasons: a Japanese ship was sunk on the beach by naval gunfire, and in the ship's funnel was a Japanese radio operator directing the pinpoint shelling.

"It took us a while," Hebert says, "but we finally found him."

While Hebert and his beach crew dodged mortar shells and bullets on the beach, the Marines moved forward—from shell crater to shell crater, shooting as they jumped, taking terrible losses as they clawed their way to a foot-hold beneath the forbidding years and were staggering.

THE JAPANESE defenses, six-room cottage. But it was Hebert points out, had been defended by four tanks buried to their turrets, three 77mm antitank guns depressed to fire on the infantry, 12 double machine guns, four heavy machine guns and countless light machine guns. It had about 20 sunken pillboxes and so many caves they never were numbered, some several levels deep.

Defenders were on top of the cliffs, in the cliffs, on the ground and under the ground.

The Marines captured the hill six times before finally holding it.

DEAD, dying and injured were everywhere.

There was the captain whose football activities were legend. A shell blew off his leg and it lay among the men on the firing line for a day before someone dropped it in a shell hole and kicked dirt over it—a quick, efficient burial.

And on the ground a young Marine—just a kid—with gentle, pleading eyes looked up at those around him as he drowned in his own blood from a lung wound.

There were thousands.

IT EVEN affected the doctors—trained to steel themselves to human suffering. Some couldn't go on after days of seeing the unending parade of wounded, dead and dying, Hebert says.

"Many people ask why," Hebert says. "First because their radar was picking up our B29s as they headed for Japan, alerting defenses. Also because crippled bombers had nothing except open sea for 1,500 miles between Japan and our other bases."

BUT IT WAS hard to understand at the time, Hebert admits, especially after five days of steady rain and steadier sniper and mortar fire.

Although the island wasn't secured until 26 days and 9 hours after the first wave landed, Hebert's part of the invasion of Iwo Jima ended after five sleepless days and nights of work on the beach.

He was relieved but not before he announced to dog-tired fighting men that the American flag had gone up on Mt. Suribachi.

"I remember looking through my binoculars and seeing the 5th Marines jumping happily around the flag. It was—and is—one of the happiest moments of my life."

THE MARINES on Iwo Jima kept up their fight, but Hebert went on to another battleground—the invasion of Okinawa—a little more than a month later.

Although the Okinawa invasion kept Hebert on the beach for 10 days, he terms it "tame" compared to Iwo Jima's horrors.

"People forget quickly—too quickly," Hebert says.

Twenty years is a long time to retain a memory.

Unless you've been to hell—and returned.

The Marines captured the hill six times before finally holding it.

DEAD, dying and injured were everywhere.

There was the captain whose football activities were legend. A shell blew off his leg and it lay among the men before someone dropped it in a shell hole and kicked dirt over it—a quick, efficient burial.

And on the ground a young Marine—just a kid—with gentle, pleading eyes looked up at those around him as he drowned in his own blood from a lung wound.

There were thousands.

IT EVEN affected the doctors—trained to steel themselves to human suffering. Some couldn't go on after days of seeing the unending parade of wounded, dead and dying, Hebert says.

"Many people ask why," Hebert says. "First because their radar was picking up our B29s as they headed for Japan, alerting defenses. Also because crippled bombers had

BUT IT WAS hard to understand at the time. Hebert admits, especially after five days of steady rain and steadier sniper and mortar fire.

Although the island wasn't secured until 26 days and 9 hours after the first wave landed, Hebert's part of the invasion of Iwo Jima ended after five sleepless days and nights of work on the beach.

He was relieved but not before he announced to dog-tired fighting men that the American flag had gone up on Mt. Suribachi.

"I remember looking through my binoculars and seeing the 5th Marines jumping happily around the flag. It was—and is—one of the happiest moments of my life."

THE MARINES on Iwo Jima kept up their fight, but Hebert went on to another battleground—the invasion of Okinawa—a little more than a month later.

Although the Okinawa invasion kept Hebert on the beach for 10 days, he terms it "tame" compared to Iwo Jima's horrors.

"People forget quickly—too quickly," Hebert says.

Twenty years is a long time to retain a memory.

Unless you've been to hell—and returned.

Y Legislators Ask Prop. 14 Be Repealed

Bills proposed by delegates from the Los Altos YMCA and Lakewood YMCA met different fates Saturday at the 17th annual Model Legislature ended its second day in Sacramento.

The Lakewood bill, providing that minors 16 to 18 years old be tried in criminal courts after their first offense, went down in the Senate by voice vote.

The Los Altos proposal, providing that employers give job applicants a chance to explain arrest records, was passed by both houses and was awaiting the signature of the youth governor.

In other action, the legislature indicated it would like to get nondiscrimination housing laws back on the books.

AFTER a bitter floor fight, the student Assembly passed by voice vote a resolution asking for a constitutional amendment repealing Proposition 14, the controversial measure passed by the state's voters last November that nullified the so-called fair-housing laws.

Defeated by a 31-30 count, with student Lt. Gov. Jose Colon of Orange casting the decisive vote, was a measure that would have allowed juvenile offenders to work off pen-

Arraign Man Tuesday for Flager Death

A 27-year-old East Los Angeles man will be arraigned Tuesday on a charge of murder in the Jan. 28 shooting of a paraplegic from Garden Grove.

Homicide Det. Ben Oxandabure, Orange County Sheriff's Department, said the suspect, Jesse Mario Leal, was arrested Friday night at 501 S. Eastmont St., after a week's surveillance.

Leal was booked into Orange County jail on suspicion of murder in the shotgun death of Jack Raymond Flager, 36, whose body was found slumped in a wheelchair near the base of Carbon Canyon Dam.

Investigators would not reveal what led to Leal's arrest.

Legislator Will Seek Support for U.S. Birth-Control Drive

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—An attack against the world's—and California's—population explosion will be opened in the legislature Monday in a fight sure to have religious overtones.

Sen. Alvin C. Weingand, D-Santa Barbara, plans to introduce a resolution seeking the legislature's support for a federal birth-control program.

THE LAWMAKER also wants the California Department of Social Welfare to begin telling prolific mothers how not to have children.

"The world's population growth is frustrating all efforts to improve living standards in Latin America, Asia and other underdeveloped areas," Weingand said in an interview.

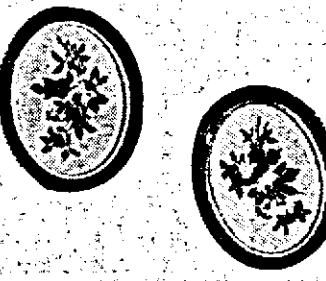

He commended President Johnson for publicly acknowledging the "seriousness of the population explosion and the government's responsibility to do something about it."

But, at the same time, he said, expenditures on birth-control on the federal level now total only about $2 million a year—and $5 million is needed.

"THE WORLD'S population now is 3.3 billion," said Weingand. "Due to the lowering death rate, and unless worldwide action is taken to reduce the birth rate, the world will double its population (to about 6 billion) by the end of this century."

Mobs Denounce U.S. Retaliation

United States buildings were attacked in three countries Saturday and anti-American demonstrations erupted around the world.

Anti-American protest meetings were reportedly held throughout the Soviet Union. Red China and Communist North Viet Nam claimed that millions of people have demonstrated against the United States in their cities in the last five days.

Most of the demonstrations were sparked by protests against the United States retaliatory air strikes in North Viet Nam.

Rioting leftist mobs, mostly young Chinese, smashed windows of the United States Information Service Library in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. They shattered the plate-glass windows with bricks, iron bars and wooden clubs.

Hungarian, Asiatic and African students attacked the U.S. Legation in Budapest. Several hundred demonstrators—some even succeeded in invading the building itself—hurled stones and inkpots through the ground-floor windows, tore down a plaque bearing the U.S. seal from the front door and wrecked two U.S. cars parked outside.

Police in Florence, Italy, reported that someone threw a Molotov cocktail against the door of the U.S. Consulate causing a fire that was quickly extinguished. They said a bottle filled with gasoline and a lighted wick was flung from a speeding automobile.

Inonu Steps Out After Adverse Vote

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI)—Turkish Premier Ismet Inonu resigned his government Saturday night after he was defeated in a vote of confidence in the National Assembly.

Inonu's downfall was attributed in part to his moderate handling of the Cyprus issue. But a main reason was the opposition Justice Party's clamor for progress in internal reforms to hasten the modernization of Turkey.

President Cemal Gursel accepted the resignation presented at his palace in the form of a communique by Inonu's secretary. The communique was approved by INONU the cabinet in a session following the Assembly's defeat of the government by a vote of 225 to 197 with two abstentions.

Father Kills 5 of Family, Self

PUYALLUP, Wash. (AP)—A father killed five members of his family, set fire to his home, then shot himself Saturday, Pierce County Coroner Larry Amundsen said.

Amundsen termed it manslaughter-suicide and said Melton Fisk, 43, was found dead near the burned home. A 12-gauge shotgun lay beneath him.

The other victims were Fisk's wife, Mary, 38, their three children, Linda, 13, Carol, 5, and Harley, 17, and Fisk's mother, Mrs. Laura W. Fisk, 65. They had slept in upstairs bedrooms in the two-story frame house near this berry-growing center.

Katzenbach, Clark Sworn In

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nicholas Katzenbach and Ramsey Clark were sworn in Saturday as attorney general and deputy attorney general respectively at a White House ceremony. President Johnson praised them as "outstanding young Americans."

Johnson told Katzenbach and Clark that "no two men in Washington enjoy my confidence more fully than you do."

Relatives, friends and associates jammed the Cabinet Room for the ceremony. Katzenbach has been acting attorney general since Robert F. Kennedy resigned last September to make a successful race for the Senate from New York.

Uganda Charges Congolese Air Raid

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP)—Prime Minister Milton Obote charged that Congolese planes, supplied by the United States, bombed two villages in Uganda Saturday.

He said Uganda's ambassador in Washington had been ordered to protest to the State Department.

An official statement said the villages of Paidha and Goli were bombed and one Ugandan soldier wounded.

Cuba Exiles Report Bomb Foray

MIAMI (UPI)—The Revolutionary Insurrectionary Recovery Movement said Saturday one of its B26 bombers slipped into Cuba and bombed, strafed and set fire to a sugar mill in Pinar del Rio province.

Mystery Diarrhea Kills 8 Tots

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—A team of health officials tried Saturday to trace the cause of an outbreak of diarrhea that has claimed the lives of eight infants and children.

All but one of the deaths involved infants less than one year old. The other death involved a 5-year-old.

Dr. Aaron Haskin, Newark health officer, said five deaths occurred in Newark City Hospital since Dec. 1. The other three deaths, all within the past two weeks, were in St. Michael Hospital, Beth Israel Hospital and babies' unit of United Hospitals.

Youth, Girl Friend Held as TV Thieves

An unemployed service station attendant and his girl friend were jailed on suspicion of burglary Saturday after police said they admitted stealing motel television sets.

Jordan Premier Replaced After Visit by Talbot

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—The government of Premier Bahjat Talhouni resigned Saturday and former Premier Wasfi El Tal formed a new Jordanian cabinet immediately.

Tal, 46, takes over for a second time. He was premier in 1961.

Tal in the past has opposed Egypt's President Nasser on some issues.

Sources here noted that Talhouni's resignation followed a visit to Jordan by Phillips Talbot, U.S. deputy undersecretary of state for Middle Eastern affairs. Talbot, the source said, visited Jordan in 1961 just before Wasfi Tal became premier for the first time. Talbot's visit has caused considerable speculation in the Middle East.

Big Heroin Suppliers Smashed

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP)—Detention of two men and seizure of a 39-foot power cruiser here after arrest of a Canadian pilot near Yuba City, Calif., is believed to have smashed a supply line bringing heroin here from Mexico, police said Saturday.

Narcotics squad officers said heroin worth $100,000 on the underworld market was seized here and in California after arrest of Roy Joseph Travis, 26, of Vancouver at the Sutter County airport near Yuba City Friday.

Nicholas Alexander Karpowish, 28, was arrested at a home here and charged with possession of narcotics. Another man arrested was not charged.

Officers said the power cruiser was found in suburban North Vancouver and had equipment for capping up narcotics. Travis was listed as its owner.

Travis was charged in Sacramento with possession of 18 ounces of heroin. His ball was set by a U.S. commissioner at $25,000.

TWO-WEEK VIGIL ENDS

Freeway-Haunting Mongrel Vanishes

LA MIRADA (CNS)—The elusive black-and-white mongrel dog which evaded numerous dogcatchers during his two-week vigil near the Santa Ana Freeway apparently was retrieved by his master sometime in the past two days.

County dog pound officials said the mongrel that had been living in a field near the Valley View Avenue off-ramp in La Mirada had been the subject of numerous capture attempts but successfully eluded them all.

Police theorize the dog was a passenger in an auto involved in a freeway accident the first week of February and was waiting for his master to return.

The animal lived on food scraps left in the field by a benevolent service-station attendant.

Tug Races to Claim Burning Ship

HONOLULU (UPI)—A salvage vessel Saturday raced to claim as prize the burning, abandoned hulk of a Danish freighter, tomb for three crewmen.

The Coast Guard said the Netherlands tug "Tasman Zee" reported she was heading for the freighter Margit, drifting 1,100 miles southwest of here. The tug hoped to put a line aboard by Thursday.

The 24 survivors who abandoned the Margit after an engine-room explosion sent fire roaring through her Thursday night were expected to arrive in Honolulu about 6 p.m. HST (8 p.m. PST) Saturday aboard a Coast Guard rescue plane.

The survivors, 23 crewmen and one woman, were taken to Johnson Island, a top-secret U.S. nuclear and rocket test site 700 miles south of Honolulu, by the Navy cargo ship Greenville Victory.

The Greenville Victory picked them up Friday after they had drifted more than 10 hours in two lifeboats.

Still aboard the burning ship were the bodies of three crewmen killed in the explosion.

One injured crewman suffered serious burns, another had a leg injury and a third was struck in the stomach by an oar. None was believed to be in critical condition.

The Coast Guard said the burning freighter was sighted Friday night by the American freighter Guam Bear.

Rioting leftist mobs, mostly young Chinese, smashed windows of the United States Information Service Library in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia. They shattered the plate-glass windows with bricks, iron bars and wooden clubs.

Hungarian, Asiatic and African students attacked the U.S. Legation in Budapest. Several hundred demonstrators—some even succeeded in invading the building itself—hurled stones and inkpots through the ground-floor windows, tore down a plaque bearing the U.S. seal from the front door and wrecked two U.S. cars parked outside.

Police in Florence, Italy, reported that someone threw a Malatov cocktail against the door of the U.S. Consulate causing a fire that was quickly extinguished. They said a bottle filled with gasoline and a lighted wick was flung from a speeding automobile.

Inonu Steps Out After Adverse Vote

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI)—Turkish Premier Ismet Inonu resigned his government Saturday night after he was defeated in a vote of confidence in the National Assembly.

Inonu's downfall was attributed in part to his moderate handling of the Cyprus issue. But a main reason was the opposition Justice Party's clamor for progress in internal reforms to hasten the modernization of Turkey.

President Cemal Gursel accepted the resignation presented at his palace in the form of a communique by Inonu's secretary. The communique was approved by the cabinet in a session following the Assembly's defeat of the government by a vote of 225 to 197 with two abstentions.

Father Kills 5 of Family, Self

PUYALLUP, Wash. (AP)—A father killed five members of his family, set fire to his home, then shot himself Saturday, Pierce County Coroner Larry Amundsen said.

Amundsen termed it manslaughter-suicide and said Melton Fisk, 43, was found dead near the burned home. A 12-gauge shotgun lay beneath him.

The other victims were Fisk's wife, Mary, 38, their three children, Linda, 13, Carol, 5, and Harley, 17, and Fisk's mother, Mrs. Laura W. Fisk, 65. They had slept in upstairs bedrooms in the two-story frame house near this berry-growing center.

Katzenbach, Clark Sworn In

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nicholas Katzenbach and Ramsey Clark were sworn in Saturday as attorney general and deputy attorney general respectively at a White House ceremony. President Johnson praised them as "outstanding young Americans."

Johnson told Katzenbach and Clark that "no two men in Washington enjoy my confidence more fully than you do."

Relatives, friends and associates jammed the Cabinet Room for the ceremony. Katzenbach has been acting attorney general since Robert F. Kennedy resigned last September to make a successful race for the Senate from New York.

Uganda Charges Congolese Air Raid

KAMPALA, Uganda (UPI)—Prime Minister Milton Obote charged that Congolese planes, supplied by the United States, bombed two villages in Uganda Saturday.

He said Uganda's ambassador in Washington had been ordered to protest to the State Department.

An official statement said the villages of Paidha and Goli were bombed and one Ugandan soldier wounded.

Cuba Exiles Report Bomb Foray

MIAMI (UPI)—The Revolutionary Insurreccional Recovery Movement said Saturday one of its B26 bombers slipped into Cuba and bombed, strafed and set fire to a sugar mill in Pinar del Rio province.

Mystery Diarrhea Kills 8 Tots

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI)—A team of health officials tried Saturday to trace the cause of an outbreak of diarrhea that has claimed the lives of eight infants and children.

All but one of the deaths involved infants less than one year old. The other death involved a 5-year-old.

Dr. Aaron Haskin, Newark health officer, said five deaths occurred in Newark City Hospital since Dec. 1. The other three deaths, all within the past two weeks, were in St. Michael Hospital, Beth Israel Hospital and babies' unit of United Hospitals.

Jordan Premier Replaced After Visit by Talbot

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—The government of Premier Bahjat Talhouni resigned Saturday and former Premier Wasfi El Tal formed a new Jordanian cabinet immediately.

Tal, 46, takes over for a second time. He was premier in 1961.

Tal in the past has opposed Egypt's President Nasser on some issues.

Sources here noted that Talhouni's resignation followed a visit to Jordan by Morgan Phillips Talbot, U.S. deputy undersecretary of state for Employment's Services to Middle Eastern affairs. Big Heroin Suppliers Smashed

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP)—Detention of two men and seizure of a 39-foot power cruiser here after arrest of a Canadian pilot near Yuba City, Calif., is believed to have smashed a supply line bringing heroin here from Mexico, police said Saturday.

Narcotics squad officers said heroin worth $100,000 on the underworld market was seized here and in California after arrest of Roy Joseph Travis, 26, of Vancouver at the Sutter County airport near Yuba City Friday.

Nicholas Alexander Karpowish, 28, was arrested at a home here and charged with possession of narcotics. Another man arrested was not charged.

Officers said the power cruiser was found in suburban North Vancouver and had equipment for capping up narcotics. Travis was listed as its owner.

Travis was charged in Sacramento with possession of 18 ounces of heroin. His bail was set by a U.S. commissioner at $25,000.

TWO-WEEK VIGIL ENDS

Freeway-Haunting Mongrel Vanishes

LA MIRADA (CNS)—The elusive black-and-white mongrel dog which evaded numerous dogcatchers during his two-week vigil near the Santa Ana Freeway apparently was retrieved by his master sometime in the past two days.

County dog pound officials said the mongrel that had been living in a field near the Valley View Avenue off-ramp in La Mirada had been the subject of numerous capture attempts but successfully eluded them all.

Police theorize the dog was a passenger in an auto involved in a freeway accident the first week of February and was waiting for his master to return.

The animal lived on food scraps left in the field by a benevolent service-station attendant.

Tug Races to Claim Burning Ship

HONOLULU (UPI)—A salvage vessel Saturday raced to claim as prize the burning, abandoned hulk of a Danish freighter, tomb for three crewmen.

The Coast Guard said the Netherlands tug "Tasman Zee" reported she was heading for the freighter Margit, drifting 1,100 miles southwest of here. The tug hoped to put a line aboard by Thursday.

The 24 survivors who abandoned the Margit after an engine-room explosion sent fire roaring through her Thursday night were expected to arrive in Honolulu about 6 p.m. HST (8 p.m. PST) Saturday aboard a Coast Guard rescue plane.

The survivors, 23 crewmen and one woman, were taken to Johnson Island, a top-secret U.S. nuclear and rocket test site 700 miles south of Honolulu, by the Navy cargo ship Greenville Victory.

The Greenville Victory picked them up Friday after they had drifted more than 10 hours in two lifeboats.

Still aboard the burning ship were the bodies of three crewmen killed in the explosion.

One injured crewman suffered serious burns, another had a leg injury and a third was struck in the stomach by an oar. None was believed to be in critical condition.

The Coast Guard said the burning freighter was sighted Friday night by the American freighter Guam Bear.

State's 'Good Samaritan' Ailing; Solons Plan Aid

By CHARLES SUTTON
LPT Staff Writer

There's something sadly ironic about a lifelong Good Samaritan suddenly falling ill and finding himself in desperate need of help from someone else.

California's disability insurance program is in just such a fix today.

A benefactor to 3 million disabled workers in its lifetime, the program is hobbling along under a serious financial handicap. Unless the legislature finds a way of pumping $22 million into its faltering system very soon, it's conceivable the program will be crippled, if not totally disabled in time.

PROPOSERS of a measure designed to shore up the DI fund, however, are hopeful they can keep the program intact—that is, make it solvent once again, and keep disability benefits at current levels.

The question is: can they do it in time? The deadline for passage of an administration-backed emergency measure is close at hand.

And unless the bill gets Gov. Brown's signature within the next few days, it's quite possible DI benefits will have to be cut back April 1.

Proponents still need five Republican votes to push the bill through the Assembly under an urgency clause requiring a two-thirds majority of the lower house.

Beyond that, there's the Senate, which must also be hurried.

EVEN IF the urgency measure should fail its immediate test, the bill seems certain of eventual passage. Not even the program's severest critics really want to see DI die.

What they object to, they say, is the direction in which it seems headed. In their view, DI is on the threshold of becoming—if it hasn't already become—something it never was intended to be: a welfare program. Rather than send more money coursing through its veins, they'd prefer to trim what they consider to be "excess" fat off the program.

For management the fight over DI has become more than just a tug-of-war over financing. It has become a battle over principle.

As Eugene B. Rossi, an official of the National Employers Group, phrases it, "this is a critical period. We have reached the point where the line must be drawn."

IN ROSSI'S estimation, if the trend toward "welfarism" in the DI program isn't halted, "DI, and the other social insurance programs as well, will simply destroy their original purpose."

DI also is similar to Workmen's Compensation in some ways. But it differs from WC in two important respects: it is employee-financed, and it covers only off-the-job disabilities.

Workmen's Compensation, on the other hand, deals with on-the-job injury or illness, and is paid for out of employer contributions.

J. Richard Glade, head of the Unemployed Insurance Association, says:

In order to qualify for 26 weeks of benefits, plus a hospital benefit of $12 a day for 20 days (the maximum in both instances), all a person need earn in a year is $300.

CONCEIVABLY, then, says Glade, a disabled person could receive a total of $890 in benefits on only $300 in wages.

(DI officials concede the possibility, but say the probabilities of its happening are fairly remote.)

Benefits that can be received on financial grounds as fragile as these, say Rossi and Glade, should simply not be made available.

The chief sponsor of the GOP's substitute proposals, Assemblyman Howard Thelin (R-Glendale), insists the Republican amendment can rescue the program from bankruptcy.

Democrats are dubious. So are some experts.

Thelin's amendment would leave the present tax rate at 1% of a worker's earnings, and would raise the taxable wage base from $5,600 to $6,500. More importantly, it would make it impossible for marginal workers to qualify for benefits, which now range from $25 to $80 for up to 26 weeks.

COMPARED to the GOP pruning operation, the Democratic bill is sheer pump-priming. Sponsored by Assemblyman George Zenovich, D-Fresno, it would raise temporarily the tax on earnings from 1% to 1.1%; boost the wage base from $5,600 to $7,600 and compel large employers to remit employee contributions to the state on a monthly rather than a quarterly basis.

Significantly, it does not propose to tighten eligibility requirements and thereby—as Democratic backers say—seek to withhold benefits from low-income part-time seasonal employees, such as cannery workers.

Eventually, Democrats hope to achieve passage of a labor-sponsored bill that will increase hospital benefits, broaden them to include pregnancy and establish dependency benefits not now in the program—a package not exactly designed to suit Republican or management tastes.

IF MANAGEMENT'S opposition to the Zenovich and labor proposals is founded on

IF MANAGEMENT'S opposition to the Zenovich and labor proposals is founded on principle, as Rossi says, it also has a powerful strategic consideration behind it. The fact is, says Rossi, the DI program is inevitably the pacesetter for unemployment insurance and Workmen's Compensation.

Meanwhile, two of the more puzzling if unspoken questions in the DI debate are why the legislature ignored obvious warnings and allowed the DI fund to become nearly bankrupt; and why, in 1961, it tied benefits to the average weekly wage in California without doing the same to employee contributions.

Of one thing everybody is certain: DI, the Good Samaritan, needs help—fast.

SEEN VITAL NEED FOR DOWNTOWN L.B.

Businessmen Urge Refacing Job

from experience that "beauty is good business."

Since his cafeteria's renovation project got under way last June, he reports, business has increased between 50 and 70%.

"Some days it's 100% over last year," he continued. "Although we anticipated a decline in profits during the construction period, business increased. Interested customers came to look and eat—even when the walls were falling down around them."

CHARLES W. Teed, manager of the downtown Sears store, says his operation has enjoyed "one of the finest increases in business in the country" since its extensive refacing and expansion program got under way.

"Aesthetics has a great psychological effect on both customer and employee," he noted. "When one storefront in the area gets a face-lifting, others begin upgrading their properties."

Sears is investing its money in downtown units all over the country, he continued, because "we have faith in the nationwide trend back to central city."

SAID Wade Orris, manager of the recently redecorated Imperial Hardware, 437 Long Beach Blvd., in business here for 57 years: "Any company must keep up appearances to attract customers. You can't do a face-lifting, then let the premises go for 25 years."

Andy Gassaway, owner of the recently beautified Andy's Hot Cake House and cafeteria, 643 Pine Ave., cited absentee ownership as one of downtown's greatest problems. "The area is held back by landlords who hold stores vacant and write them off as tax deduction."

Also cited as problems by both customers and merchants: lack of adequate parking, apathy, no main expressway into the downtown area, our much-publicized California sprawl and fractionized community loyalties.

WHAT'S the answer? "We've got to change our image," said Howard Conrad, highly regarded businessman, now retired, but onetime owner of Walker's, Fourth and Pine. He doesn't believe piecemeal remodeling will get the job done.

"It's time to make a clean sweep, to do something sensational."

"I helped create the retail image of Long Beach, but times have changed. Those days are gone forever—like the tin lizzy. We need to take modern giant strides."

"LET'S STOP being little Iowa," he challenged. "We certainly have the wherewithal, the leadership and the money to pull ourselves up by the bootstraps."

"Let's become the International City—for real!"

Most leaders who talk of a refacing project for downtown Long Beach eventually zero in on the International City theme.

"It's the best selling point we have," said Dr. Orville Cole, immediate past president of the Chamber of Commerce. "It's a natural."

tional center "has been expanding and will continue to expand with the growth of the port of Long Beach."

He pointed out that in the past 10 years the gross tonnage of cargo has increased 100%.

"Also contributing to the international image is the International Beauty Pageant, which spreads the name of Long Beach all over the world," he continued.

Another is Douglas Aircraft, which has the whole world as its market.

AND WHAT better way to put Long Beach on the map than to capitalize on its international theme?

Cities, like people, are of different characters. Many run-of-the-mill cities, like run-of-the-mill people, are seedy, grave, dull and indistinguishable from one another.

Exemplary cities stand out, each for a different reason.

San Francisco has its culture, its hills and its trolley cars... Washington its government buildings and administrative dignity... New Orleans its French accent and historic charm... Boston its ivy-covered, blue-blooded prestige.

WHY NOT Long Beach for its international flavor?

As Harry Buffum, civic leader and owner of Buffum's, Long Beach's oldest department store, pointed out: much is already going for our city to quicken its heartbeat and to add to its vitality.

"When the shoreline development gets into full swing, we'll see great changes in downtown Long Beach," he forecast.

He referred to such improvements as the West Beach Project, the 13.7-acre development (Magnolia to the flood channel, Ocean Boulevard to the ocean) adjacent to the central business district.

THE estimated starting date for land acquisition will be March 1; relocation of families and individuals will begin May 1. It is hoped that project improvements will get under way Jan. 1, 1966.

Plans by the Long Beach Redevelopment Agency, based on market feasibility studies by Ashton Associates, call for two types of super-block parcels.

The larger of the two, 7.9 acres, will be high-rise multi-residential construction (20- and 25-story apartment buildings). The easterly portion calls for a hotel-motel complex. Each is planned with recommended accessory commercial entities.

A STRIP 70 feet deep along Ocean Blvd. will be devoted to development of a greenbelt public park. A two-level subterranean structure will furnish parking for 3,000 cars.

It's certainly a step in the right direction.

"But we need an over-all definite plan, firmly based, far-reaching and galvanic," said James A. Hayes, vice mayor and local attorney.

He, along with many other local leaders, recommends a citizen action committee to study the feasibility of a mall on Pine Avenue and needed core-area improvements.

Some other visions for development and beautification:

ARTIST'S SKETCH shows how attractive an alley can be after beautification. Contrast it with dingy, dirty alley at right.

1. An International Plaza, Street to Ocean Boulevard, and the convenience of perhaps called by that name, that would take into account nearby automobile storage... on Pine Avenue from Seventh, both the pleasures of pedestrianism and the convenience of a boulevard deep in greenery.

with rich pavements, accented with podiums, fountains, benches and a dynamic array of commercial, cultural and recreational activities.

2. A focal interest point downtown, perhaps a fountain or reflector pool with symbolic work of art in the international flavor.

3. Face-lifting development downtown redevelopment by tied in with the International Chamber of Commerce or City Council resolution, however," he continued.

4. A system of ramps, on the design of those at Disneyland, for transporting pedestrians from parking areas to stores.

5. Development of half-block alley ways that open onto Pine into quaint sidewalk cafes, art galleries and bookstands.

As one enthusiast put it: "With such improvements maybe we Americans wouldn't find life in this country so dull that we'd have to board planes for Rome, Paris or Brussels in order to see beautiful cities."

"We have as beautiful a setting here as any one of them! Better climate, too."

Can we do it? "Sure we can!" said Harry Krusz, executive vice president of the Chamber of Commerce.

"We not only can, we must do it."

HE WAS NOT speaking particularly of a mall or of an international flavor. He was talking pure economics. "We can not accomplish buyers fast."

SEEN VITAL NEED FOR DOWNTOWN L.B.

from experience that "beauty is good business."

Since his cafeteria's renovation project got under way last June, he reports, business has increased between 50 and 70%.

"Some days it's 100% over last year," he continued. "Although we anticipated a decline in profits during the construction period, business increased. Interested customers came to look and eat—even when the walls were falling down around them."

CHARLES W. Teed, manager of the downtown Sears store, says his operation has enjoyed "one of the finest increases in business in the country" since its extensive refacing and expansion program got under way.

"Aesthetics has a great psychological effect on both customer and employee," he noted. "When one storefront in the area gets a face-lifting, others begin upgrading their properties."

Sears is investing its money in downtown units all over the country, he continued, because "we have faith in the nationwide trend back to central city."

SAID Wade Orris, manager of the recently redecorated Imperial Hardware, 437 Long Beach Blvd., in business here for 57 years: "Any company must keep up appearances to attract customers. You can't do a face-lifting, then let the premises go for 25 years."

Andy Gassaway, owner of the recently beautified Andy's Hot Cake House and cafe, 643 Pine Ave., cited absentee ownership as one of downtown Long Beach's greatest problems. "The area is held back by landlords who hold stores vacant and write them off as tax deduction."

Also cited as problems by both customers and merchants: lack of adequate parking, apathy, no main expressway into the downtown area, our much-publicized California sprawl and fractionized community loyalties.

WHAT'S the answer?

"We've got to change our image," said Howard Conrad, highly regarded businessman, now retired, but onetime owner of Walker's, Fourth and Pine. He doesn't believe piecemeal remodeling will get the job done.

"It's time to make a clean sweep, to do something sensational."

"I helped create the retail image of Long Beach, but times have changed. Those days are gone forever—like the tin lizzy. We need to take modern giant strides."

"LET'S STOP being little Iowa," he challenged. "We certainly have the wherewithal, the leadership and the money to pull ourselves up by the bootstraps."

"Let's become the International City—for real!"

Most leaders who talk of a refacing project for downtown Long Beach eventually zero in on the International City theme.

"It's the best selling point we have," said Dr. Orville Cole, immediate past president of the Chamber of Commerce. "It's a natural."

CITY MANAGER John Mansell noted that the image of Long Beach as an international center "has been expanding and will continue to expand with the growth of the port of Long Beach."

He pointed out that in the past 10 years the gross tonnage of cargo has increased 100%.

"Also contributing to the international image is the International Beauty Pageant, which spreads the name of Long Beach all over the world," he continued.

Another is Douglas Aircraft, which has the whole world as its market.

Viet Nam Strains U.S.-Russ Relations

by HARRY WILSON SHARPE
United Press International

North Viet Nam Communist terrorists blew up a four-story U.S. Army billet at Qui Nhon, South Viet Nam, last week, killing 20 soldiers and maiming others.

A few hours later, on direct orders from President Johnson, more than 150 U.S. Navy and South Vietnamese air force warplanes devastated North Viet Nam military strongholds in the third and heaviest reprisal raid since last Sunday.

The Hanoi Red regime called the assault an act of war. Peking and Moscow chimed in with bitter denunciations and threats of punishment. Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin had been in Hanoi pledging military aid during the first attack. He called it a provocation and demanded withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Viet Nam.

THE U.S. reprisal policy appeared to foreshadow more strikes though it cast a shadow over Russo-American relations and Johnson's projected visit to Moscow. Tensions mounted further when Moscow police made no attempt to control a "spontaneous" mob of 3,000 which stoned the U.S. Embassy in protest against the air strikes.

The President denounced the incident in scathing terms, rejecting before hand any Soviet expressions of regret. He demanded firm safeguards for the embassy in the future.

The chief executive, determined to keep the Communists from swallowing Asia in violation of Geneva agreements, first invoked his strike-for-strike policy after Red guerrillas using mortars and dynamite killed eight Americans and wounded 103 others near Pleiku.

HIS RESPONSE then was two hard-hitting air raids on Communist staging bases and a warning to Red China and Russia against "miscalculation."

"The United States," the President declared, "will answer any threat, pay any price, to see that freedom does not perish." He made clear that the U.S. has no desire to expand the war but is ready if provocations continue.

The next provocation was the wrecking of the Qui Nhon barracks. Johnson and his National Security Council reacted swiftly. A hundred planes laden with bombs and rockets took off from the U.S. carriers Coral Sea, Hancock and Ranger in the South China Sea. They rendezvoused with Sky-raidors and jets from a ducing U.S. gold stocks to $15 billion.

The President submitted a 10-point program, highlighted by an appeal to bankers, businessmen and American tourists to join voluntarily in stemming the dollar drain. He advocated a tax on long-term bank loans to foreigners, limited business investments overseas, and a $50 cut in the $100 duty-free allowance on tourist purchases abroad.

Officials said that if persuasion fails the President may try something "less agreeable." Congress was working meantime on a bill to repeal an old law which requires partial gold backing for federal reserve bank deposits. The legislation would free about $5 billion in gold to be used to maintain dollar stability in world markets.

Johnson stressed that the dollar is and will remain sound; that those (De Gaulle) who hope for its weakness "hope in vain." De Gaulle favors a return to the outmoded world gold standard.

On the racial front the President told a Lincoln Day lunch that his goal is to admit "every American Negro as complete and equal members of the American society." He said that most legal barriers to equality are gone and the rest are going. He also said the nation must be alert for divisive forces. "Those who would sacrifice union to their own will."

At Selma, Ala., where Negroes are demonstrating for the right to vote, Sheriff James Clark was accused of forcing hundreds of Negro school students to march more than a mile into the country. He also allegedly ordered a jailed civil rights worker stricken with virus pneumonia transferred from his cell to a hospital where he was shackled to his bed by a leg iron. Clark himself later entered a hospital. His wife said he suffered from chest pains due to exhaustion.

The State Department announced a reshuffle in which W. Averell Harriman, undersecretary for political affairs, was made a roving ambassador. Thomas C. Mann, assistant secretary for inter-American affairs and coordinator of the Alliance for Progress, takes Harriman's old post. Harriman will handle high-level assignments.

In the space world astronaut Gordon Cooper, Shawnee, Okla., holder of America's space-endurance record, and Lt. Charles Conrad, of Philadelphia, were chosen as the primary crew for the space administration's third and most ambitious flight—the manned Gemini orbit this spring.

"The United States," the President declared, "will answer any threat, pay any price, to see that freedom does not perish." He made clear that the U.S. has no desire to expand the war but is ready if provocations continue.

The next provocation was the wrecking of the Qui Nhon barracks. Johnson and his National Security Council reacted swiftly. A hundred planes laden with bombs and rockets took off from the U.S. carriers Coral Sea, Hancock and Ranger in the South China Sea. They rendezvoused with Skyliners and jets from a base at Da Nang. Their targets were near Dong Hoi and Vinh Linh which had been raided earlier.

The Navy lost three planes. Two pilots were rescued. The third was captured by the Viet Cong.

New threats came from Moscow, Peking and North Korea which Kosygin also visited. But the President's statements and actions indicated there would be more raids—even on Hanoi and North Viet Nam seaports—if he deems them necessary.

AMERICAN officials were hoping that Hanoi and Peking would "get the message." They could stop the war merely by leaving South Viet Nam in peace. That is Johnson's objective.

The President ordered home 1,800 dependents of U.S. personnel in Viet Nam. He also rushed a battery of Hawk anti-aircraft missiles to Viet Nam to combat any invading planes.

The State Department was keeping other governments informed of U.S. military actions, but has provided no special fill-in to Moscow since the first retaliatory raid.

French President Charles de Gaulle continued advocating neutralization of all Indo-China, formerly French controlled.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson pledged British support for the U.S. policy in a phone talk with the President.

ANXIOUS members of the United Nations were awaiting developments. Secretary General Thant appealed to the U.S. and the Communists to hold truce talks lest the war escalate.

The State Department said once again that it sees no point in negotiations until the Communists agree to halt their aggression.

On the domestic front, a 33-day dockworkers' strike that had knocked a $2 billion hole in the national economy was partially settled, at least temporarily, on demands of Johnson. A presidential board brought union and management together. A back-to-work order followed, but it did not apply to all South Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports. Chief issue in dispute was reduced work gangs.

The strike was hurting the nation's foreign trade balance of payments position which Johnson had brought into sharp focus in special corrective proposals to Congress. The nation went $3 billion more in the red in trade last year, re-

High Salaries Drop in Britain

LONDON (AP) — Britain's wealthiest wage-earners are getting fewer, the tax department reported Saturday. It said the number of people reporting income of 100,000 pounds a year (£250,000) dropped from 94 to 83 in the tax year ending last March.

"Let us allow people who will aid our nation's continued growth. Let us open our doors to those who need asylum the most," Kuchel declared. "In short, let us establish reason, compassion, realism and justice as our guidelines."

Iceberg Adrift

The internal revenue commissioners also reported the total collected in income tax dropped about 70 million pounds ($196 million) below the 1962-63 tax year. But revenue from profits and estate taxes broke all records.

Rep. Ford Against Reagan Illinois Run

Ford said Illinois had some outstanding members of its congressional delegation that could run against Douglas next year.

Westminster Holds Lively Crisis Talks

By LEE BROWN

Faced with an avalanche of political and civic crises, Westminster's City Council took no action Saturday except to adjourn to what the city attorney called a "regular special meeting" scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Adjournment for the regular special meeting, however, didn't come until after a barrage of charges and counter-charges had brought tempers to the boiling point.

Among the issues facing the council were:

—Recent dismissal of the city administrator, and a contract for the new one.

—Possible censure of the council last week by the city Merit Commission. ("Possible" because neither the commission members nor the council were sure.)

Following the Saturday session, which was not attended by Mayor William Magill, new city administrator Reginald G. Foster distributed a "news release" signed by Councilmen W. Justin McCarthy, Philip Anthony and John Parks.

Councilman Buel Jarrett had publicly refused to sign the document a few moments earlier while the council was in session.

THE RELEASE referred to last week's Merit System Commission action which reportedly "cleared" the city's building and planning departments of alleged "discrimination" and chastized the council for listening to the charges in the first place.

The release signed by the three councilmen declared the commission's report "informative and gratifying... misleading" and containing "presumptions." It also declared, "The City Council must take appropriate action to bring calmness and stability to our city's governmental functions."

During the session, Parks was restrained from vigorous questioning of Merit System Commission Chairman Robert Krogman by McCarthy, mayor pro tempore and acting chairman, who said, "I will not tolerate this sort of cross-examination."

Krogman declared that the whole thing was a misunderstanding and that the commission really did nothing more than adopt a report by one commissioner which was critical of three councilmen—McCarthy, Anthony and Parks—the last two of whom face possible recall action.

KROGMAN said the report was not meant to be a resolution to the council nor to represent the whole commission's views. The commission, however, is scheduled to meet Tuesday, 7:30 p.m., at Westminster City Hall, to prepare a final recommendation.

Another item on the council's agenda, also postponed to Monday night at 7:30, was "analysis and discussion relative to forces and activities seemingly inimical to the city of Westminster."

McCarthy termed it a "curious item" and called for any "iniquitous items" germane to it. Anthony asked it be deferred to Monday.

THE LAST item, employment and a written contract for Westminster's controversial new administrator, Foster, was put off to the closed-door "regular special session."

It wasn't postponed, however, until after:

—Foster was defended by Anthony who said the administrator has been threatened with dismissal as part of the recall action.

—Foster's immediate predecessor, Eugene Asmus, said no cities in Los Angeles or Orange counties offer written contracts to the administrator, and that Foster "should be willing to stand the guff as I did."

—Foster declared, "I don't intend to stand alone any longer. I'll ask for a contract until Dec. 31."

—McCarthy said there have been "tremendous personal attacks on our administrator."

Westminster Holds Lively Crisis Talks

By LEE BROWN

Faced with an avalanche of political and civic crises, Westminster's City Council took no action Saturday except to adjourn to what the city attorney called a "regular special meeting" scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday.

Adjournment for the regular special meeting, however, didn't come until after a barrage of charges and counter-charges had brought tempers to the boiling point.

Among the issues facing the council were:

—Recent dismissal of the city administrator, and a contract for the new one.

—Possible censure of the council last week by the city Merit Commission. ("Possible" because neither the commission members nor the council were sure.)

Following the Saturday session, which was not attended by Mayor William Magill, new city administrator Reginald G. Foster distributed a "news release" signed by Councilmen W. Justin McCarthy, Philip Anthony and John Parks.

Councilman Buel Jarrett had publicly refused to sign the document a few moments earlier while the council was in session.

THE RELEASE referred to last week's Merit System Commission action which reportedly "cleared" the city's building and planning departments of alleged "discrimination" and chastized the council for listening to the charges in the first place.

The release signed by the three councilmen declared the commission's report "informative and gratifying . . . misleading" and containing "presumptions." It also declared, "The City Council must take appropriate action to bring calmness and stability to our city's governmental functions."

During the session, Parks was restrained from vigorous questioning of Merit System Commission Chairman Robert Krogman by McCarthy, mayor pro tempore and acting chairman, who said, "I will not tolerate this sort of cross-examination."

Krogman declared that the whole thing was a misunderstanding and that the commission really did nothing more than adopt a report by one commissioner which was critical of three councilmen — McCarthy, Anthony and Parks — the last two of whom face possible recall action.

KROGMAN said the report was not meant to be a resolution to the council nor to represent the whole commission's views. The commission, however, is scheduled to meet Tuesday, 7:30 p.m., at Westminster City Hall, to prepare a final recommendation.

Another item on the council's agenda, also postponed to Monday night at 7:30, was: "analysis and discussion relative to forces and activities seemingly inimical to the city of Westminster."

McCarthy termed it a "curious item" and called for any "inimical items" germane to it. Anthony asked it be deferred to Monday.

THE LAST item, employment and a written contract for Westminster's controversial new administrator, Foster, was put off to the closed-door "regular special session."

It wasn't postponed, however, until after:

—Foster was defended by Anthony who said the administrator has been threatened with dismissal as part of the recall action.

—Foster's immediate predecessor, Eugene Asmus, said no cities in Los Angeles or Orange counties offer written contracts to the administrator, and that Foster "should be willing to stand the guff as I did."

—Foster declared, "I don't intend to stand alone any longer. I'll ask for a contract until Dec. 31."

—McCarthy said there have been "tremendous personal attacks on our administrator."

King to Lead Thousand in Selma March

SELMA, Ala. (UPI)—A Negro leader predicted Saturday that Dr. Martin Luther King's planned march on the Dallas County voter registration office Monday will be the "biggest demonstration Selma has ever seen."

About 3,400 persons have been arrested since King first kicked off a Negro voter registration drive in this west-central Alabama area four weeks ago.

Hosea Williams predicted 1,000 adults and hundreds of school children would follow King in his march.

Williams and other Negro leaders were busy Saturday organizing the demonstration down to the finest detail.

REPRESENTATIVES were sent to every Negro block to line up voter applicants, school children were urged to stay away from classes and workers were asked to remain away from their jobs.

A mass meeting is slated tonight to put the finishing touches on plans. King, who is spending the weekend at his home in Atlanta, is due to arrive Monday morning.

Negroes have applied to city officials for a parade permit, and although no official decision has been announced, informed sources indicated the permit would be granted.

City police have made relatively few of the arrests, but most of those they have made have been on charges of parading without a permit.

Most of the Negroes taken into custody have been arrested by Dallas County Sheriff Jim Clark, who was hospitalized Friday with chest pains.

NEVER MIND IF SALOME CAN SING--HUSH UP AND WATCH

NEW YORK (AP)—An Austrian soprano portrayed "Salome" at the Metropolitan Opera the other night, and the staid old place hasn't been the same since.

This new Salome, said one critic, came "complete with grind, bump and strip."

The publicity pictures that went to all the newspapers showed Maria Kouba, who plays the title role in "Salome," posing in a revealing two-piece outfit.

"SALOME," said Miss Kouba Saturday, "must have a great voice, she must look like a child and she must be a little sexy."

When Miss Kouba did the Dance of the Seven Veils on the Met stage, she managed it, said another critic, "very seductively, working with just two red veils and finally exposing a bikini-like business."

The first critic put it this way: "The dance was pure erotica, half-naked at the start and almost all-naked at the end, with Hawaiian hip roles and Egyptian belly rolls strategically diffused through the seven stages of denudation."

The 5-foot-4 Miss Kouba, married to a violinist at a Frankfurt, Germany, opera house, said her husband approves of her dancing.

Since she doesn't speak English well, some questions had to be put to her through a cousin, who relayed the answers.

Concerning her husband's approval, the relayed answer was: "Definitely he does, because he is also an artist. And she is not performing in a nightclub or some bar where she does some sort of striptease for money. She is doing it for the benefit of the role which requires her to do it. We definitely don't think it's too raw."

MARIA KOUBA
Her Husband Approves

Will her sexy performance increase attendance at the Met?

"We don't think that. We don't think people go to the Metropolitan Opera to see a sexy dance. The sexy dance is part of the whole opera and is definitely not the whole attraction. She's not a stripper."

Miss Kouba said she has played the part of Salome in various European cities, including Munich, London and Paris. Her performance here Friday night was her debut with the Met, and she will portray the part of the Biblical dancer again Monday night.

Said a third newspaper critic: "Her famous dance was predictably of the hootchy-kootchy variety—strip and all."

"SOMETIME before the end," said a fourth critic, "(she) is wearing hardly more than the law allows."

The Richard Strauss opera was first performed at the Met in 1907. It was withdrawn after one performance, says the reference work, "The Complete Opera Book," practically on command of the opera company's board of directors.

The initial impulse to banish it, the book adds, "is said to have come from a woman who sensed the brutality of the work under its mask of 'culture.'"

Fights Halt 'Deputy' on Italy Stage

ROME (AP)—Police and fist fights Saturday stopped the first attempt to stage Rolf Hochhuth's controversial play, "The Deputy," in Italy.

After brawling in and outside the theater, a former church in downtown Rome, police refused to allow the performance without certification that the building had been given a safety inspection.

Hochhuth's play, which has been attended by controversy wherever it has been performed, contends that the late Pope Pius XII failed to do enough to save Jews and others from Nazi extermination in World War II.

POPE PAUL and the Vatican have sharply disputed Hochhuth's contention. So far, no one has staged the play publicly in Italy, although there is no official ban.

Fist fights broke out outside the building as about 100 persons gathered, jeering, booing and demanding admission. A few were arrested.

MONKEY BUSINESS Space Test Foiled by Padded Rears

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP)—Six female monkeys have used their "college education" and well-padded derrieres to foil their trainers and cause a space flight experiment to be canceled.

The monkeys had been scheduled for tests in which their performance in a simulated space capsule while under exposure to radiation would be studied. Scientists at the Atomic Energy Commission's Los Alamos Laboratory wanted to learn what effects solar radiation would have on astronauts during manned Gemini flights.

But the monkey wrench went into the works when the "astronomers" discovered how to avoid—and thus ignore—electrical shocks.

The monkeys had been trained at the "monkey college" at Holloman Air Force Base, N.M., to operate the panels. If they responded properly to lights on the panels, they were rewarded with food or water. If not, they got a shock through the metal floor.

BUT BEING MACACA SPECIOSA monkeys, they are gifted with thick callous where they sit. After a little experimentation, they began to wedge their hands and feet against the plastic walls of the capsules, thus leaving only the callous exposed to the floor and avoiding effects of the current.

"There was no alternative but to cancel," a Los Alamos radiobiologist said, explaining that the shocks were necessary for keeping the animals' behavior predictable.

But the scientists said the monkeys didn't make monkeys of them.

The Macaca speciosa monkeys, which didn't reach the point of being exposed to radiation, will be retrained for other experiments.

And 12 Rhesus monkeys, which aren't so well padded, will be trained as their replacements in the space capsules.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Viet Nam Jitters Cause Worst Week in 6 Months

By C. J. PARNOW
NEW YORK (UPI)—Viet Nam jitters dominated trading on the New York Stock Exchange last week and the market barometer took their worst week-to-week fall in more than six months.

The attack on an American air base last weekend and the subsequent bombing of targets in North Viet Nam made traders and investors nervous enough to put a sizeable dent in the Dow-Jones Industrial held volume to its lowest level of the week.

Brokers, for the most part, said the long term trend is still intact and the sharp decline may have given the market a healthy shakeout. However, they warned that the hostilities in South Viet Nam probably will continue to jolt the market and swings may become wider.

Dow Jones Industrials were down 13.10 on the week at 258.47. Rails, already fairly well depressed, were off 2.80 at 208.18. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index dropped 1.12 to 86.17.

VOLUME totaled 29,674,210 shares compared with 29,207,443 shares a week before and 22,014,523 shares in the same week last year. Of the 1,526 issues traded, 871 declined, 25 to new 1964-65 lows while 487 advanced, 194 to new highs.

Texas Gulf Sulphur was the most active issue of the week. It advanced 2 1/2 to 65 1/2 on 489,200 shares. Expectations of exceptionally good earnings for 1965 handed Eastern Airlines a gain of 7 1/2 at 56 1/2 on 427,900 shares in second spot. Market observers are predicting profits of $4 a share.

Chrysler dropped a point to 56 1/2 on 407,300 shares in third place despite record sales and earnings and plans for 1-for-7 rights offering.

Airlines were strong on appointed when directors only declared the usual quarterly dividend. Some brokers attributed the decline to the dilution of the stock which will occur when the rights offering is made.

A BLOCK of 251,400 shares helped to put Del Webb on the active list.

The recently soaring blue-chip chemical section was hard hit in the decline. Eastman Kodak fell 5 1/2 on the week, losing most of it in Thursday's session. Du Pont skidded 1 1/2. Allied Chemical 2 1/2. Union Carbide 2 1/2. Monsanto 3 1/2. International Minerals & Chemical and Diamond Alkali were exceptions, rising 3 1/2 and 3 1/2 respectively.

Ford and General Motors dropped 1 1/2 each. American Motors held a small fractional gain. Studebaker rose 1/2 in fairly active dealings after it reported 1964 earnings of more than $8 million compared with a loss of over $16 million the year before. Steels stood up well and only fractional losses were recorded for the most part.

LEADING international oils were under pressure from President Johnson's proposals to stem the flow of gold through overseas investments.

Standard Oil (N.J.) and Continental Oil (N.J.) and Conoco 1 1/2. Sinclair Oil 1 1/2. Socony Mobil 3 1/2 and Amerasia 4.

also on 1954 earnings news. Braniff rose 4 1/2 and Continental rose 2 1/2. There have been new merger rumors linking the two lines.

THE DWINDLING U.S. gold supply and a second call from the French government for re-establishment of the gold standard boosted gold shares. American South African rose 2 1/2. Homestake 2 1/2. Dome Mines 2 and Campbell Red Lake 1 1/2.

Aircrafts moved slightly higher. Boeing rose 3. Douglas 2 1/2 and Cessna 2. Citidel, formerly Alco Products, rose 1/2 despite omission of the quarterly dividend. Comsat fell 4 1/2.

Polaroid was bid up 6 1/2. Xerox added 3 1/2. International Telephone dropped 2 1/2. General Electric skidded 2 1/2. Scovill Mfg. rose 2 1/2 on dividend news.

PURSUIT CAR RACES AT HIGH SPEEDS WITH INSTRUCTOR WATCHING STUDENT'S REACTIONS

Police Pursuit School Shows How to Nab Speeders Safely

By BILL DUNCAN

A speeding motorist roared past a patrol car operated by rookie Downey policeman Bud Walters, 32, in the early morning hours one day last year. Walters went in pursuit at high speeds.

Suddenly the motorist U-turned and struck Walters' patrol car a glancing blow. The patrol car reeled out of control, skidding toward a row of trees.

Walters guided his vehicle away from the trees and continued the chase.

Eventually with the aid of other patrol units he captured the speeder, a 24-year-old man who later admitted he was "just trying to avoid a citation for speeding."

as well as policemen from as far away as Las Vegas.

THE TRAINING program is under the direction of the Los Angeles County Automobile Safety Program. Ryan and another former highway patrolman, Russ Del Dotto, conduct the school.

The instructors are deputies attached to the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Training Academy. Sheriff Peter Pichess requires all his deputies to take the training. Deputies also must undergo periodic refresher courses.

During the training, the policeman must drive at high speeds over a 1.9-mile course laid out to include almost every hazard he will encounter in hot pursuit of a fleeing car or just rolling Code 3 (red light and siren) on an emergency call.

"The first thing we do," comments Sgt. Don Dimarzo of Lakewood, chief instructor, "is to deflate the trainees' ego about what good drivers they are."

DIMARZO said most police think the patrol car siren a sure warning that every other motorist is going to clear a path for the patrol car.

"We give them the shock treatment," Dimarzo explains. "The trainee is put in a patrol car which is to be pursued by a second unit with a blaring siren. The student radios the word 'now' when he is able to hear the siren."

At freeway speeds the siren is not heard until the pursuing vehicle is alongside the student's patrol car.

"For the student, that bit of dramatics knocks the wail out of the affect of a siren," Dimarzo comments.

The training program includes instructing the lawmen to make a "panic stop," a four-wheel locked brake skid at 60 miles an hour. This illustrates in black tire marks the distance needed to stop at high speeds—another shock device.

The rule of thumb for panic stops—the type needed at high speeds—is one and a half feet per second, per mile per hour. At 60 miles an hour, it measures 90 feet per second.

THE TRAINEE then drives over a "skid pan" D-shaped track smeared with soap chips and wet down for a slippery surface. The tests teach the driver to control a vehicle through use of steering, throttle and the mass weight of the vehicle. The soapy track resembles the surface of a rain slick or iced street.

In another test, the student is required to drive forward and backward through a 150-foot-long, 12-foot-wide dog leg alley to demonstrate how steering geometry of front wheels compounds effort to control the vehicle when driving backwards in a limited area. The time limit forward to clear the maze is seven seconds; backwards 11 seconds.

On the switchback course, the student must make a U-turn in an area too cramped to allow the turn to be completed in one try. He learns to back his vehicle to change the radius of the turn in a restricted area.

But the real test comes on the race course. The student drives the vehicle at operational speeds of 20 to 35 miles an hour.

The driver must negotiate a serpentine course at 40 miles an hour, accelerate to speeds of 65 miles an hour, whip through a sharp curve at 40 miles an hour, brake to 20 miles an hour to take a blind turn under a bridge, accelerate to 40 miles an hour, then to 50 miles an hour and on to 65 miles an hour.

HE THEN approaches a 180-degree turn which he must take at 45 miles an hour, then slow to 30 miles an hour to begin the serpentine. During his travels, the student must make radio contact with a control tower to teach self-control under stress.

The driver is taught to keep both hands on the wheel, spaced evenly apart—a measure which gives him complete steering control at all times.

It was this lesson of hand control steering that allowed Patrolman Walters to steer away from a collision.

Beach Combing

With Malcolm Epley

AT A CIVIC luncheon the other day the diners got into a discussion of urban vs rural problems and Dr. Carl McIntosh, the State College chief, raised a point. "Is there really much difference," he asked, "between the city kid who steals a hubcap and the farm boy who steals a watermelon?"

Come to think of it, there really isn't. Yet watermelon thievery has always been looked upon as an amusing prank and we've all heard dignified, law-abiding adults brag about their youthful forays in the farmer's melon patch. It was clean rural fun.

On the other hand, hubcap thievery is commonly regarded as a rather sinister symptom of urban juvenile delinquency. For some reason, an offense committed in town is rated as worse than the similar thing in the country.

Hubcap thievery goes into the juvenile delinquency statistics, but one doubts if watermelon swiping is extensively recorded there, or even was when more kids lived on farms and made regular forays in season. Farmers fired shotgun loads of rock salt at shadowy figures and let it go at that. Hubcap theft victims report to police.

It seems that city kids are deprived of opportunities of committing "harmless" offenses that elders tend to condone because they pulled some of that sort of thing themselves.

NOW THAT we're going to get some new islands in the roadstead in front of our city, the subject of naming them comes up.

The islands, as you know, will provide drill sites for the development of the immense oil field under the tidelands and nearby uplands area. There are elaborate requirements for landscaping, undergrounding pumping equipment, etc. After the drill rigs come down the islands should be nothing of their basic purpose, which can be pretty ugly if not hidden.

These, as planned, should be pretty tropical-like islands, and they should be identified by interesting, romantic names.

Reader Ian Henderson has been thinking about this, and proposes that names be devised by using combinations of the letters in the name of Long Beach. He mentioned Glean Boch, Haloc-Bing and Abbel-Cong, none of which appeal much to me. Too harsh. But it's an idea. Maybe the local schools could stage a contest for the selection of island names.

LOCAL PEOPLE who cast bread upon the waters in the shape of shipments of "used" Christmas cards to foreign lands have been getting back some pleasant surprises.

Ni wa Keema Camp Fire Girls, using an address given here, sent some cards to Sister Marie Josepha in Manila, P.I. They have received a letter from Sister Marie which has greatly impressed and inspired the girls. She said she cuts out the colorful pictures, pastes them on colored carton, and distributes them among the 850 indigent patients in her hospital. Her expressions of deep gratitude are most touching.

The girls are making up another package of things the Sister reports she can use at her mission post.

And W. C. Laughlin, who sent cards to the Bethel Home for Happy Children in Pusan, Korea, has received a similar letter. This is from Miss Suh Woon Lim, Superintendent, 603 Cho Up Dong, Pusan-ka, Pusan.

E. Vanucie, 3018 E. 10th St., also got such a letter from Suh Woon Lim. Judging from the calls for information and the reports from card receivers, it appears that Long Beach people again this year have sent a post-holiday flood of colorful cards to places where they could be used. Some local groups who wanted them called up to report they were overwhelmed.

Six Panels Set Progress Study

Six thought-provoking discussion panels will key the fifth annual Congress for Community Progress all day Thursday in the Pacific Coast Club.

The sponsoring Chamber of Commerce announced these panels, of salient interest to Long Beach, 1965, and the future:

Bid Check on Cerritos Canal Set

P. T. Los Angeles Bureau

Bids on improvement of another section of Los Cerritos Channel in East Long Beach will be opened by the County Flood Control District at 11 a.m. Friday.

The contract will involve deepening the channel and adding rock along its sides from Seventh Street north to Atherton Street.

Estimated cost of the work is about $500,000, according to M. E. Salisbury, chief engineer of the district.

THE JOB will include removing about 51,200 cubic yards of material from the channel, and placing more than 58,000 tons of stones along the banks to reduce erosion.

The improvement will not be started until after April 15, the approximate end of the current storm season, Salisbury said. The work will take about seven months.

Improvement of the channel to the south, from Seventh Street to Pacific Coast Highway, recently was completed under a $565,275 contract.

Laundry License Fee Revision Is Proposed

Owners of laundries with substantial numbers of employees will get a license break under ordinance amendments proposed to the City Council by administrative officials.

City Manager John R. Mansell has recommended revision of the fee schedules adopted in 1962 which have the effect of penalizing laundries with larger payrolls.

The current charge is a flat annual fee of $100, plus $2 for each employee in excess of two. The surcharge was added in 1962. Since the laundry industry typically employs large work forces, the result in some instances was to increase the charge 100% or more, Mansell said.

He proposed a new schedule under which the extra charges would be $1.25 per employee from 3 to 100, 60 cents per employee for the next 400 and 35 cents per employee for all over 500.

At his request, the council has referred the recommendation to its Ordinance Committee. Next meeting of the committee is scheduled for March 1.

N.J. Dinner Today in Los Angeles

The New Jersey-California Organization will meet at noon today for a potluck dinner in the South Room of West Hollywood Park, 647 N. Vicente Blvd., Los Angeles.

Police Pursuit School Shows How to Nab Speeders Safely

By BILL DUNCAN

A speeding motorist roared past a patrol car operated by rookie Downey policeman Bud Walters, 32, in the early morning hours one day last year. Walters went in pursuit at high speeds.

Suddenly the motorist U-turned and struck Walters' patrol car a glancing blow. The patrol car reeled out of control, skidding toward a row of trees.

Walters guided his vehicle away from the trees and continued the chase.

Eventually with the aid of other patrol units he captured the speeder, a 24-year-old man who later admitted he was "just trying to avoid a citation for speeding."

PATROLMAN Walters attributes his quick performance to a training course he took some months earlier which taught him how to get out of the very situation he found himself in when the patrol car skidded toward the trees.

He is a graduate of the Los Angeles County "Pursuit School," an eight-hour accelerated course designed to teach lawmen how to safely pursue a speeding motorist. "I would have been seriously injured or perhaps even killed if my patrol car had crashed," Walters says.

The school started five years ago when Matt Ryan, a retired California Highway Patrolman, became disturbed over the number of deaths and injuries of lawmen who wrecked patrol cars while chasing speeders or felons.

Ryan borrowed a county car, took six sheriff's deputies down to the concrete-lined Los Angeles riverbed, and started the first pursuit class at 60 miles an hour. This today the school is operated on a regulation racetrack at Pomona Fairgrounds and trains not only sheriff's deputies, but lawmen from Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and Ventura Counties.

The rule of thumb for panic stops—the type needed at high speeds—is one and a half feet per second, per mile per hour. At 60 miles an hour, it measures 90 feet per second.

THE TRAINING program is under the direction of the Los Angeles County Automobile Safety Program. Ryan and another former highway patrolman, Russ Del Dotto, conduct the school.

The instructors are deputies attached to the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Training Academy. Sheriff Peter P. Chess requires all his deputies to take the training. Deputies also must undergo periodic refresher courses.

During the training, the policeman must drive at high speeds over a 1.9-mile course laid out to include almost every hazard he will encounter in hot pursuit of a fleeing car or just rolling Code 3 (red light and siren) on an emergency call.

"The first thing we do," comments Sgt. Don Dimarzo of Lakewood, chief instructor, "is to deflate the trainees' ego about what good drivers they are."

DIMARZO said most police think the patrol car siren a sure warning that every other motorist is going to clear a path for the patrol car.

"We give them the shock treatment," Dimarzo explains. "The trainee is put in a patrol car which is to be pursued by a second unit with a blaring siren. The student radios the word 'now' when he is able to hear the siren."

At freeway speeds the siren is not heard until the pursuing vehicle is alongside the student's patrol car.

"For the student, that bit of dramatics knocks the wail out of the affect of a siren," Dimarzo comments.

The training program includes instructing the lawmen to make a "panic stop," a four-wheel locked brake skid at 60 miles an hour. This illustrates in black tire marks the distance needed to stop at high speeds—another shock device.

The rule of thumb for panic stops—the type needed at high speeds—is one and a half feet per second, per mile per hour. At 60 miles an hour, it measures 90 feet per second.

THE TRAINEE then drives over a "skid pan" D-shaped track smeared with soap chips, and wet down for a slippery surface. The tests teach the driver to control a vehicle through use of steering, throttle and the mass weight of the vehicle. The soapy track resembles the surface of a rain slick or ice street.

In another test, the student is required to drive forward and backward through a 150-foot-long, 12-foot-wide dog leg alley to demonstrate how steering geometry of front wheels compounds effort to control the vehicle when driving backwards in a limited area. The time limit forward to clear the maze is seven seconds; backwards 11 seconds.

On the switchback course, the student must make a U-turn in an area too cramped, ure which gives him complete steering control at all times.

It was this lesson of hand control steering that allowed Patrolman Walters to steer away from a collision.

The driver is taught to keep both hands on the wheel, spaced evenly apart—a measure which gives him complete steering control at all times.

But the real test comes on the race course. The student drives the vehicle at operational speeds of 20 to 60 miles an hour.

The driver must negotiate a serpentine course at 30 miles an hour, accelerate to speeds of 65 miles an hour, whip through a sharp curve at 40 miles an hour, brake to a blind turn under a bridge, accelerate to 40 miles an hour, then to 50 miles an hour and on to 65 miles an hour.

HE THEN approaches a 180-degree turn which he must take at 45 miles an hour, then slow to 30 miles an hour to begin the serpentine. During his travels, the student must make radio contact with a control tower to teach self-control under stress.

Bid Check Laundry License Fee Revision Is Proposed on Cerritos Canal Set

L. P. T. Los Angeles Bureau

Bids on improvement of another section of Los Cerritos Channel in East Long Beach will be opened by the County Flood Control District at 11 a.m. Friday.

The contract will involve deepening the channel and adding rock along its sides from Seventh Street north to Atherton Street.

Estimated cost of the work is about $300,000, according to M. E. Salisbury, chief engineer of the district.

THE JOB will include removing about 51,200 cubic yards of material from the channel, and placing more than 58,000 tons of stones along the banks to reduce erosion.

The improvement will not be started until after April 15, the approximate end of the current storm season, Salisbury said. The work will take about seven months.

Improvement of the channel to the south, from Seventh Street to Pacific Coast Highway, recently was completed under a $565,275 contract.

N.J. Dinner Today In Los Angeles

The New Jersey-California Organization will meet at noon today for a potluck dinner in the South Room of West Hollywood Park, 647 N. Vicente Blvd., Los Angeles.

Owners of laundries with substantial numbers of employees will get a license break under ordinance amendments proposed to the City Council by administrative officials.

City Manager John R. Mansell has recommended revision of the fee schedules adopted in 1962 which have the effect of penalizing laundries with larger payrolls.

The current charge is a flat annual fee of $100, plus $2 for each employee in excess of two. The surcharge was added in 1962. Since the laundry industry typically employs large work forces, the result in some instances was to increase the charge 100% or more, Mansell said.

He proposed a new schedule under which the extra charges would be $1.25 per employee from 3 to 100, 60 cents per employee for the next 400 and 35 cents per employee for all over 500.

At his request, the council has referred the recommendation to its Ordinance Committee. Next meeting of the committee is scheduled for March 1.

GOP Needs Spokesmen

THE PREDICTION by Ohio Congressman Frank Bow, in an interview in Long Beach this week, that the Republican party "will come back strong in 1966 and take over command of government in 1968" may well be fulfilled. But it won't be unless Republicans accept more readily their responsibility as the party of the opposition.

While numerous Republicans are heard from, their voices sound curiously muted. None appears really eager to speak for Republicanism or to hold the Democratic administration responsible for its conduct. Criticism, when voiced, is of an abstract nature. Republicans, in a mood of introspection, are for the most part just muttering to themselves.

Many appear to have been convinced by the overwhelming defeat of last November that their party is no longer acceptable to the American people.

We refuse to believe that the defeat of one presidential candidate represents a repudiation of everything the Republican party has ever meant. On the contrary, the rejection of Barry Goldwater was the rejection of many things for which the "mainstream" of the party has never stood.

The Republican party vacated one of its traditional principles in 1964 and permitted the opposition to become the sole occupant. We refer to the historic Republican principle of civil rights. If the party is to make a comeback, it must again assert that principle without equivocation. Moreover, it must not be embarrassed to voice its traditional demand for fiscal responsibility. Americans support Democratic candidates despite, not because of, Democratic recklessness with the nation's substance.

Moderate Republicanism makes a great deal of sense. That it is acceptable has been demonstrated by such men as Dwight Eisenhower, Sen. Thomas Kuchel, and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. The Republican party can produce a strong program from its ancient heritage and from the wisdom of its successful modern politicians.

What is lacking at this time is courageous leadership to articulate the principles and to challenge the Democratic administration when it violates those principles or neglects its responsibilities. Unfortunately, we see no sign that the prominent figures of the Republican party grasp the importance of outspoken and responsible opposition. The ship is drifting because it has no helmsmen.

Dumke Proposal

GLENN S. DUMKE, chancellor of the California State Colleges, has offered a suggestion which, if adopted, can prevent embarrassments such as the one which occurred recently when fund shortages forced a cut in professors' pay.

Having only limited control over money appropriated in the college budget, the trustees of the state college system were unable to make the necessary transfer to compensate for the shortage in the salary fund.

The shortage, which occurred through a series of miscalculations, conceivably could be repeated in the future. Dumke has compared the science of estimating future salary needs with that of predicting "how many inches of rain will fall."

To blunt the consequences of forecasts that go wrong, Dumke suggests that the trustees be given greater fiscal autonomy. Given greater latitude and flexibility in the control of funds, they could meet needs instead of cutting salaries.

The recent episode has illustrated a weakness in the system, and Dumke's suggestion for correcting that weakness deserves thoughtful consideration.

Secretary of Labor Taking Orders From Union Leaders

WASHINGTON — A major crisis in labor-management relations in America is building up under the very eyes of the President and Congress—and yet virtually nothing is being done about it. Here are some of the developments:

1. A devastating strike, shutting down maritime transportation at Atlantic and Gulf Coast ports, cost $2 billion and caused untold damage to business operations due to shipping delays. Yet Congress did not even take up the subject, much less consider any legislation to prevent a recurrence.

2. Labor unions and the companies signed contracts in all but two ports, but the workers nevertheless continue to stay on strike. The union members in cities where agreements with management were signed refused to return to work until settlements were reached in all the other ports. It's an example of a far-reaching monopoly.

3. Walter Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers Union, confers with President Johnson and then, on the steps of the White House, announces that his union is seeking to merge with the International Union of Electrical Workers, thus adding 300,000 members to an organization already composed of nearly 1,200,000 auto workers. No intimidation comes from the President as to whether he approves such a merger. As for the Department of Justice, it, too, is silent.

4. A hotly contested election in the Steelworkers' Union, with 976,000 members, has just emphasized the strong undercurrents of friction which exercise a tremendous influence on collective bargaining negotiations, as each candidate vies with the other in promising to win bigger and bigger benefits from the employers under threat of a strike.

5. The Department of Labor has become an adjunct of the AFL-CIO, and the Secretary of Labor is told what to do by the union chieftains. John A. Crines, labor-relations specialist for the Wall Street Journal, writes as follows:

"W. Willard Wirtz is discovering that being Secretary of Labor often also requires being labor's Secretary. Put another way, Mr. Wirtz is getting some practical lessons in how his freedom of action can be sharply curbed by the wants of the AFL-CIO.

The federation feels such a strong proprietary interest in the Johnson administration's activities that it claims a veto power over Mr. Wirtz. Three times in recent weeks the Secretary has started out to do something and has found the considerable bulk of federation

President George Meany blocking the way."

It is reported that the Secretary of Labor has to consult with union officials about appointments in his department, and that he recently couldn't remove one man and replace him with another just because the labor unions objected.

It has been customary for several years now, under both Republican and Democratic administrations, to have a Secretary of Labor who not only is friendly to labor but acts virtually as an agent of the labor unions. Nobody in the cabinet has any corresponding position in behalf of management. It is often assumed that the Secretary of Commerce performs this task—but he doesn't. Theoretically, an assistant secretary in the Department of Labor is supposed to express the business viewpoint. His is a small voice, however, in a department that is committed to take labor's side and actively espouse it.

The only remedy lies in giving management a representative equal in stature to the Secretary of Labor, or in lodging more power in the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service and separating it completely from Department of Labor influence. This independent agency could deal, officially and unofficially, with labor-management relations for the purpose of preventing strikes. A partisan of labor cannot solve thorny questions in labor-management relations. It has to be done by a team representing all sides.

Apparently the "Businessmen for Johnson" group, which was rather conspicuous in the 1964 presidential campaign, hasn't been able to persuade the administration that they should no longer be partisan in behalf of either management or labor and that the public interest demands impartiality and an equitable approach.

THE FACT is that the labor unions have a big vested interest in the Johnson administration. It is estimated that in some states the amount of money contributed by the labor unions to the Johnson-Humphrey campaign was far in excess of what the regular political organizations raised.

The whole labor-management problem is getting worse every year, not only because of the serious strikes that break out but because the collective bargaining process itself today forces management, under threat of costly strikes, to yield more and more labor-union demands. It is a system which the government tolerates even though the public interest suffers.

SACRAMENTO—California's population explosion is the greatest thing since the soapbox for fiscal politicians.

It provides a built-in excuse for the annual ritual of soaking taxpayers a little harder. If it weren't for population growth and the tears that flow from crowded classrooms, no telling what excuses public officials would think up.

All California tax raises—local, county and state—generally are blamed on the population explosion. And politicians must sigh with relief whenever a new resident crosses the border. The newcomer will be an excuse for a bigger tax bite.

"It costs money to build a new city the size of Atlantis every year," taxpayers are told grimly. Such growth talk usually is a prelude to clobbering 'em with higher taxes.

You could almost feel the vibrations of the population explosion this year when Gov. Brown unveiled his latest record budget—a $4 billion spending proposal that has been dubbed a "bare-bones" program.

The governor has stumped the state to drum up support for it. And California growth is the big story—the big excuse.

However, Gov. Brown gave the state some real plain talk at a press conference the other day. With tongue in cheek, the governor declared:

"I wish we could have some sort of an immigration quota at the present time in California. I wouldn't make it only on how much money they have in their pocket, but I'd like to have a little moratorium on more people coming in here so we can catch up with the growth."

Subsequently, Gov. Brown called for creation of a State Tourism Agency to lure even more persons to California.

Though it may be illegal to bar residents at the border, the Governor's two ideas for curbing immigration and creating a tourism agency are more compatible than they seem at first blush.

Obviously, the new California Tourism Agency should concentrate on getting persons to tour anywhere but in California.

Nixon Commentary Could Be Bid for GOP Leader's Niche

I, P-T Political Editor

"AS I LOOK OVER MY CAREER," said Richard Nixon, "it seems I've been over-nominated and under-elected."

It was the start of a pretty good stand-up comic routine as preface to his deadly serious recommendations to quarantine North Viet Nam by air strikes against Viet Cong supply lines.

Warming up his Lincoln Club audience Thursday night in Los Angeles, Nixon said he, like Lincoln, might have done better with a beard in 1960 so he could have dispensed with catastrophic TV make-up in his first Kennedy debate.

Politics has contrasts and parallels, the former Veep pointed out—in 1949 Harry Truman "was giving 'em hell and here in 1965 LBJ is giving 'em heaven." Then there was a chicken in every pot, now it's a Lady Bird in the White House and a Thunderbird in every garage.

Defending school prayers, Nixon said he thinks the kids have a right to know something about heaven now—before Earl Warren reapportions it.

MUCH MORE important than the gags was Nixon's high-caliber delivery on Viet Nam. Without blaming the President, or anybody else, for what has gone before, Nixon simply laid down what he considers to be the well-reasoned position for Republicans to take as the loyal opposition.

This kind of opposition raises argument and debate but not generally the rancor of the partisan donnybrook at which Nixon is expert. This approach—clean of scapegoating and innuendo—arrests and compels the fair-minded listener of both parties.

Two immediate speculations bounce up. Wouldn't reason work in a presidential campaign without resort to the black and white judgments scornfully delivered from both sides? And, isn't this the voice of statesmanship with which Nixon intends to reinstall himself as top man in the national Republican Party?

Nixon's Viet Nam recommendation for "consistent and continuous" air strikes against Red staging areas and supply lines rather than "hit-for-tat, stop-and-start" retaliation has a parallel in GOP leadership. Shouldn't the party have a strong national voice of leadership rather than willy nilly retaliation from many sources?

Nixon replied that the party has never had a national, voice-of-the-party leader in an off year except when there was a Republican president. And he looks for no change. Leadership will continue to come from the GOP delegation in Congress, from the Republican governors and from top echelon party men not now in office.

WHETHER calculated or not, Nixon's specifications for loyal opposition seem to reserve for himself a good chance at becoming the chief voice of the party.

And Nixon is certainly not the last to recognize the merit of some of former Sen. Goldwater's positions, now being widely approved. Significant was the recent admonition to a Democratic club by Dr. Leroy C. Hardy, State College-Long Beach political science professor, that if Democrats hope to win elections they must face up to the fact that some tenets of Goldwater's program in the last presidential campaign are valid.

As there was once a "new Nixon," it's conceivable that a "new Goldwater," consistent to principle but divorced from the minority, hysterical fringe could arise from last fall's ashes not only as his party's leader but as a respected national voice.

Viet Nam a Big Question Mark

EDITOR:

I read your editorials almost every day and agree with you the majority of the time. However, I disagree with your editorial "Leave Viet Nam to Whom?"

Why does the U. S. think that 20,000 Americans can do what 400,000 Frenchmen could not do? Could it be that due to Eisenhower's laziness he let John Foster Dulles get this country into this mess?

Why don't the South Vietnamese infiltrate and fight the North Vietnamese? Why do the South Vietnamese want the Yanks to go home? Why is there a greater will to fight by the north than the south?

Why were there no casualties by South Viet Nam at Pleiku and how under these circumstances can we be sure that the North Vietnamese did not have plenty of help in that rotten and costly raid? Why does the present government want

Maxwell Taylor out of Viet Nam? Why isn't this a United Nations problem instead of a solo United States problem?

Why have we lost almost 400 men if we are merely advisers?

Executions Make Us All Murderers

EDITOR:

I am in full accord with Governor Brown on his stand against capital punishment. I cannot conceive how anyone professing to be a Christian or a member of any religion can possibly approve of capital punishment. The Ten Commandments include one which teaches us: "Thou shalt not kill." From the people who are for capital punishment down to the judge, jury and executioner, all are guilty of breaking this commandment.

It has been proved that capital punishment does not deter crime. The criminal has no fear of death. Living the rest of his life confined to prison with absolutely no chance of reprieve, each day with his conscience, would be a much greater punishment, which is God's way of helping him repent for what he has done.

Saving humanity, not destroying it, is what we all should strive for. Capital punishment is not the answer. God giveth and God taketh away, not man.

Claims ACLU Made False Accusations

EDITOR:

The time has come for an official rebuke of the Berkeley-Albany Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union for its unfounded and irresponsible charge of police brutality during the recent arrests at the University of California.

I was present during the demonstration which was fomented by leaders of the Free Speech Movement. I know of the planning sessions of law enforcement officials charged with the responsibility of handling this crisis. I watched the actual arrests as they were made.

At no time did I see any misconduct by any law enforcement officer. In fact the officers were most polite despite the action of the demonstrators.

At no time were improper procedures or questionable practices discussed or used as was erroneously alleged by this chapter of the ACLU. An accurate statement of the facts would report that the demonstrators themselves were involved in "improper procedures and questionable practices."

The charge was made that responsible persons were excluded from witnessing these arrests. That is not true. Some persons were excluded for their own safety; that is often necessary in cases such as this one. However, as previously stated, I witnessed the proceedings, was never asked to leave and was not excluded from anything I attempted to observe.

This charge by the Berkeley-Albany Chapter of the ACLU is but one more tactic to draw the public's attention away from the lawless tactics of the Free Speech Movement.

Law enforcement officers deserve our respect. Unfounded charges of police misconduct deserve our repudiation and disrespect.

However, Gov. Brown gave the state some real plain talk at a press conference the other day. With tongue in cheek, the governor declared:

"I wish we could have some sort of an immigration quota at the present time in California. I wouldn't make it only on how much money they have in their pocket, but I'd like to have a little moratorium on more people coming in here so we can catch up with the growth."

Subsequently, Gov. Brown called for creation of a State Tourism Agency to lure even more persons to California.

Though it may be illegal to bar residents at the border, the Governor's two ideas for curbing immigration and creating a tourism agency are more compatible than they seem at first blush.

Obviously, the new California Tourism Agency should concentrate on getting persons to tour anywhere but in California.

Nixon Commentary Could Be Bid for GOP Leader's Niche

I, P-T Political Editor

"AS I LOOK OVER MY CAREER," said Richard Nixon, "it seems I've been over-nominated and under-elected."

It was the start of a pretty good stand-up comic routine as preface to his deadly serious recommendations to quarantine North Vietnam by air strikes against Viet Cong supply lines.

Warming up his Lincoln Club audience Thursday night in Los Angeles, Nixon said he, like Lincoln, might have done better with a beard in 1960 so he could have dispensed with catastrophic TV make-up in his first Kennedy debate.

Politics has contrasts and parallels, the former Veep pointed out—in 1948 Harry Truman "was giving 'em hell and here in 1965 LBJ is giving 'em heaven." Then there was a chicken in every pot, now it's a Lady Bird in the White House and a Thunderbird in every garage.

Defending school prayers, Nixon said he thinks the kids have a right to know something about heaven now—before Earl Warren reapportions it.

MUCH MORE important than the gags was Nixon's high-caliber delivery on Viet Nam. Without blaming the President, or anybody else, for what has gone before, Nixon simply laid down what he considers to be the well-reasoned position for Republicans to take as the loyal opposition.

This kind of opposition raises argument and debate but not generally the rancor of the partisan donnybrook at which Nixon is expert. This approach—clean of scapegoating and innuendo—arrests and compels the fair-minded listener of both parties.

Two immediate speculations bounce up. Wouldn't reason work in a presidential campaign without resort to the black and white judgments scornfully delivered from both sides? And, isn't this the voice of statesmanship with which Nixon intends to reinstall himself as top man in the national Republican Party?

Nixon's Viet Nam recommendation for "consistent and continuous" air strikes against Red staging areas and supply lines rather than "tit-for-tat, stop-and-start" retaliation has a parallel in GOP leadership. Shouldn't the party have a strong national voice of leadership rather than willy nilly retaliation from many sources?

Nixon replied that the party has never had a national, voice-of-the-party leader in an off year except when there was a Republican president. And he looks for no change. Leadership will continue to come from the GOP delegation in Congress, from the Republican governors and from top echelon party men not now in office.

WHETHER calculated or not, Nixon's specifications for loyal opposition seem to reserve for himself a good chance at becoming the chief voice of the party.

And Nixon is certainly not the last to recognize the merit of some of former Sen. Goldwater's positions, now being widely approved. Significant was the recent admonition to a Democratic club by Dr. Leroy C. Hardy, State College-Long Beach political science professor, that if Democrats hope to win elections they must face up to the fact that some tenets of Goldwater's program in the last presidential campaign are valid.

As there was once a "new Nixon," it's conceivable that a "new Goldwater," consistent to principle but divorced from the minority, hysterical fringe could arise from last fall's ashes not only as his party's leader but as a respected national voice.

Viet Nam a Big Question Mark

EDITOR:

I read your editorials almost every day and agree with you the majority of the time. However, I disagree with your editorial "Leave Viet Nam to Whom?"

Why does the U. S. think that 20,000 Americans can do what 400,000 Frenchmen could not do? Could it be that due to Eisenhower's laziness he let John Foster Dulles get this country into this mess?

Why don't the South Vietnamese infiltrate and fight the North Vietnamese? Why do the South Vietnamese want the Yanks to go home? Why is there a greater will to fight by the north than the south?

Why were there no casualties by South Viet Nam at Pleiku and how under these circumstances can we be sure that the North Vietnamese did not have plenty of help in that rotten and costly raid? Why does the present government want

Maxwell Taylor out of Viet Nam? Why isn't this a United Nations problem instead of a solo United States problem?

Why have we lost almost 400 men if we are merely advisers?

Executions Make Us All Murderers

EDITOR:

I am in full accord with Governor Brown on his stand against capital punishment. I cannot conceive how anyone professing to be a Christian or a member of any religion can possibly approve of capital punishment. The Ten Commandments include one which teaches us: "Thou shalt not kill." From the people who are for capital punishment down to the judge, jury and executioner, all are guilty of breaking this commandment.

It has been proved that capital punishment does not deter crime. The criminal has no fear of death. Living the rest of his life confined to prison with absolutely no chance of reprieve, each day with his conscience, would be a much greater punishment, which is God's way of helping him repent for what he has done.

Saving humanity, not destroying it, is what we all should strive for. Capital punishment is not the answer. God giveth and God taketh away, not man.

Claims ACLU Made False Accusations

EDITOR:

The time has come for an official rebuke of the Berkeley-Albany Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union for its unfounded and irresponsible charge of police brutality during the recent arrests at the University of California.

I was present during the demonstration which was fomented by leaders of the Free Speech Movement. I know of the planning sessions of law enforcement officials charged with the responsibility of handling this crisis. I watched the actual arrests as they were made.

At no time did I see any misconduct by any law enforcement officer. In fact the officers were most polite despite the action of the demonstrators.

At no time were improper procedures or questionable practices discussed or used as was erroneously alleged by this chapter of the ACLU. An accurate statement of the facts would report that the demonstrators themselves were involved in "improper procedures and questionable practices."

The charge was made that responsible persons were excluded from witnessing these arrests. That is not true. Some persons were excluded for their own safety; that is often necessary in cases such as this one. However, as previously stated, I witnessed the proceedings, was never asked to leave and was not excluded from anything I attempted to observe.

This charge by the Berkeley-Albany Chapter of the ACLU is but one more tactic to draw the public's attention away from the lawless tactics of the Free Speech Movement.

Law enforcement officers deserve our respect. Unfounded charges of police misconduct deserve our repudiation and disrespect.

No Official Answer Sheet in Alabama Vote Testing

SELMA, Ala. (AP)—If you were registering to vote in Selma, you might have to answer these questions:

—How many states must approve a constitutional amendment in order to make it a law.

—Who approves a pistol permit in Alabama.

—What payment of a tax in order to vote is called.

—And, are lotteries legal in the state.

The Alabama attorney general's office listed the answer to these four questions as: 38 states are required to approve a constitutional amendment; sheriff in county where the pistol owner resides must issue permit; a tax to vote is called a poll tax; and lotteries are illegal in Alabama.

However, there is not an official list of answers to the numerous questions.

These four questions are among the hundreds which appear on the controversial Part III inserts on Alabama's voters registration test. The test, directly or indirectly, is the cause of racial disturbances in Selma and Marion, and of court cases ranging from parading without a permit charges to a request for a federal injunction abolishing the test.

There are 100 of these Part III inserts, containing eight questions each on the U.S. Constitution and state laws, and a series of excerpts from the Constitution.

Their purpose, according to the Alabama Supreme Court, is to test the literacy and knowledge of citizenship of potential voters.

The effect, according to U.S. Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, is to discriminate against Negroes attempting to register.

Katzenbach claims the test is too difficult, much more so than previous tests under which most white voters—and few Negroes were registered.

Negroes in Selma have been demonstrating in the streets to protest the slowness of the registration process. Their attorneys have sought, unsuccessfully, to gain a federal court order requiring the Dallas County board of registrars in Selma to remain open six days a week so that more Negroes may register.

In Montgomery County, a federal judge has restrained the board of registrars from refusing to register applicants solely for failing the test.

The present test is the result of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Prior to passage of that bill, the tests on the Constitution were administered orally by the registrars—a practice prohibited by the act—and the new Part III inserts were issued by the Supreme Court last August to replace that oral section of the test.

A prospective voter is handed a looseleaf notebook, filled with the various inserts, and is told to open it at random. The test to which he opens the book is the one he must take.

If, for example, the applicant opened the book to Insert 32, he would face the questions listed earlier. He also would be asked to copy a portion of the Constitution from among several or that insert as it was dictated to him by a registrar.

One of them is: "The judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States by citizens of another state or by citizens or subjects of any foreign state."

Then, he must answer a series of questions dealing with the extracts on that test. The one relating to this excerpt is "The Supreme Court has no authority to hear a case which is attempted to be brought against a state by either of two types of citizens, those of (blank) or of a (blank)."

There are no answers accompanying the tests. While the answers to the third portion dealing with the excerpts from the Constitution are contained in the quotes, the answers to the wide-ranging first section would have to be known or looked up by the registrars themselves before they could grade the tests.

New Navy Undersecretary Is Much-Decorated Army Col.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON is to be commended for his appointment of Col. Kenneth E. Belieu, U.S. Army, Ret., as Navy Undersecretary. Senate confirmation is expected within 10 days.

The appointment is important; the post has particular significance in view of the increasing tensions in Southeast Asia.

Col. Belieu's appointment will do much to encourage servicemen and civilians who make government service a career.

A combat hero, admired by servicemen, Col. Belieu has been courageous and dedicated to the welfare of the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps.

The former Undersecretary of the Navy Paul B. Fay resigned several weeks ago to return to San Francisco.

It seemed to many in government that the President should and would name Col. Belieu who has been the Assistant Navy Secretary for Installations and Logistics for four years. President Kennedy appointed Col. Be-Lieu upon the recommendation of the then Vice President Johnson, who has known the retired army officer for ten years.

In the past several weeks, the President has properly taken time to review the Pentagon situation. He appointed the colonel after thorough consideration. There were about a dozen other aspirants.

THERE IS speculation that Belieu may be named Navy Secretary if Secretary Paul H. Nitze receives another government appointment—possibly in the State Department.

Belieu lost a leg in combat in the Korean War in 1950. In World War II, as a second lieutenant, he participated in the Normandy landings, the Battle of the Bulge, and the campaigns of Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Thoughts

You shall keep my sabbaths and reverence my sanctuary: I am the Lord.—Leviticus 19:30.

The soul of the Christian religion is reverence.—Johann Wolfgang von Goethe.

From 1951 to 1955, he served as executive officer to two Secretaries of the Army. He was an important member of the Army's team in the bitter Army hearings instigated by the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy.

Col. Belieu retired from the Army in 1955, and became a staff member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, chairmanned by Sen. Richard B. Russell.

In 1959, the then Senator L. B. Johnson, Chairman of the Aeronautical and Space Sciences Committee, appointed Belieu staff director of the Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee of the Armed Services Committee.

During his combat service, Col. Belieu was awarded the Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star, Purple Heart, and Croix de Guerre for gallantry in action.

His wife is the former Margaret Katherine Waldhoff, Anoka, Minnesota. They have two sons.

Colonel Belieu will be succeeded as Assistant Navy Secretary by Graeme C. Bannerman, a Civil Service career man, who has been Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Procurement.

Money-Muscle Foils House Rules Reforms

(Editor's Note: Drew Pearson is traveling in the West. In his absence the column is written by his associate, Jack Anderson.)

WASHINGTON — House Rules Chairman Howard Smith, the old curmudgeon who was brought down a few notches at the opening of Congress, has now entered into a conspiracy with Administration Chairman Omar Burleson, the Texas dandy, to circumvent the hard-won reforms that the liberals pushed through the House.

Under the new rules, Smith can no longer bottle up bills he doesn't like. Any committee chairman can force a House vote on one of his bills after Smith has sat on it for 21 days.

But Smith and Burleson are now using the power of the purse to bring pressure on committee chairmen not to exercise their new rights. Burleson is quietly holding up the committee operating funds.

Before they can get their money, Burleson has told the chairmen to clear it with Smith.

Note: House Labor Chairman Adam Clayton Powell has appealed to President Johnson to help break the funds loose from the two Dixie-crats. Snorted Powell to the President's face: "If I don't get my money, you won't get anything out of my committee."

PUBLIC HEALTH authorities estimate that a tragic 125 to 150 children die every year from eating candy-flavored aspirin. Thousands more are saved from death only by the prompt action of parents or baby sitters.

Case after case has been reported of tiny tots who pry the safety caps off aspirin bottles and gulp down the contents, taking it for candy.

Two of my own little nieces recently devoured a bottle of flavored aspirin, then went peacefully to sleep. Not until their mother discovered the empty bottle did she realize anything was wrong. She rushed them to the hospital. If they had arrived 30 minutes later, the doctor said they would have been dead.

The latest available statistics: of 2,504 cases of accidental aspirin poisoning in 1961, 1,530 were children under five who got hold of candy-tasting aspirin.

Note: Congresswoman Leonor Sullivan, D-Mo., has introduced a bill that would prohibit the interstate sale of flavored aspirin.

SENATE investigators are checking into the activities of a quiet, dignified Chicago matron in her late 40's, who has been operating a sex-by-mail racket.

Using a Chicago post office box as a front, she has built up a pernicious traffic in mailing lists. She peddles the names and addresses of teen-age boys and girls to anyone with the price.

Lists of innocent and unsuspecting girls, for instance, are sold to men who are encouraged to believe the girls volunteered their names. The mailing lists usually are advertised in sleazy magazines.

Anyone who has ever answered a mail-order ad or a request for a pen pal may end up on a smut list. Starry-eyed girls, who long to get into the movies, have been enticed by ads in fan magazines. Even school rosters and magazine subscription lists have mysteriously found their way into the pornographic trade.

Senate sleuths, checking the names, have turned up reputable girls who had no idea their names were being sold. One 11-year-old girl had her named placed on a sex list after she innocently sought a pen pal her own age.

DESPITE these ugly facts, complaint after complaint, looked up by Senate investigators at the Justice Department, is marked: "current status—investigation completed. U.S. Attorney declined prosecution."

An outraged Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., has ordered his Senate Juvenile Delinquency Subcommittee to prepare for hearings. He believes this traffic in names, a new and alarming menace to young Americans, must be stopped.

County, L.B. Sign Fire Fighting Pact

Long Beach and county fire stations won't waste time asking boundary questions before responding to emergency calls for fire protection or rescue service.

This policy, actually in effect formally for years, is officially set forth in a uniform mutual assistance agreement just signed by the city and county officials.

It is designed to take place in the records an order of "roll first, settle jurisdiction later," City Manager John R. Mansell said, averting tragedies caused by delayed responses.

Similar agreements have been signed by 27 of the 47 cities in Los Angeles County maintaining their own departments, Mansell reported.

THE LONG BEACH pact has special significance because the city limits enclose a number of populated unincorporated "islands."

Under the agreement, no payment by any agency will be asked when one responds to a call in territory outside its jurisdiction. The agency actually having jurisdiction is notified and is under obligation to respond after the first unit on the scene has gone into action.

The form of agreement now incorporated into an official document was drafted by the Los Angeles County Division of the League of California Cities.

The numerous interlocking city-county agreements provide in effect a city-to-city network as well as one applying exclusively to a particular city and the county.

Memorial West Is Panel Topic

"Memorial West Planning," a panel discussion on the new 56-bed unit to be constructed on the west side of Memorial Hospital, will be held at the meeting of the Volunteer Auxiliary to Memorial Hospital 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the hospital cafeteria.

Mrs. Arthur Buell, program chairman, said speakers at the panel to follow a business session will be Seibert C. Pearson, M.D., chief of staff; William A. Lockett, A.I.A., architect and Jack Weiblen, administrative assistant. Mrs. Robert Gray, Volunteer president, will preside.

Groundbreaking for the structure is scheduled for next month and the panel will discuss need and advantages of the unit to be built around a garden.

Hospitality chairman is Mrs. Willis Boyd.

Students Will Get Freedom Documents

Seroma Club of Long Beach will present eighth grade students with copies of the Declaration of Independence at ceremonies in schools Feb. 15 to 25.

J. M. McDuell, chairman of Seroma's Freedom program, said the organizations also will present Freedom Documents to 25 foreign born, newly naturalized citizens at club luncheon Feb. 25.

Seroma President Charles Bennett said the program, in which hundreds of Seroma Clubs participate, is designed to bring freedom nearer the individual.

Airline Sets Stewardess Interviews

Air-minded young women of the Long Beach area who would like to become stewardess trainees will be interviewed from 3 to 5:30 p.m. Thursday in the ticket office of United Air Lines, 208 E. Ocean Blvd.

The airline is conducting an extensive recruiting drive in a search for 1,500 stewardesses in cities and towns throughout this country, Canada, and as far afield as England.

Candidates must be at least 20, but not yet 27, and single. Height should be at least 5 feet, 2 inches but not more than 5 feet, 9 inches. Weight must be under 140 pounds, in proportion to height. Vision must be correct to 20/30 in each eye, and glasses or contact lenses are permitted.

Stewardesses are trained at United's $2 million education and training center near Mt. Prospect, Chicago suburb, where they are instructed on correct use of makeup, effective speaking, posture and appropriate hair styling.

The addition of 1,500 new stewardesses this year will raise the company's skygirl roster from 2,300 to 2,800, after allowing for the normal attrition rate of approximately 34%.

Exchange Club to Present Freedom Shrines

The Exchange Club of Long Beach will present Freedom Shrines to Lakewood and Millikan high schools Wednesday.

The Freedom Shrine is made up of copies of 28 historical American documents, according to Sid Bacon, chairman of the Freedom Shrine Committee of the club.

All Exchange Clubs in the nation participate in the project.

Ceremonies Honor 50 New Citizens

Fifty new citizens will be honored at I Am An American Day ceremonies at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Veterans Memorial Building, Broadway and Cedar Ave.

The event is sponsored by Arthur L. Peterson Post 27, American Legion, and the Vice Comdr. H. E. Perkins, Long Beach Unified School District.

Speakers will include Vice-Mayor James A. Hayes, Dr. James G. Law, Dr. Wiley G. Garner, president of Long Beach City College; Marvin Jones, commander 19th District, American Legion; Floyd Ellis, speaking for the class of new citizens; Guest Chaplain Homer E. Miller, First American Legion, and the Past Commander A. R. McKinstry, and Post Commander Hillard Steen.

DISASTER PRECAUTION Radio Net to Link Hospitals

Four major Long Beach hospitals will be linked by a radio net within 60 days, civil defense officials predict following a contract award last week for the $7,567 installation.

Officials of Memorial, Community, Pacific and St. Mary's hospitals will then be able to communicate instantly, even if normal telephone service is disrupted, in the event of a disaster.

The network will be extended later to include the civil defense control center in the Public Safety Building and also an emergency CD van, according to plans announced by Evar Peterson, civil defense coordinator.

The city awarded the contract to Radio Corporation of America but will be reimbursed in full by the hospitals. The latter will eventually get back one-half of the cost from the federal civil defense office.

Peterson said the network could save many lives in the event of a disaster requiring orderly assignment of casualties to hospitals not already overtaxed.

Metro-Area Y Growing Faster Than Population

Membership in the Long Beach Metropolitan Area YMCA is growing faster than the population it serves, President Norbert W. Dean has announced.

"The Metropolitan Area Y, which serves the youth and families of Long Beach, Artesia, Bellflower, Dairy Valley, Dominguez, Hawaiian Gardens, Lakewood, Los Alamitos, Los Altos, Rossmore and Signal Hill, now has more than 16,000 members," Dean said.

"Since 1954, the YMCA here has grown 217%," Dean observed, "while the population of the area has increased 68%."

Dean will make his report to the first 1965 meeting of the YMCA's Board of Directors Tuesday at the Downtown Y, 600 Long Beach Blvd.

"In its five branches," Dean said, "the YMCA offers 1,147 groups, club, and classes for young people and their families. In addition, we have our camping program at Big Bear."

L.B. Barbershop Quartet 'Harmony Holiday' Set Feb. 20

Two and a half hours of close and far-out harmony will be the order of the night when the Long Beach chapter of the Society for the Preservation of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America presents its 20th annual show.

Entitled "Harmony Holiday," the big show is scheduled 8:15 p.m. in Long Beach Municipal Auditorium Saturday, Feb. 20 and will present five of the finest barbershop quartets in the West plus the Long Beach chapter's 35 voices.

A full scale professional show rather than a contest of barbershop quartets, the 1965 presentation will mark the 26th anniversary of the Long Beach S.P.B.S.Q.S.A.'s founding.

HEADLINING the show will be the famous Dapper Daps from Disneyland. A top flight quartet, this foursome has picked up a large following at Disneyland and it is expected to follow them to Municipal Auditorium for this, one of their few local appearances outside the Magic Kingdom.

This year the Long Beach area is fortunate in having three local area quartets of such outstanding ability that they have been included in the bill for the annual show. They are the Coast Liners from nearby Huntington Beach; the Merry Chords, all the way from Downey and the Manhattans from Manhattan Beach.

Filling out the already full program will be the longtime Long Beach favorites, the Salt Flats from Salt Lake City, Utah, who combine a full-fledged flair for comedy with a full-blown blare of barbershop harmony.

For a change of pace the 35 specially picked voices of the Long Beach chapter's chorus will be on hand to present a program of choral numbers. The chorus is made up of the best voices in the chapter welded into one group.

Tickets for the show may be ordered by mail from Russ Cunningham, ticket chairman, at 2377 Pacific Ave. or by calling Garfield 48-113. They may also be purchased at the auditorium box office during the week preceding the show.

FILM PREVIEWS

Sinatra, Stewart Star in Films Here Wednesday

James Stewart, Glynis Poppins, and "Those Calloways" continue hold-over runs. "Dear Brigitte," new family comedy film with touches of social satire, opening in the area Wednesday.

Second new film to show here Wednesday is "None But the Brave," the Frank Sinatra produced, star-studded film which also stars Clint Walker, Tommy Sands, Brad Dexter and Tony Bill. Two Disney films, "Mary

The screenplay is from John Haase's novel "Erasmus With Freckles."

"NONE BUT THE BRAVE" is a World War II story told through the eyes of a Japanese lieutenant. It deals with the struggles of a group of Marines who have crash-landed on the island where a Japanese force is stationed. Both sides have lost communication with the rest of the world.

The film is the first joint screen venture of American and Japanese companies to be made in the United States.

Twelve of Japan's outstanding actors are featured in the film. Only Mitsuaki, a leading Tokyo screen idol, who enacts the role of a Japanese lieutenant, has English dialogue—other Japanese dialogue is translated in subtitles.

Laraine Stephens debuts in "None But the Brave" as the girl in Clint Walker's life.

"DEAR BRIGITTE" features James Stewart, Glynis Johns, Cindy Carol, Billy Munny (from right) and Fabian in story of modern American family.

Life of Christ Premieres

HOLLYWOOD, (UPI) — Producer-director George Stevens will open his film on the life of Christ, "The Greatest Story Ever Told" in major cities across the country this month. The Los Angeles premier will be Wednesday evening.

There have been few interviews with Max Von Sydow, the Swedish star who plays Christ. Stevens himself has been almost as parsimonious with the press.

The list of players is long and distinguished. It includes Charlton Heston, Van Heflin, Jose Ferrer, Dorothy McGuire, Sidney Poitier, the late Joseph Schildkraut, Claude Rains, Shelley Winters, John Wayne, Pat Boone and Carroll Baker.

Stevens dedicated more than five years to greatest story, from original research and study to final editing of the 3-hour 34-minute film.

"We set out to make a definitive story of Christ," he said. "Audiences will let us know if we succeeded."

"Personally, I think children taken to see this film today will bring their own children to see it many years from now."

SPY THRILLER

James Garner and Eva Marie Saint make a desperate attempt to escape from pursuing Nazis in this scene from "36 Hours." Rod Taylor also stars in the suspense drama in which the events that transpire within thirty-six hours during World War II might have changed the history of the world. The film opens in the area Wednesday.

Life of Christ Premieres

HOLLYWOOD, (UPI) — Producer-director George Stevens will open his film on the life of Christ, "The Greatest Story Ever Told" in major cities across the country this month. The Los Angeles premier will be Wednesday evening.

There have been few interviews with Max Von Sydow, the Swedish star who plays Christ. Stevens himself has been almost as parsimonious with the press.

The list of players is long and distinguished. It includes Charlton Heston, Van Heflin, Jose Ferrer, Dorothy McGuire, Sidney Poitier, the late Joseph Schildkraut, Claude Rains, Shelley Winters, John Wayne, Pat Boone and Carroll Baker.

Stevens dedicated more than five years to greatest story, from original research and study to final editing of the 3-hour 34-minute film.

"We set out to make a definitive story of Christ," he said. "Audiences will let us know if we succeeded."

"Personally, I think children taken to see this film today will bring their own children to see it many years from now."

AND SO, ON Feb. 22 he'll be on TV across the nation, and on March 18 he opens here in "Do I Hear a Waltz?" Both of which he owes to Richard Rodgers.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "My doctor ordered me to cut down on all starches," writes Shelby Friedman of Dallas. "—so now I wear the lightest shirts in town."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: traffic is, while you drive Buddy Greco described a very accurate town you can read a insecure fellow: "He even sus-book."

Moving Lincoln Tribute Staged

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

Although his love of theater led directly to the untimely end of the 16th President of the United States, Abraham Lincoln's birthday celebrations are seldom observed by the American stage.

With a moving tribute, "An Evening With Lincoln," Pine Players are impressively compensating for this annual oversight. The one-hour-long program, which concludes tonight (Sunday), comprises Fred Waring's arrangement of "Battle Hymn of the Republic," the presentation of Abraham Lincoln in Poetry and Prose (Lincoln and Carl Sandburg) by Dennis and Joyce Pierce Wheeler, and the dramatization of Millard Lampell and Earl Robinson's musical legend, "The Lonesome Train" contains.

UNDER THE DIRECTION of Robert Carlson and Richard Parish, the entire program is marked by reverence, free from mawkish sentiment.

This is strongly due to the fine ballad legacy of Earl Robinson's work on "lonesome track, seven coaches painted black." Told in theatrical terms blending fantasy and reality, the story of the Lincoln funeral train has the authentic folk quality of Mr. Robinson's earlier "Balled for Americans."

The "Down in Alabama" sequence was the evening's highlight with a spirited gospel-singing session, Marvin Hooper, a mighty Negro singer, making an imposing 'fire in brimstone' religious man.

Jim L'Angelle handled the ballad singing skillfully, Dennis Wheeler's narration was blessed with authentic accent and feeling and Ruth Olson proved an able accompanist.

THE STRONG SINGING ensemble was represented by—Virginia Selby, Lucy Carlson, Francis Sizemore, Virginia Breneman, Ann L'Angelle, Gerry and Larry Rice, Joyce Wheeler, Richard Parish, Sande Gunzley, Frank Fendele, Lenore Duncan, Floyd Robnett, Virginia Niquette, Victor Tourtelotte, Grace Duncan and Henry Brantley.

Tonight's concluding performance is worth a family visit to Pine Players' headquarters, 1629 Pine.

FOR NEW MUSICAL Damon Light-Headed

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Handsome, 6-foot-2 Stuart Damon, who plays Prince Charming in the "Cinderella" TV special, and is also featured in Richard Rodgers' "Do I Hear a Waltz?" has been learning lately "what ladies have to go through in beauty parlors."

"And it's hell what they do to those dames," he says. "I was all set for the Rodgers show along with Sergio Franchi." Damon was saying the other night. "I was doing 'Cinderella' in LA and Franchi was playing the Coconut Grove."

"They brought Franchi over to CBS and stood us together. Rodgers said 'There's a resemblance and it won't work out.'"

"So I had to get my hair bleached, and I'd never known that they put this blue stuff on your hair, and your hair turns white and orange, and the stuff smarts so much, I thought I must be going out of my mind."

"My head was getting so hot I felt I must be smoking. One girl said 'Get him some ice!' And they put ice in my mouth. Three girls were standing over me fanning me and pouring ice in my mouth."

AND SO, ON Feb. 22 he'll be on TV across the nation, and on March 18 he opens here in "Do I Hear a Waltz?" Both of which he owes to Richard Rodgers.

FILM PREVIEWS

Sinatra, Stewart Star in Films Here Wednesday

James Stewart, Glynis Poppins, and "Those Calloways" continue hold-over runs. "Dear Brigitte," new family comedy film with touches of social satire, opening in the area Wednesday.

Second new film to show here Wednesday is "None But the Brave," the Frank Sinatra produced, started-did. He once tried to earn a rected film which also stars real-life living playing an ac Clint Walker, Tommy Sands, cordon during theater inter- Brad Dexter and Tony Bill. missions.

Two Disney films, "Mary: The comedy revolves around one man's attempt to wriggle out of the rigid, scientific straightjacket of our age. As a poet-professor Stewart unleashes his indignation against his university's policy of neglecting the humanities and arts in favor of scientific study.

The screenplay is from John Haase's novel "Erasmus With Freckles."

"NONE BUT the Brave" is a World War II story told through the eyes of a Japanese lieutenant. It deals with the struggles of a group of Marines who have crash-landed on the island where a Japanese force is stationed. Both sides have lost communication with the rest of the world.

The film is the first joint screen venture of American and Japanese companies to be made in the United States.

"DEAR BRIGITTE" features James Stewart, Glynis Johns, Cindy Carol, Billy Mumy (from right) and Fabian in story of modern American family.

Twelve of Japan's outstanding actors are featured in the film. Only Mihashi, a leading Tokyo screen idol, who enacts the role of a Japanese lieutenant, has English dialogue—other Japanese dialogue is translated in subtitles.

Laraine Stephens debuts in "None But the Brave" as the girl in Clint Walker's life.

Damon Light-Headed

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Handsome, 6-foot-2 Stuart Damon, who plays Prince Charming in the "Cinderella" TV special, and is also featured in Richard Rodgers' "Do I Hear a Waltz?" has been learning lately what ladies have to go through in beauty parlors.

"And it's hell what they do

In those dames," he says. "I was all set for the Rodgers show along with Sergio Franchi." Damon was saying the other night. "I was doing 'Cinderella' in LA and Franchi was playing the Coconut Grove.

"They brought Franchi over to CBS and stood us together. Rodgers said 'There's a resemblance and it won't work out.'"

"So I was out of the show! They started looking for a blond Stuart Damon. They couldn't find one. My agent finally said 'Why don't you try Stuart Damon as a blond?'"

"So I had to get my hair bleached, and I'd never known that they put this blue stuff on your hair, and your hair turns white and orange, and the stuff smarts so much. I thought I must be going out of my mind.

"My head was getting so hot I felt I must be smoking. One girl said 'Get him some ice!' And they put ice in my mouth. Three girls were standing over me fanning me and pouring ice in my mouth!"

AND SO, ON Feb. 22 he'll be on TV across the nation, and on March 18 he opens here in "Do I Hear a Waltz?" Both of which he owes to Richard Rodgers.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "My doctor ordered me to cut down on all starches," writes Shelby Friedman of Dallas. "—so now I wear the lightest shirts in town."

Moving Lincoln Tribute Staged

By SAMUEL A. BOYE

Although his love of theater led directly to the untimely end of the 16th President of the United States, Abraham Lincoln's birthday celebrations are seldom observed by the American stage.

With a moving tribute—"An Evening With Lincoln"—Pine Players are impressively compensating for this annual oversight. The one-hour-long program, which concludes tonight (Sunday), comprises Fred Waring's arrangement of "Battle Hymn of the Republic," the presentation of Abraham Lincoln in Poetry and Prose (Lincoln and Carl Sandburg) by Dennis and Joyce Pierce Wheeler, and the dramatization of Millard Lampell and Earl Robinson's musical legend, "The Lonesome Train" contains.

UNDER THE DIRECTION of Robert Carlson and Richard Parish, the entire program is marked by reverence, free from mawkish sentiment.

This is strongly due to the fine ballad legacy of Earl Robinson's work on "Lonesome track, seven coaches painted black." Told in theatrical terms blending fantasy and reality, the story of the Lincoln funeral train has the authentic folk quality of Mr. Robinson's earlier "Balled for Americans."

The "Down in Alabama" sequence was the evening's highlight with a spirited gospel-singing session, Marvin Hooper, a mighty Negro singer, making an imposing 'fire in brimstone' religious man, Jim L'Angelle handled the ballad singing skillfully. Dennis Wheeler's narration was blessed with authentic accent and feeling and Ruth Olson proved an able accompanist.

THE STRONG SINGING ensemble was represented by: Virginia Selby, Lucy Carlson, Franci Sizemore, Virginia Breneman, Ann L'Angelle, Gerry and Larry Rice, Joyce Wheeler, Richard Parish, Sande Gunsley, Frank Fendeleit, Lenore Duncan, Floyd Robbette, Virginia Niquette, Victor Tourtelotte, Grace Duncan and Henry Brantley.

Tonight's concluding performance is worth a family visit to Pine Players' headquarters, 1629 Pine.

Sports Merry-Go-Round

By HANK HOLLINGWORTH
 Executive Sports Editor

(Hank Hollingworth is on vacation. Until his return several of the nation's leading sportswriters will pinch-hit.)

I. S. M. B. H. O.

By RED SMITH

The International Society for Making Basketball a Hanging Offense has been in the doldrums lately, due to a succession of crippling blows.

Almost to a man, the membership went into a blue funk when Bill Bradley, of Princeton, was awarded a Rhodes scholarship to Oxford, creating the possibility that this gifted Goliath might carry the roundball gospel to the green unscathed banks of the Cherwell.

Depression deepened further when the remarkable Bradley was made the subject of a profile even lengthier than himself in the New Yorker, a fastidious publication not ordinarily addicted to children's games.

Now into the breach rides Henry J. Smith, spurring his horse like Sheridan rallying the troops at Cedar Creek. Mr. Smith—nay, no Naismith—he is a legal eagle in White Plains, president of the Westchester County Bar Association and head of the Westchester Chapter, I.S.M.B.H.O.

He encloses a copy of "Bar Topics," the Westchester Bar's quarterly, containing a piece about Yucatan by Paul L. Bleakley, a Yonkers attorney who travels. Describing a visit to the ancient Mayan city of Chichen Itza, counsellor Bleakley mentioned that "the greatest structure is the ball court; all Indian cities of any moment had a ball court."

AS ALL ARCHEOLOGISTS KNOW, these were basketball courts. The one at Chichen Itza is a stone-paved rectangle; 500 feet by 200. Hung high at opposite sides, not ends, of the court, were two stone doughnuts, approximately the size and shape of fixtures later marketed by Standard Plumbing.

Unlike James Naismith's peach baskets, the goals were hung on edge like archery targets and the object was to knock a rubber ball through the ring with knees or hips. Since touching the ball with the hands was illegal and the hook shot unknown, there were no scores of 132-130. One goal ended the game.

"The writer," Mr. Bleakley reports, "was informed that at the conclusion of the game the winning captain took out his sword and cut off the head of the losing captain. The same situation exists today, except that it is the coach who loses his head."

JUBILANTLY, MR. SMITH COMMENTS:

(1) The legend that basketball sprang, fully armed, from the brow of Doc Naismith can be exploded once and for all, ending any spurious duty of reverence to an institution like Mom and apple pie. Dig a little deeper and I'll bet you'll find the Doc was an old Yucatan buff with a library full of books about the Mayans and Toltecs.

(2) A strong position must be taken against the abolition of the Decapitation Rule. Obviously, this was one of the essentials of the game and only some conspiracy could have caused its disappearance (the NCAA? Maurice Podoloff? the Original Celtics?). Get this rule back on the books and we can conquer basketball by attrition alone!

(3) I apologize for my friend and colleague's blowing the whole essay when he says that the collapse of the Mayan and Toltec empires cannot be explained. No member of our order could miss it, and it may hurt Mr. Bleakley with our Admissions Committee that he does not seek Cause and Effect where a people devoted 100,000 square feet in every city to Roundball. Give old Gibbon a shot at that and he'd tell you in no uncertain terms about the decline and fall of the Mayan Empire."

PERHAPS MR. BLEAKLEY SHOULD have checked his sources a trifle more carefully. For example, the Mayans did not carry swords, for they didn't use metal. They did have knives of obsidian, or volcanic glass. Most authorities agree that some time around 700 A.D. the Decapitation Rule was rewritten and losers were stretched on a stone altar where the high priest (referee) carved their hearts out.

This gave rise to the derisive chant—"Hunac unaxactl quetzacoatl!"—with which basketball galleries taunted the visiting team. It meant, "Eat your heart out!"

In all Yucatan annals, there is no recorded case of a Roundball team's dumping a game.

Physically, Mayans bore little or no resemblance to Wilt Chamberlain and would not have attracted the attention of a coach like Joe Lapchick. They were short and stocky, born with heads almost perfectly round which their mothers flattened in infancy with boards, because sloping foreheads were greatly admired.

MOTHERS ALSO DANGLED BEADS in front of their babies' eyes so they would develop a squint. Chances are this impaired their marksmanship on the court, but it made them look like the sun god who was cross-eyed. The man wore basketball uniforms at all times, loin cloths with long ends hanging down, front and back.

That's about all, except that the town Mr. Bleakley wrote about, Chichen Itza, is a typographical error. The Itzas were warriors, probably from Mexico, who infiltrated about 900 A.D. and debased the national sport.

When they lost a game, the Itzas would try to welch. As they cringed away from the sacrificial knife, true Mayan fans would jeer: "It's a chicken!"

UCLA Given 2-Pt. Score

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)—

The Washington State Cougars came within a whisker of knocking off nationally second-ranked UCLA as the largest crowd to witness a Cougar basketball game in 15 years saw the Bruins edge to a 70-68 Pacific Eight win.

Big Ben Werner led all scorers with 27 points as the Cougars kept the outcome in doubt until the final four seconds when Gail Goodrich sank a foul shot for the final margin.

Goodrich paced the Bruins with 22 points.

THE BRUINS, who had moved to an easy 44-35 half-time lead, saw their margin disappear as the Cougars staged one of the second-half surges which have become their trademark this season.

The teams kept the crowd of 5,500 on its feet for the final three minutes as the UCLA lead saw-sawed between three and one points.

28 for Block as Troy Wins

SEATTLE (AP) — Big John

Block, limping and grimacing from the bruises of numerous tumbles, tallied 26 points Saturday to lead the Trojans of Southern California to a 78-70 basketball victory over Washington in a televised afternoon Pacific Athletic Conference game.

The victory gave Southern Cal sole possession—at least temporarily—of second place in the conference.

Most of Block's points came in the final quarter from the free throw line as Washington crowded desperately to regain the edge they had carried for three quarters. Block got 18 of his points in the second half.

WASHINGTON set the pace most of the route and was leading 39-37 at the half, period before Allan Young's four times in the second period before Allen Young's five consecutive points and a pair of free throws by Block pushed the Trojans into a 65-62 lead.

captain Dan Wolters tipped in a teammate's shot with no time left to clinch California's victory over Oregon State Saturday night, 55-53, in Pacific Athletic Conference basketball play.

With nine seconds left, Jim Jarvis of Oregon State sank two free throws to tie the game at 53-all after Wolters had put California ahead with two free throws in a one-and-one situation with 14 seconds left.

Man to Man

By JERRY WYNN

The high-pitched voice came from the bench of the Philadelphia 76ers: "C'mon, ref, give us a break. Please."

As a coach, as he was a player, Dolph Schayes appears to be too mild-mannered to keep afloat in pro basketball, a game of ulcer-inducing tensions and torments.

But, appearance always has been deceiving in the case of Schayes. A red-thin 6-8 center from the schoolyards of New York City, he was considered too brittle to play with the bruisers in the NBA. All he did was to star with the old Syracuse Nats for 15 years and become the first pro player to score 15,000 points.

Today as coach of the hottest team in the league, the never-controversial Schayes, one of the greatest of free throw shooters, ironically has acquired always-controversial Wilt Chamberlain, the worst of the free throw shooters.

Do you find coaching as satisfying an experience as playing, Dolph?

"Playing is more personally satisfying because you are more involved with your own ego. It's a thrill every time you put the ball through the hoop. As a coach, I haven't been overly successful. The reward comes when your team starts jelling as ours is now."

Could any coach in the NBA win if he had a team as good as the Boston Celtics?

"Not at all. A coach has to mold his team to the talent he has. The Celtics play a style of their own. Auerbach's record speaks for itself. If Russell played for another team, he may not be nearly as good."

How do you manage to stay calm during a game?

"It's just the way I was born. I'm that kind of person. I also find it doesn't pay to get explosive. It doesn't accomplish much to yell at the officials or to get mad at your players."

Are you happy with the officiating this season?

"Yes. It is difficult to achieve perfection in basketball or life. But the people we have are the best available."

If the season were just starting, do you think the 76ers with Chamberlain would win the Eastern Division?

"I think we could. Our record against the five lower teams has been overwhelming. Now with Wilt, we can beat the Celtics, Royals and Lakers as well. I think we'll prove it in the playoffs."

Are you going to succeed in teaching Wilt to shoot free throws?

"Yes, but it will be more his doing than mine. Put it this way. A golf pro once told me the reason I was missing three-foot putts was because I really didn't care about making them. It's the same way with Wilt. If he really does want to make free throws, and it means winning for the team, I'm sure he will learn to make them."

If you were starting a new franchise and had your pick of one player in the league, who would you take?

"Chamberlain. You need a big man to start with. But you don't win in this league with one man."

Excluding your own players, who would you select for an all-NBA team?

"Russell, West, Robertson, Baylor and Pettit."

Who do you consider to be the best player you have ever seen?

"Robertson. But the player I liked to watch most was Jim Pollard of the old Minneapolis Lakers. I always wished I could do some of the things he did."

What was the greatest thrill of your career?

"I had two. Winning the championship with Syracuse in 1955 and hitting the long set shot which gave me my 15,000th point."

With all the travel and rough play in the game today, would you recommend pro basketball as a career?

"The travel today is easy compared to what it used to be and the rough play is overblown. Yes, I think pro basketball is a fine career. You meet a lot of top-notch guys. They are the finest athletes in pro sports."

And that well describes Dolph Schayes.

Dear Walter: Paint Your Fences---Rig

By ROSS NEWMAN

Sparks from the Hot Stove:

Bill Rigney would alter the old saw from "the grass is always greener on the other side of the fence" to "the bleachers are always easier to reach on the other side of a greener fence."

"Psychologically," said the Angel manager, "the lack of a target to aim at in Dodger Stadium is more of a detriment to home runs than the dimensions."

"A power hitter is like a pro golfer searching for a target down the fairway. The light point on the Dodger Stadium fences make them almost impossible to find during the day and at night they're just a blob. Why not give the hitter something to shoot at? As it is, the park is not a true criteria of your club's hitting."

EXCLUSIVE: "John Kennedy," confided Buzzie Bavasi, "reminds me of a young Brooks Robinson. Our park will help make a hitter of him."

VIOLENCE: The city of Los Angeles may present its most valuable player award to Leon Wagner. Daddy Wags joined a new team this winter composed of six Caucasians, six Negroes and three Mexican-Americans whose job is stemming juvenile delinquency for the Recreation and Parks Department's Special Problems Unit.

"Our job is to stop the problems before they start," revealed Wagner. "It's exciting work. These kids tell you they'll kill you—and they mean it. Ironically, we've found as many problems in Beverly Hills and the richer areas as we have in the under-privileged zones."

"It's been satisfying work and I may take two more years of college so that I can go into it full time when I retire."

PROGRESS: "We are two months ahead of schedule in Anaheim," said Angel president Robert Reynolds. "The soil is absolutely perfect for excavation."

NAME-CALLING: "We will not consider names for our club until late this year," said Angels' director of Anaheim operations, Cedric Talis. "We are not concerned by the petitions circulating in Orange County that the name be Anaheim Angels. This displays interest and we would be more concerned if there were no such petitions."

HOT CORNER: Angel scouts tell you the club does not have a third base problem. They say Julio Gotay, a non-roster player currently affixed to Seattle, will be there opening day.

COOL DADDY: Jim Fregosi's dash from the lead table to a phone during the Baseball Writer's dinner was prompted by thoughts of what occurred at the banquet one year ago.

"You will recall," winked Fregosi, "that I became a father while at this dinner last year. I don't know about miracles, but I thought I'd better check the situation."

THROATY: Among the Angels, this has been the Year of the Tonsil: Fred Newman, Aubrey Gatewood and Jan hummed the lost chords.

GLOVE MAN: "The outlawing of the big mitt will not affect my ability to catch Hoyt Wilhelm's knuckler," confided Chicago catcher J.C.

INTER-PLAY ONLY ANSWER SAYS FINLEY

KANSAS CITY (UPI)—Charles O. Finley, that Kelly green and gold-clad maverick of the baseball world, is ready for the solution to all the game's problems.

What is it?

"Why, it's inter-league play," Finley claims.

Finley says it would bring baseball under one roof by eliminating channels of red tape now existing with a strict two-league setup. It would bring justice to those who deserve it most, the fans, he says, and it would solve attendance problems everywhere.

To put it another way, Finley's way:

"Inter-league play will be the greatest salvation for baseball since the days of Babe Ruth."

NFL HUDDLES

For Pete's Sake, Don't Mention AFL

By JERRY WYNN

At times a simple reply of "no comment" to a reporter's question is more meaningful than a hundred words.

For instance, when you tant problem facing the NFL ask Dan Reeves what will be today....or....

Any question that deals with that unspoken but unavoidable subject of the American Football League.

Reeves, the triple-threat owner, president and general manager of the Rams, will huddle with the upper echelon from the other 11 clubs and league commissioner Pete Rozelle and his staff in the Tuesday through Friday conclave.

On the printed agenda are a variety of constitutional amendments and proposed rules changes, but nowhere to be found is the mention of the American League. That would imply recognition of a problem-child the NFL hitherto has attempted to treat as an undesirable orphan.

BUT THE time is coming—or has come—when the NFL will be forced by the economic pressure of the ridiculous player-signing war and the demands of a vocal segment of the press to reach some kind of understanding with the AFL. It could come this week. But don't bet on it.

One of the major obstacles to any agreements is the two-team situation in the New York and San Francisco areas," Reeves did say. "Two teams in one city has never worked out in baseball or football, and there is no reason to believe they can exist amicably and profitably today."

ANOTHER subject not listed in the agenda, but due for discussion is the so-called "player revolt," against Rozelle.

It began when the commissioner declined an invitation to listen to the players' grievances during their annual NFL Players' Assn. meeting in Florida in January. It reached a shocking height when Bernie Parrish, Cleveland Browns' defensive back and vice-president of the players' group, demanded that Rozelle be replaced by Paul Brown, the former Cleveland coach.

"Any criticism of Rozelle is groundless and irresponsible," Reeves defends the former I.P.T. sports correspondent. "He has done more for the players in his short span as commissioner than was accomplished by all the commissioners before him."

Reeves added that "many of the players today are spoiled."

Proposed rules changes are: 1. Reducing the penalty for face mask grabbing from 15 to 5 yards; 2. Changing the color of the officials' flags from white to bright yellow; and 3. Allowing punts and missed field goals to be run out of the end zone.

Reeves says he isn't sure whether he favors the color change in No. 2. "When the hankies are white, there's always the hope that a piece of Kleenex has blown onto the field."

Blades Seek a Valentine

By RICH ROBERTS

Everybody's sweethearts, the Blades, hope to win a valentine from their disenchanted fans against the San Francisco Seals at the L.A. Sports Arena tonight.

The game starts at the usual Sunday hour of 7, hoping to catch the visitors arriving late for a possible forfeit.

It hasn't worked yet, but series against their beloved rivals, 7-4, with seven rendezvous remaining. It's apt to be an affair they would prefer to forget.

They have skated their way into the hearts of Western Hockey League rivals this season and especially endeared themselves to the Seals Thursday night.

That's when defenseman Harley Hodgson accidentally knocked in a San Francisco goal to break up a 2-2 tie midway in the final period.

SECONDS later the Blades still were asking one another what happened when the Seals scored one by themselves, and the fans sprang for the exits like a fire drill.

San Francisco is only a notch higher than the last-place Blades, but the Seals are breathing on a playoff berth—while the Blades, who have failed to win in seven games, are barely breathing.

The cause may receive a boost tonight when penalty

'BIG O' SIXTH MAN ON THIS TEAM

By DOUG IVES

NBA musings:—Lee Shaffer, the key figure in San Francisco's trade of Wilt Chamberlain, probably will join the San Franciscans next season.

He makes $20,000 a year as president of a trucking firm in North Carolina, so is in no big hurry to get back into basketball.

In a recent poll of sports editors, the Academy of Sports selected the following as the all-time NBA team: Bob Cousy (69%), Bill Russell (67%), George Mikan (65%), Elgin Baylor (67%) and Wilt Chamberlain (53%). Where's Oscar Robertson? He was sixth man, with 51%.

The reason the Maurice Stokes benefit game slated for Los Angeles May 27 was called off was partially due to the Laker management, which claimed it knew nothing in advance about the game being held in the Arena.

NBA president Walter Kennedy, meanwhile, said he gave approval for an exhibition, not an All-Star game, so the highly attractive contest was nullified. The league promised to stage something in Stokes' behalf at another time and place (probably Cincinnati), however.

Only three out of over 100 players in the NBA still shoot their free throws underhand. The trio is Chamberlain, Dave Gambee and Guy Rodgers. Chamberlain's percentage is .427, Gambee's .401 and Rodgers'

When Chamberlain scored 100 points on March 2, 1962, the opposing center was the Lakers' Darrall Imhoff, then with the Knicks. Also, Wilt, the worst free thrower in NBA history, hit 28 of 32 from the line in that game.

Johnny Kerr, veteran member of the Philadelphia 76ers, has extended his streak of consecutive games to 767. He has not missed a regular-season playoff game since he was a rookie in 1954.

Bob Pettit, an 11-time NBA All-Star, and the incomparable Cousy have one thing in common. Both were cut from the basketball squad in their underclass days in high school.

Sam Jones, John Havlicek, Jerry Lucas, Chamberlain, Bob Pettit, Baylor, Bob Boozer, Rod Thorn, John Egan and Chet Walker have not fouled out of a game this season. Boston's Tom Sanders leads the NBA in number of disqualifications, 13.

N.H.L. EXECS ACCUSED OF FAVORITISM

TORONTO (UPI)—National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell and referee-in-chief Carl Voss are under severe attack from former league officials for allegedly favoring the New York Rangers in a crucial game three years ago.

Dalton McCarthy drew support to charges he has made previously that Voss ordered him to "call only good penalties to the Rangers" in a game played against the Boston Bruins on March 22, 1962.

New York was engaged in a duel with Detroit for the final playoff spot at the time and McCarthy contended that he was instructed not "to hurt New York's chances."

The Rangers won the game, 4-3.

Sports Big Business? It's Peanuts!

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
NEW YORK (AP) — This guy in Washington says sports has become a big business, what with television getting into everything, and it ought to be investigated.

The sports writer, who grew up reading about Connie Mack's $100,000 infield and Matty, the pitcher with the $10,000 arm, thinks maybe the guy has something. You don't see such small figures any more.

Didn't CBS spend a lot of millions to buy control of the Yankees? And how about those huge TV contracts for pro football? They have sellouts almost everywhere every Sunday.

Baseball isn't doing badly in some towns, too, and college football set another attendance record last fall. Then there was a story the other day that more than 61 million people went to the horse parks last year and bet more than $4 billion. That's big money.

So the sports writer makes a few phone calls and digs through the files and comes up with a batch of figures — rough but reasonably accurate — and goes down the hall to the financial desk to get some comparisons with other big businesses.

"Big business?" says the financial editor. "Peanuts! Don't bother me with that little stuff."

"Peanuts," the sports editor yells. "Do you call it peanuts when CBS spends $11.2 million to buy the Yankees?"

'Cloak and Dagger' Tactics in Pro War

It was just a matter of time before the American Football League was forced to "join hands" with the NFL in adopting a policy to cooperate with the colleges in preventing premature signing of players with eligibility remaining.

The AFL's month-long delay in taking such action, however, not only seriously damaged its own cause but has hurt the NFL, too.

The main scouting force of the professional clubs is composed of assistant coaches at the various colleges.

And, we are told, many of them are "checking out" until they know for certain if the NCAA intends to enforce the proposal to bar pro scouts from the campuses and "punish" any college that allows a coach to assist a professional team.

When the NFL owners meet in Palm Springs this week, the talent war will be one of the main subjects — such as what action to take if their campus contacts are cut off, and even more importantly, discussion of methods used in signing players.

There never has been a talent hunt like the one that has been taking place for the last two and one-half months in the football world.

The price of talent not only soared way out of proportion but the war progressed far beyond a bidding contest. It developed into one of the wildest "cloak and dagger" operations in sports history.

Players were "smuggled" from one end of the country to the other under assumed names and hidden out in various cities so the other league couldn't contact them.

THE NFL CAUGHT THE AFL a little off-balance when it put into operation a secret plan of the week of the two drafts.

Each of the 14 NFL clubs were responsible for obtaining the services of a certain number of men who would represent the league as a whole rather than just one specific team. This group included former players, staff members, relatives, friends, etc.

It was their duty to track down the top 100 or so collegians eligible to be drafted and stay with them before, during and after the draft — until they signed or at least promised to negotiate with an NFL club if drafted.

The clubs submitted names and commissioner Pete Rozelle along with Bert Rose, who signed on with the Rams again the past season after leaving his post as general manager of the Minnesota Vikings, assigned the men to particular players. Each received his expenses and $50 a day compensation.

Thus, the NFL's unusual system found representatives of one club trying to sign a player for a rival. One of the men named by the Rams, for instance, helped corral a player for the 49ers, Buddy Young, whose name was submitted by the Baltimore Colts, landed one of the top prizes for the Bears in Gayle Sayers.

ONE OF THE BIGGEST GROUPS hidden out from the AFL reportedly numbered 28 Midwestern players. They were housed in the Detroit area. One top star enjoyed a five-day vacation in Washington, D.C. the week of the drafts. And at least a dozen or so were in New York, including Clancy Williams of Washington State, who signed with the Rams.

Another player and his wife "vacationed" in San Francisco where they set up housekeeping in an $80-a-day hotel suite while the AFL frantically tried to find him.

It is said that the NFL's "battle plan" cost at least $100,000 in addition to the bonuses and salaries the players will receive.

If a player couldn't be contacted by the NFL representative, the league office was immediately notified and other measures were adopted. In fact, it is alleged that private detectives were called in by both leagues to try and locate players.

THE AFL WAS BUSY, TOO, but as one of the league's top scouts has admitted "not on such a grandiose scale as that of the NFL. We got caught short."

However, two of the funniest incidents of the hectic race to sign players involves failure on the part of the NFL.

Leon Hart, the ex-Notre Dame star who later had a fine pro career with the Detroit Lions, drew the assignment to contact Harry Schuh, highly-rated tackle from Memphis State.

However, the AFL got to Schuh first and rushed him out of town just before Hart arrived. Leon took up the scent, though, and trailed Schuh and the rival pro representative from Memphis to New Orleans, to Las Vegas, Los Angeles, San Francisco . . . and finally across the bay to Oakland.

In desperation, Hart reportedly made a deal with some taxi drivers. There would be a $100 reward for the one who found him. A few hours later, one came through with his whereabouts . . . but by that time, the Oakland Raiders had his name on a contract.

MEANWHILE, THE 49ERS PRODUCED a special record the past season entitled "Life with the 49ers, the Sounds of Your Future." A copy was sent to all prospects and the recording included a big pitch for the NFL climaxed by Tony Bennett singing about leaving his heart in San Francisco.

The story goes that a top 49er official telephoned one of the club's high draft choices about signing and inquired . . . "You did get our record, didn't you?"

"Oh, yes," the player is said to have answered. "Matter of fact, I'm listening to it right now on the stereo. Lamar Hunt sent me."

Hunt, of course is the owner of the Kansas City Chiefs . . . and the man who organized the AFL after his bid for an NFL franchise was turned down.

PETE ROZELLE
Commissioner of NFL

about those huge TV contracts for pro football? They have sellouts almost everywhere every Sunday.

Baseball isn't doing badly in some towns, too, and college football set another attendance record last fall. Then there was a story the other day that more than 61 million people went to the horse parks last year and bet more than $4 billion. That's big money.

So the sports writer makes a few phone calls and digs through the files and comes up with a batch of figures — rough but reasonably accurate — and goes down the hall to the financial desk to get some comparisons with other big businesses.

"Big business?" says the financial editor. "Peanuts! Don't bother me with that little stuff."

"Peanuts," the sports editor yells. "Do you call it peanuts when CBS spends $11.2 million to buy the Yankees?"

"Yeah, but just a couple of weeks later CBS spends $13 million to buy what? — a company that makes electric guitars. They're just putting the loose change into diversification."

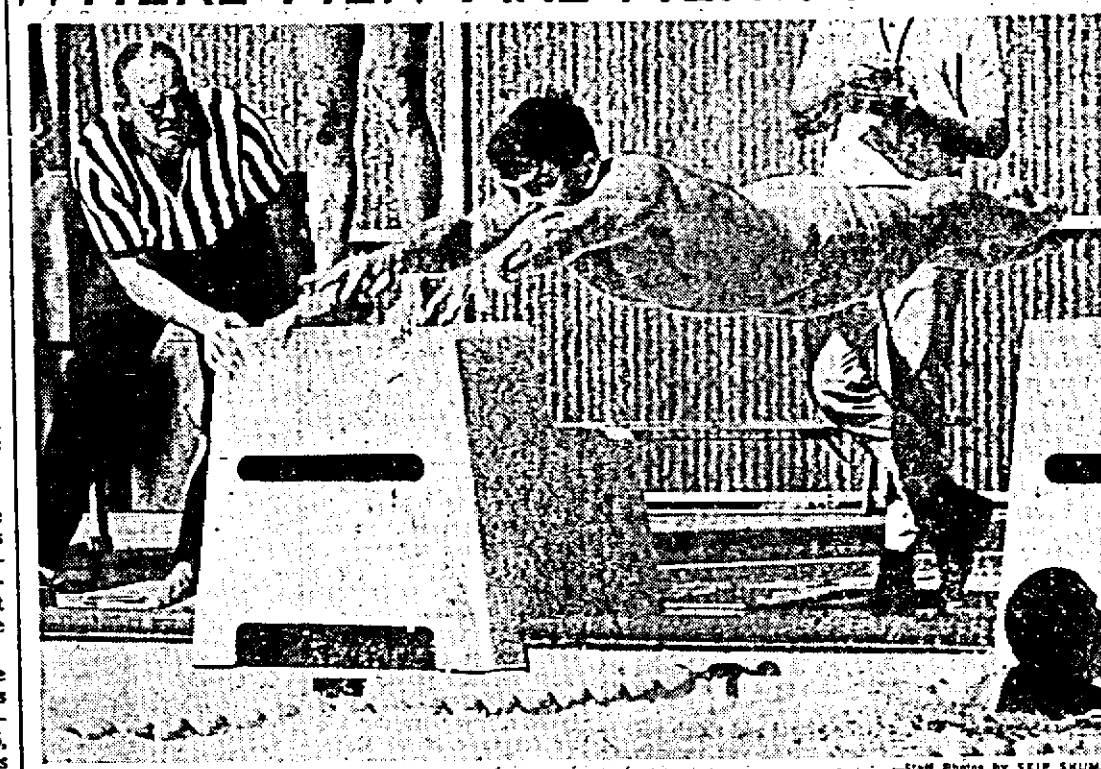

"Well, how about these figures. The major leagues drew 21,280,346 paid admissions last year at $1.75, a fair average, that makes around $37,275,000 in gate receipts. The National Football League drew about 4 1/2 million people at $4 a head — that's $18 million. If the prices are the same the AFL got about $5.4 million from 1.35 million people. That's big money to me."

"Sure, if you're comparing it to your pay or mine . . . But on this desk we spell it B-I-G—like Telephone and General Motors both showing $1.7 billion income taxes. There are a hundred or so companies with annual sales over a billion and I'd bet the entire take from sports wouldn't reach that."

"Sure, college and pro basketball draws maybe 15 million people but it's mostly kids on freebies or student tickets. Save a 30 million figure for auto races but that would require a lot of big crowds. The NHL couldn't draw more than 2.5 million people with every seat filled."

The sports writer was busy with pencil and paper. "If I add right, I make it something over $870 million, including the betting," he said. "And don't forget

WHERE MEN ARE MEN . . .

GARY ILMAN, an Olympic swimmer competing now for Long Beach State, flies off platform as official makes sure he doesn't leave too soon on anchor leg of 400-yard freestyle relay, won easily by 49ers.

AND WOMEN ARE, TOO!

WATCH McCULLOUGH

LBCC Bursting With Trackmen

By GARY RAUSCH

That old axiom, "There's Hanrahan, Gary Murchison Strength in Numbers," was never truer in the case of Long Beach City College's track team this year.

Coach Joe Lanning has had many fine individual performers in the past few years but he's never found himself with so many talented athletes on the same squad.

Perhaps the most famous name on the 1965 Viking roster is Earl McCullough. The most prolific high school hurdler in history ran up a string of 50 consecutive victories at Poly High.

Earl racked up 120-yard high hurdle and 220-yard low hurdle triumphs in Moore League, CIF and State finals before drubbing the rest of the nation in the Golden West Invitational.

He currently shares National records of 13.7 and 19.1.

McCULLOUGH may be the iron man of this year's contingent. In addition to the 120 high and 330 intermediates, Earl will take a crack at the 220 and triple jump plus a leg on the 440 relay team.

The Vikings will have great better-than-average strength in the long and triple in the mile and 2-mile.

Last year the Vikings manterm. Charles Young returns aged but one Metro dual meet after an injury-riddled freshman year. He will be augmented by all-America footballer Marv Motley, Bob

WILSON HIGH PLAYERS SET ENDURANCE MARK

A group of athletes from Wilson High, representing track, football and basketball teams, got together for a basketball clambake this weekend and set a national endurance record.

They began their game Friday at 8 a.m. and called it quits Saturday at 3 a.m. That 19-hour period stands as a record in the nation this season.

There were two Wilson teams called "three" and "four" which competed. Their names, scores and position are:

TEAM THREE: Reynaldo Benavides, 256 pts., forward; Dale Devoris, 176, guard; Doug Raney, 172, center; Dennis Campbell, 531, forward, and Ron Bidwell, 406, guard. Total points: 1,544.

TEAM FOUR: Pat Hopkins, 960 pts., center; Phil Hamble, 484, forward; Larry Durce, 358, guard; Dennis Cashman, 153, guard, and Steve Spalding, 592, forward. Total points: 2,577.

Now, go back to sleep kids.

SPORTS BRIEFS New Record for Matson

DALLAS (UPI) — Randy Matson, the Texas A&M sophomore and heir apparent to world champion Dallas Long's shotput crown, shattered the indoor record for the second night in a row Saturday with a toss of 66 feet 2 1/4 inches.

The towering Texan, who broke Gary Gubner's three-year-old mark of 64-11 1/2, Friday night in the Will Rogers Games at Fort Worth, came back to push the 16-pound iron ball past the 66-foot mark twice in the Dallas Invitational indoor meet.

His record toss came on his third try of the night after "warmup" throws of 63-3 1/2 and 64-9 1/2. Then, he came close to matching his best throw on the fourth try when he got off a 66-13 1/2.

Another pretty, Zsuzsa Szabo-Nagy of Hungary, trimmed three seconds off the 850 record to 2:10.5. Tiny Marie Mulder of Sacramento, who celebrated her 15th birthday only two days ago, was second at 2:11.4 — an American citizen's record.

Mrs. Szabo-Nagy "rather expected that I might set the record tonight. I was sleepy at the wrong time for several days, but I've been improving rapidly. The key was the tactical approach of running the first two laps as fast as possible to establish position and set a winning pace."

Long Beach City College led through the first leg of the junior college two-mile relay off Jim Hamlin's outstanding effort, but the Vikings simply were outclassed and finished fourth and last (8:04.8). San Diego Mesa won in 7:52.6.

Long Beach State finished second in the college two-mile relay. Pepperdine won in 7:47.4; the 49ers were stopped at 7:49.6.

Long Beach clockings were George Davis, 1:57.7; Mit Hunt, 1:57.8; Jeff Clements, 1:58.3; and Ralph Lee, 1:53.6.

Ilman Posts Aqua Double --49ers Win

Bill Birch and Gary Ilman, two time gold medalist at the Tokyo Olympics, each won two events Saturday to pace Long Beach State's swimmers to their first win of the young season, a lopsided 72-23 verdict over visiting Arizona University.

Ilman, a transfer student from Foothill Junior College, shattered the LBSC 100-yard freestyle record by seventeenth seconds with a 49.4 clocking. He also won the 200-yard individual medley and anchored the winning 400 freestyle relay.

Birch captured the 200 and 500 yard freestyle events.

400 medley relay—Long Beach (Rheaden, Kins, Barnett, Searles) 4:07.3; Arizona (Close, Morris, Curtis, Johnson) 4:10.0. 200 freestyle—Birch (LB) 1:57.7; Long (A), Mederos (A). 100 freestyle—Ilman (LB) 49.4; Quis (A), Anderson (A). 200 butterfly—Hoffman (LB) 2:25.4; Barnett (LB), Leigh (A). 100 breaststroke—Ilman (LB) 1:24.1; Barnett (LB), Leigh (A). 50 breaststroke—Ilman (LB) 1:08.1; Barnett (LB), Leigh (A). 100 backstroke—Ilman (LB) 1:24.1; Barnett (LB), Leigh (A). 200 backstroke—Ilman (LB) 2:30.1; Barnett (LB), Leigh (A). 400 freestyle relay—Long Beach (Hirsch, Barnett, Birch, Ilman) 7:49.6; Arizona (Close, Morris, Curtis, Johnson) 8:04.8. Golf Controversy Now Raging

By WILL GRIMSLEY
NEW YORK (AP)—Francis Ouimet, one of the immortals of American golf, joined Saturday in the criticism of format changes in the national championships, but the U.S. Golf Association stuck grimly to its guns.

"The general reaction among golfers has been overwhelming applause for our move," said Joe Dey, executive director of the USGA. "We believe it serves the best interests of the game."

The USGA dropped a bombshell at its recent annual meeting by announcing that the National Open would be a four-day instead of a three-day competition, eliminating the rigorous double round on the final day, and that the National Amateur would be converted from match to medal play.

The 36-hole windup has been a longtime tradition in the Open, borrowed from the British, who still retain it. The Amateur has been contested at match play since it was started in 1895.

Immediate and sharp protests resulted in some quarters, principally from old-timers and sentimentalists. Most of the modern players went on record as favoring the changes in both instances.

One criticism was that the USGA, in making the changes, has sold its soul for the television dollar. This was denied by Dey, who said TV receipts were not a factor.

"I sincerely hope that the USGA was not guided by mercenary reasons," said Ouimet, whose victory in the National Open at Brookline, Mass., in 1913 is credited with popularizing the sport in the United States.

Ouimet, an amateur, also won the National Amateur in 1914 and 1931 and served many years as captain of the U.S. Walker Cup team.

"Match play is the spirit of amateur golf," the gray-haired, bespectacled Bostonian said. "That's the way the competition started 200 years ago and has prevailed down through the years."

"There is something cold and impersonal about medal golf. You play against a course and 50 or 60 opponents you never see. In matches, the opponent is right with you. Admittedly, medal is the proper format for the professional but matches are for the amateur."

Backing Ouimet were such leading voices as Charles Chick Evans, Gene Sarazen and Fred Corcoran, the director of the International Golf Association.

Bill Campbell of Huntington, West Va., the 1964 National Amateur champion, led the strong and outspoken support of the USGA action. He was

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—The United States Amateur golf championship was dying on the vine and the best thing the USGA could have done was to change it to medal play, Jack Nicklaus said Saturday.

Nicklaus, who won the amateur crown in 1959 and 1961 at match play, said that only medal play develops a true champion.

"I won the crown twice in match play," he said. "But maybe I could have won it five times in medal. In match play there is too much luck involved in an 18 hole match."

joined by such leading present-day amateurs as Deane Beman, Charlie Coe, Billy Joe Patton, Harvie Ward, Dale Morey, Bill Hyndman and Bob Gardner.

"Match play is the essence of amateurs," insisted Evans, winner of both the National Amateur and National Open in 1916. "When you want to play, you don't go out and play the course. You call a friend and challenge him to a game."

Corcoran, credited with building the PGA tour into a million-dollar enterprise, recalled the historic challenge matches between Bob Jones and Walter Hagen, Sarazen and Quimet and added:

"Match play is the heartbeat of golf. It is sewn into the tradition of the game. Not considering the factors that brought about this decision, I'd hate to see match play disappear."

Sarazen said he felt that the National Open had lost its character in changing to a four-day tournament. "The 36-hole climax gave it an exciting quality," the Squire added. "It meant double pressure and it took a real champion to survive."

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—The United States Amateur golf championship was dying on the vine and the best thing the USGA could have done was to change it to medal play, Jack Nicklaus said Saturday.

Nicklaus, who won the amateur crown in 1959 and 1961 at match play, said that only medal play develops a true champion.

"I won the crown twice in match play," he said. "But maybe I could have won it five times in medal. In match play there is too much luck involved in an 18 hole match."

In the other half of the playoffs, the revitalized L. A. Eagles will journey to Montebello for a battle with the undefeated Red Sox.

The Harlem Clowns, second only to the Globetrotters in seniority among touring Negro comedy basketball teams, will play two games in their annual Long Beach stopover on their cross-country tour.

The Clowns will play at Jordan High Monday night and at Wilson High Tuesday night against faculty teams.

The Clowns, patterned after the Globetrotters, are owned by Al (Runt) Pullins, a member of the original Globetrotter squad 30 years ago.

Monday night's game begins at 8. Tickets are priced at $1.50 for adults, $1 for students and 50 cents for children under 12.

'First in U.S.' Gym Meet for Girl at Lakewood High

SEAWARD VIEW FROM SPHERE shows where two 14-foot water conduits will be laid 2,000 feet into Pacific and beneath ocean floor. Trestle will be extended for crane operations in laying intake and discharge conduits. Water leaves plant at about 80 degrees temperature.

INFORMATION CENTER will contain displays and information on nuclear power for enlightenment of visitors. Starting Friday, this will be open to public free of charge.

OPENS TO PUBLIC FRIDAY

Nuclear Power Plant to Have View Center

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

De luxe viewing facilities for would-be "sidewalk superintendents" and other visitors interested in the $87 million Nuclear Generating Station at San Onofre will be opened to the public Friday.

Housed in a dome-shaped modernistic building just off U.S. Highway 101, the new Information Center stands on a site some 85 feet above the generating plant being constructed on the ocean front for Southern California Edison and San Diego Gas & Electric companies.

The plant, now well along in construction, is located on the northern edge of Camp Pendleton, several miles south of San Clemente.

THE NEW Information Center, with convenient parking accommodations, is designed to complement the power station's giant steel containment sphere, which looms big and red and is visible from the highway.

Housed in the Center are activated exhibits which demonstrate and explain by recordings how the atom has been converted to peaceful use, its many applications in today's world and how it is being put to work to generate electricity.

The Center is 76 feet in diameter and ringed with a promenade around which visitors may stroll to view the work on the plant below. It will be open free to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Guided tours for special groups may be arranged through local offices of the companies.

When completed, in 1967, the nuclear plant will generate up to 450,000 kilowatts. It will be about twice the size of any nuclear-electric plant now in operation.

POWER FROM THE PLANT will be carried into the Edison system and be used over a wide area, including Long Beach.

The plant is on a 90 acre coastal site leased from the government. There is a 4,500 foot ocean frontage.

Edison is bearing 80% of the cost and the gas company is paying the other 20%.

Westinghouse Electric Corp. is due to deliver the 350 ton reactor this summer. It will be brought by barge from Chattanooga, Tenn., via rivers and sea.

The reactor will be 38 feet high with an inside diameter of 11 feet 7 inches and 9½ inch steel walls. It will be set inside the containment sphere, which is 140 feet in diameter and has an inch-thick steel shell.

THE REACTOR will be the heat source, containing nuclear fuel and control mechanism. Operations in the sphere will be supervised from a nearby control room.

The San Onofre (accent on the "no") station differs from other steam plants, such as those just east of Long Beach and near Huntington Beach, in that nuclear heat is used to produce the steam which drives the generating system, explained Robert L. Day of Fullerton, Edison's resident engineer on the job. Electricity then is produced in the same manner as in the conventional plant.

About 260 men are at work now on the project, Day said.

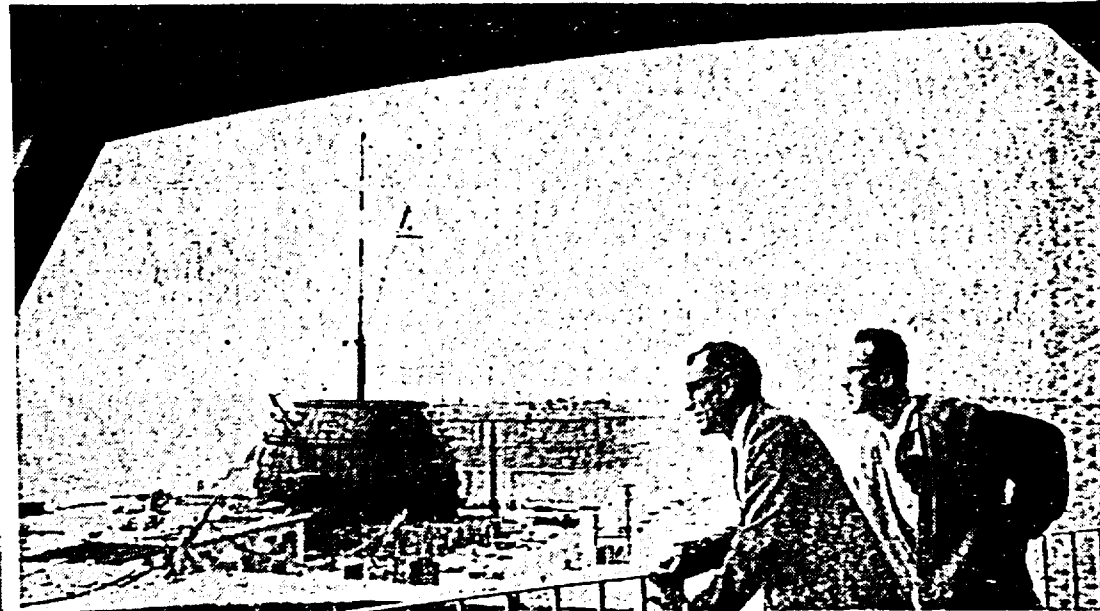

Two giant conduits will be extended 2,000 feet out to sea. They will have a 14-foot diameter and be laid several feet under the ocean floor. One will be an intake pipe, the other will discharge warm water from the plant.

A SPUR RAILROAD LINE has been laid from nearby Santa Fe tracks to serve the power plant. One of the principal uses of the line after completion of the plant

VISITORS to Information Center may examine this model of 350-ton nuclear reactor to be placed in huge sphere, through hole which will be cut in steel shell.

It's Only a Paper Heart—But... Please Be My Valentine

By MARY NETH

Combine hearts, flowers, tongue-out-of-cheek concentration and pasty (sticky, that is) paws—and what do you have? Do-it-yourself Valentines, of course—kindergarten-style. All over town the past week, small fry have been turning out poster-sized Valentine poetry—via paint and colored paper. The object of their affections: mama mostly, though dad's remembered, too.

A few years from now Johnny will swagger through the 'love day' with a sneer on his angelic (?) face. He'll smirkingly present his 'true-love' (a freckle-faced chubby in the first row) with the most awful, most insulting comic Valentine he can find. And he'll most likely declare his undying hatred at the same time he tosses it at her.

But, that's all in the future. Today, innocence and industry combine to create the most sincere, most sentimental valentines of all time—Valentines mama will treasure forever and ever and ever.

Take, for example, the designing enthusiasm of the kids in Beth Biddick's kindergarten class at Tincher School. So engrossed were the young artists in fashioning cupids and bows and frills, they hardly noticed the newspaper photographer.

But, we thought you'd notice THEM—it's our Valentine to you.

BOLD, BRIGHT and so beautiful—Martha Williams, 5 (above), displays kindergarten Valentines made in Beth Biddick's class at Tincher School. Heartfelt art work was dedicated to the mamas. Mark Swency, 5 (right), really gets the feel of the project—fingerpaints a happy heart of brilliant red.

RAPT WITH RAPTURE that comes with making something for someone, Gina Fenner, 5, concentrates on card-cutting. Her Valentining will be a grand success—it's in the cards. The kindergarten project made use of many media—paints, paste, colored paper. But small-fry imagination was what turned it from an exercise to an artistic adventure.

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Their Lucky 13--Your Good Luck

By ELISE EMERY

Tossing their pretty heads and snapping their fingers at superstition, Junior Leaguers are facing up to the final week of preparation for Operation Rummage Sale.

Months ago — when the event was scheduled for this coming Friday and Saturday—there were dark warnings by skeptics that this would be the league's 13th annual rummage sale and it would be bedeviled by all the evils that surround that unlucky number.

But members merely laughed.

Not only are they defying Lady Luck to desert them by having their 13th sale, they are going further.

THIS YEAR, the giant-of-all rummage sales becomes a real Paul Bunyan by pulling on seven league boots and taking a tremendous stride from the previous site (Municipal Auditorium) to the new Long Beach Arena.

Reason for the big move? Simple—more sales area.

Mrs. Robert W. Latimer, ways and means chairman, points out that the space is increased from 20,000 to 50,000 square

Just 'Leaf' It to Mayonnaise ... and a few cubes of ice

If you want to look fresh—and you're a rubber plant—ask for mayonnaise dressing.

That's what Claudine Cluff (above) is giving the leafy green plant at Ken's Restaurant, 3918 Long Beach Blvd.

"Mayonnaise make up leaves my rubber plant's leaves with a real bouncy look," says Bill Snodgrass, owner-manager.

The pampered four-foot hunk of shiny plantdom arrived at Ken's just 2½ years ago. It thrives on the dining-out atmosphere and doesn't eat up the profits.

It's daily fare is mayonnaise dressing—no lettuce or tomatoes—and ice cubes.

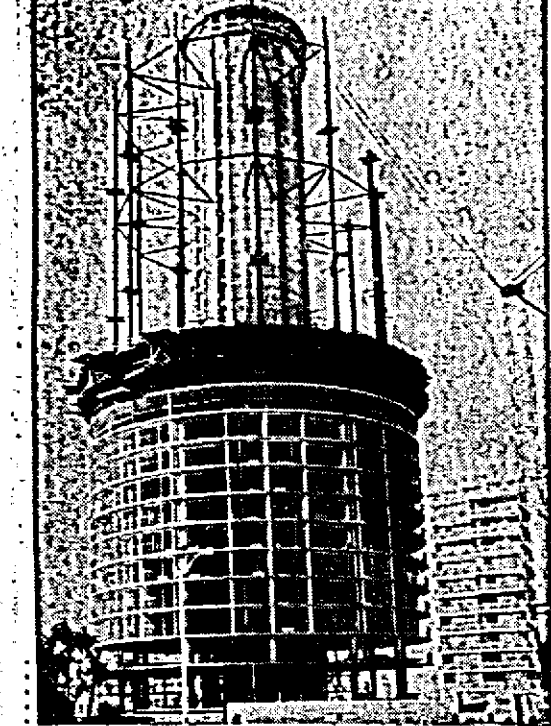

The ice cubes? "I've used that method of watering plants all my life," says Bill.

The theory? The ice melts slowly and gets to the root of the matter in an even manner. You don't run the chance of flooding your plant. It's cool, man!

WITH DERRING-DO and carefree disregard of superstition, Mrs. John Pearce and Mrs. Robert W. Latimer are ready to walk under the ladder.

Load Tests Start at Round Tower Building

First in a series of load tests began at the Tower Apartment Building, 66 E. Ocean Blvd., last week, as required by the city's Department of Building and Safety.

STEEL RISING DOWNTOWN

High rise crane keeps busy as steel workers speed frame topping for Tower Apartment Building at 666 E. Ocean Blvd. in downtown Long Beach. One of round structure's features will be revolving restaurant near top.

Nuclear Power Plant to Open View Center

Will be transportation of lead-shielded fuel weighing about 100 tons per carload. The plant is due to be ready for operation early in 1967, Day said. Bechtel Corporation is serving as engineer and builder on the project. There will be no harmful emissions, it was stressed. Emissions from the stack could be breathed without harm and water from the plant could be drunk, except that it will be salty sea water.

SPENT FUEL containing radioactive fission products will be removed safely in special casks and taken to a government reprocessing plant. The uranium must be made into pellets about a half inch in diameter. These are loaded into tube-like fuel rods some 10 feet long. The rods are assembled into clusters, or "fuel assemblies." The plant will use 156 fuel assemblies, each containing 189 rods, which laid end to end would extend 55 miles. The initial fuel loading will be equivalent to 18 million barrels of fuel oil and should last three and one-half years before reloading is necessary.

Up to 45 tons of weight is imposed by running water into huge plywood tanks lined with polyethylene plastic cloth. A maximum load of 150 pounds per square foot is created. Measurements are taken by sensitive dial gauges to determine deflections to an accuracy of one-thousandth of an inch. Need for the tests was created by the unique circular pre-stressed slab design. The city wants to be certain it complies with the building code.

THERE WILL BE a series of four tests, with 1 and 2 testing the cantilever portion of the slab and series 2 and 3 testing the slab between the columns and core wall. Tests are being done on the sixth floor. Building department officials and owner-builder Henry Sassoon were among the spectators as the tests began under supervision of engineers T. Y. Lin & Associates of Van Nuys and Twining Laboratories of Long Beach. Completion of the building is slated for June, and construction is progressing as per timetable.

RUSSELL WORKMAN
Now Vice President

Workman to Supervise Edgewater

Russell I. Workman has been named vice president, hotel operations, of Transwestern Hotels, Inc., owners and operators of the Edgewater Inn Marina Hotel and City Center Motel in Long Beach.

Workman will supervise hotel operations of Transwestern's two Long Beach properties and facilities in San Francisco, Oakland and Corte Madera, according to Jim Stockman, president of the garden hotel chain headquartered in Santa Rosa.

In addition to its existing properties, Transwestern is planning to expand its hotel chain to include operations in downtown Los Angeles, Carson City, Richmond and Sacramento.

ALSO SCHEDULED is a 14-story tower addition to the Edgewater Inn Garden Hotel in Oakland.

Workman's new assignment calls for him to spend part of each month in Long Beach, Stockman said.

General manager of Transwestern's Edgewater Inn in Oakland, a post he will maintain in addition to his new duties, Workman joined the hotel chain a few years ago just prior to opening of the Oakland facility.

Goodman Back at Downey Firm

Lester Goodman, 41, nationally-known housing executive, has rejoined L. C. Major & Associates, Downey-based community coordinators and residential design firm, as vice president in charge of marketing.

L. C. Major, president, said Goodman also has been elected a member of the firm's board of directors.

Harry G. Stewart, executive vice president, noted that "Goodman will be responsible for a full marketing program, including sales and public relations."

In accepting the new post at L. C. Major, Goodman gave up a position as director of marketing at the Alco Pacific Construction Co., Westminster.

Goodman joined Major originally in 1956 and was with the Downey-based firm for five years as sales manager.

Hannah and Rose Win Sales Honors

Ernie F. Hannah and Peter G. Rose, representatives of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Co. and members of the M. C. Hummel Agency of Long Beach, have earned membership in one of the company's national sales honor clubs, according to an announcement by Henry W. Persons, senior vice president.

Club qualification is based upon the placement of a large volume of business in a 12-month period. As club members, Hannah and Rose will attend one of the 10 Lincoln National regional advanced underwriting seminars to be held this spring.

May Co. Starts Store in Mesa

COSTA MESA — Ground-breaking was held here last week for start of a new May Co. store in the new South Coast Plaza shopping center located north of the San Diego Freeway route near Bristol Street.

This will be the company's 13th store, it was noted by Geoffrey Swaabe, president and general manager. He recalled that the first May Co. store in Orange County was the one opened at Buena Park in 1963.

"The immediate and continuing success of our Buena Park store," he said, "has given us great confidence in the growth of Orange County."

"WE FEEL that there is a May Co. store to serve another part of this fast-growing area. We are extremely pleased to be locating our 13th store in the city of Costa Mesa."

The new 248,000 square foot store will be a full line department store on three levels. There will be a May-Mart basement operation and auto center.

May Co. store No. 12 is under construction at Whittier.

SOUTH COAST PLAZA is due to be the largest shopping center in Orange County and one of the five largest in the United States.

The store areas will be under one roof. The center will include a new Sears Roebuck store, planned as the largest Sears store in the country.

Security Bank Starts New 'ReservAccount' System

A new banking service, called Ready ReservAccount, is being launched this week by Security First National Bank. The program is designed to put a cash reserve behind the checking accounts of customers whose credit standing qualifies them to participate. The service is only for checking account customers, bank officials emphasized.

THE PLAN works in this manner: A checking account customer fills out an application and submits it to his branch manager. On approval, a mutually agreeable line of credit is placed behind the checking account for use in case of emergencies, unexpected bills and other worthwhile needs. The Ready ReservAccount is set up cost free. To draw on the account, the customer merely has to write a personal check. The funds will be transferred automatically from the Ready ReservAccount when the amount in the checking account is insufficient to pay the check. A continuing reserve is available for the unused part of the Ready ReservAccount.

IF THE MONEY is paid back within the first 25 days, there is no interest charge. If the customer wishes to repay over a longer period, payments with interest are arranged.

Security Bank checking account statements for Ready ReservAccount customers will show regular checking account balances, Ready ReservAccount amount owing and the balance remaining in the Ready ReservAccount.

WILD WAVES SAY

World Premiere to Aid the World

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Society Editor

TIME IS of the essence—and so is the status of your bank balance—if you want to be part of a status night—the world premiere of "The Greatest Story Ever Told." The picture will be given a posh first-night send-off—to the tune of $100 per ticket—on Wednesday at Pacific Cinerama Theater, Sunset and Vine, Hollywood. Proceeds will go to the Eleanor Roosevelt Memorial Foundation, which in turn supports the United Nations.

Support great show for a great cause.

Joyce's interest is manifold in the event. She is on national committee of the foundation, has long been a national figure in UN activities. What's more, she is a member of LB's sister city committee for Valparaiso, Chile. At premiere all consul generals in Los Angeles will be honored and Joyce and husband, Alex, will be host to Honorable Miguel I. Bravo and Mrs. Bravo of Chile during show and champagne supper following at Coconut Grove.

Premieres, incidentally, will be shown in major cities throughout U.S. Wednesday—all benefitting the foundation and UN. If you want to be part of an exciting, socially extravagant night, Mrs. Alexis Jacobowsky, 257 Belmont Ave., will try to make reservations for you. Check the piggy bank first.

FOR ONCE, sophisticated Helene Drown was as flabbergasted as a kid caught stealing cookies from the pantry. Only she wasn't stealing anything—instead was being given a large amount of pleasure at a cleverly engineered and very swank surprise birthday party by Betty and Dan Ridder in Rolling Hills.

Helene was tricked into being there in appropriate party dress because Betty had told her they were entertaining for friends from Tacoma. In on the secret, Jack Drown (the sneak) never once let his wife in on the fancy connivery.

Among 30 at the black tie cocktail and sit-down dinner, were Loraine and John Lungen, Dorothy and Lee Wiltze, Peg and Ray Webb. Among the PV and Rolling Hills crowd present were Dorothy and Manley Natland, Rosemary and Don Dunbar, Janice and Oggie Coale.

EVEN THE jet set will have to concede that Lt. Col. Joe Herrmann's change of duty has broken some kind of "faster than" barrier. He and wife, Dorrie, and their five children, streaked off into the wild blue Monday for new Air Force duty in England and Joe reported in with a snappy salute early Wednesday.

After several years in this area, Joe—one of the most popular of the regular Air Force men—served as exec. officer and director of personnel for the AF Reserve at LB Municipal Airport. Now he's begun a stint in Jolly Olde but with a promise that, whenever he decides to retire, he'll ground himself in Long Beach to make this his and Dorrie's hometown.

"THE CONTAINER" for Long Beach Museum Association's cocktail party and annual membership get-together from 5 to 7 p.m. this afternoon will be Frank Brothers' store, 2400 L.B. Blvd.

That glib reference to the store as the party container was Eddie's own. A founding member of the association, he has arranged for members and prospective members to meet at chair, sofa, lamp, table, etc. emporium—will have on display a most unusual series of vignettes of original classic contemporary pieces from 1925 (and even before) to the present. They are (I was told by other than Eddie) really collector items.

THE MUSIC CENTER, Los Angeles, has rung to better music, I'm sure, but none more enthusiastically rendered than the sporadic outbursts Saturday night of "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi." It was Sigma Chi (alumni) of So. Cal's annual scholarship fund dinner dance. Long Beach men and their wives or dates first gathered at Edith and Lew Hindleys' house for cocktails, then hied on up to the center for the main stream party.

Among them were Phyllis and John Brady, Kelly Williams and Mary Kay Gerson, Margaret and Don Phillips, Harrison Kepler and Jenne Allee, Kitty and "Harpo" Kilroy and Sandra and Bill Du Bourdieu. Sigs as yet not in the alum swing can contact Lew Hindley, 4420 Clubhouse Dr., Lakewood, for details on how to get in with the alum alliance.

FEEL A complaint coming on? Hang back a half a mo' and consider the case of Nancy Drum. She chided Ebell Junior Board members because she hadn't received the traditional birthday card sent board gals. Culpit Carolyn McDowell (whose duty it was, but who missed the date) scurried out and sent a belated greeting via special delivery.

Plan was good, card was clever but the post office just too prompt. Bearer of greetings (neither sleet nor rain, and all that jazz y' know) arrived at 5 a.m. at Nan's house to ring a doorbell long and loud and do his bounden duty. Not only did pealing of bell send Nan into half awake orbit headed for front door, but drummed all other Drums out of cozy beds, by then too startled to return to sleep. Keeping husband Dale and the two boys entertained from 5 a.m. until normal getting up time proved to Nancy that the squeaking wheels may not always appreciate the oil.

A GANG of gal bridge clubbers decided they'd rather put dollars in a kitty each time they played than spend the loot on prizes and, when they had enough cool cash in cool kitty storage, spend it on a night on the town for all.

Problem was, being women—and generally working ones, at that—when they had enough for their first splurge, they couldn't get together on a date or place convenient for all. That went on for—well, on and on.

Finally, they came to grips with selves and cash and decided they had enough for a full weekend of fun—not here, but for a grand and glorious "expense free" trip to San Francisco. Getting ready, below, to break the cash loose from its confines are bidders who speed: Viola (Mrs. Arthur) Hamblin, Helen (Mrs. A. C.) Parker, Janet (Mrs. I. L.) Victorson and Marcella (Mrs. Russell) Best.

Two others I know of who went on joyous jaunt were Ellen (Mrs. M. R.) Bastien and Sada (Mrs. Ed) McKeon. They left husbands at home (where else?) and went to Bay country. Fun? You better believe it. They flew up and did everything from having brunch at Buena Vista (followed by rich Irish coffee) to shopping, to riding cable cars, to night clubbing (four of them after dinner at the Fairmont). Then they took the Daylight home, playing bridge all the way, beginning the bank account for next journey—to Las Vegas. Psst, gals—when you go there take husbands well armed with check books. It'll be safest bet since grand slam with all spades.

Their bridge prize—a joyous jaunt.

Mrs. Roger Alan Browning

Browning-Anixter Are Newlyweds

Amid the floral decor of pink roses and camellias, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Alan Browning, the former Katherine Anixter, received guests at their wedding reception in San Francisco's Fairmont Hotel.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dale Browning of Long Beach, took Miss Anixter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Anixter of Kentfield, as his bride when the couple repeated nuptial vows in the hotel before more than 200 witnesses.

THE BRIDE chose a floor-length lace sheath gown with picture neckline. An overskirt of silk alpaca draped into a chapel train. Mrs. Benjamin Anixter, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor with Mrs. John Friedenrich and Karen Sue Browning, sister of the bridegroom, completing the entourage. The best man was Stephen Strong with Benjamin Anixter, brother of the bride and Kent Charles Browning, brother of the groom, Robert Ritner and Richard Hopping seating guests.

The new Mrs. Browning was graduated from UC at Berkeley, where she was a member of Alpha Epsilon Phi. Her husband, a Poly High alumnus, also was graduated from UC at Berkeley and is now attending the University of California Boalt Hall Law School. He is a member of Beta Theta Pi.

Travelers Three to Sing at L.B. Home-O-Rama

Free entertainment at the Long Beach Home-O-Rama Feb. 24-28 will feature the folk music of The Travelers Three, according to George Colours, producer of the annual home show.

It will be a return engagement for the singers, who scored an outstanding success with Home-O-Rama audiences at the 1962 show, Colours said.

Colours said The Travelers Three will present free shows onstage in the Long Beach Arena twice each weeknight and four times on Saturday and Sunday during the five-day show.

THE GROUP, comprised of Pete Apo, Charlie Oyama and Dick Shirley, started in Eugene, Ore., in 1960. After playing at many local affairs, they toured the Far East for the USO, then played a six-week engagement in the Hawaiian Village on Honolulu.

From there they went on to concert tours at many major universities and at some of the nation's best-known night clubs like the Blue Angel in New York and the Palmer House in Chicago.

They also have made recording albums which have been a hit all over the country and have signed a long-term contract with one of the nation's largest recording firms, Colours said.

THE HOME-O-RAMA, sponsored annually by the Long Beach Builders Exchange, will feature hundreds of decorated booths containing the latest products of interest to homeowners.

Other highlights will be the awarding of The Lucerne, a $10,000 leisure home and a queen contest.

Cal-Fed 'Unveils' 28-Story $17 Million Office Building

NEW CALIFORNIA FEDERAL BUILDING

California Federal Savings & Loan Association this week will unveil its new Miracle Mile skyscraper on Wilshire Boulevard in Los Angeles.

Dedication ceremonies are scheduled Monday morning. A week-long series of grand opening events follow.

Speakers scheduled for the events include John W. Stadler, Washington, D. C., president of the United States Savings & Loan League, the national trade association for all S&Ls; and Roy Wenzlick, St. Louis, real estate consultant, author and lecturer.

STADLER will speak at the dedication luncheon Monday and Wenzlick's address will come Thursday at a dinner for Southern California Builders and Realtors, sponsored by California Federal's Loan Division.

Known as the billion-dollar association's head office Plaza Building, the $17 million, 28-story structure has been under construction at 5670 Wilshire Blvd., for three years. It is the crowning jewel in a multi-story construction program which, to date, has seen the association provide 11 of its 13 branches with substantial regional office quarters in the Southland.

MOST RECENT announcement was a $1 million office building to house California Federal's Lakewood office.

The general public is invited to tour the diamond-shaped skyscraper "from the bottom up" in tours that begin during the grand opening week and continue on a permanent basis.

Golden-suited girls will lead visitors on tours at 15-minute intervals during regular business hours.

MAJOR FEATURES of the skyscraper—Wilshire's tallest—include the highest and largest helipark (365 feet above ground) on any commercial office center in the West, a massive fountain (17x45x30 ft.) created by the internationally-known sculptress Claire Falkenstein especially for the Wilshire-Hauser corner, a 350-seat auditorium on the third floor, and numerous other accommodations.

A view of the Los Angeles-Hollywood area from one of the Plaza Building's top floors will be among the sights for the visitors.

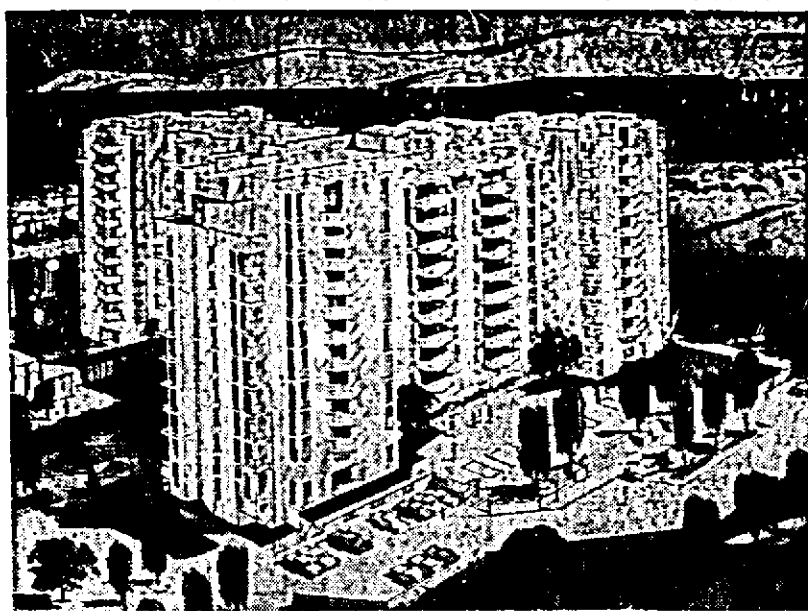

Orange County Appraisers to Meet

SANTA ANA—Nationally-known housing executive Lester Goodman, will address the Orange County Chapter of the Society Real Estate Appraisers Wednesday evening at the Revere House, Santa Ana, California.

The meeting will begin with cocktails at 6 p.m., with dinner at 7.

Goodman will speak on the "Development and Organizational Costs Often Not Considered by Appraisers in the Appraisal of New Tract Development."

He also will discuss the latest proven techniques in marketing of tract housing. Reservations may be made by calling Emile H. Beraston.

PALOS VERDES PENINSULA PROJECT

Retirement Residence, Inc. of San Francisco has announced plans to build this high-rise structure at High Ridge and Buflspring roads on the Palos Verdes Peninsula, near Peninsula Center. It would contain 308 apartment units for retirement living, with a medical setup too. Company representatives said it was hoped construction could start within a month. The project is under sponsorship of the National Health Foundation. Another building also is planned in the Southland, at Van Nuys.

Air Force Role in Space to Be Told

Role of the Air Force in the nation's space program will be explained Thursday noon at the Long Beach Advertising Club luncheon in the French Room at the Lafayette Hotel.

Southern California's economy is deeply involved in this subject. Maj. Francis E. Thompson, of the Space MAJ. THOMPSON Division of the Air Force, will present the program, assisted by Lieut. David E. Hankins. The talk will be highlighted by animated illustrations, movies made by the government.

Thompson will be introduced by Ken McCafferty, advertising consultant, formerly with Sears bi-county advertising office, and a past president of the club. President Frank H. Schultz, sales manager of Southern California Edison, will preside.

Reservations may be made by calling Helen Perkins, manager of Independent Press-Telegram Engravers.

SUBJECTS FOR DISCUSSION

Realtors Will Meet Feb. 25 in L.B. for Sales Conference

Hundreds of Long Beach area realtors will attend an all-day sales conference Feb. 25 in the Municipal Auditorium Concert Hall.

The program is part of the California Real Estate Association's educational program.

Theme of the conference will be "The Professional Approach to Listing and Selling Homes and Small Income Property," according to James C. Hoffman, president of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, a co-sponsor of the meeting.

In attendance will be realtors from Bellflower, Compton, Lynwood, Downey, Montebello, Norwalk-La Mirada, Pico Rivera, Southeast and Whittier, as well as Long Beach boards.

"THIS CONFERENCE is conducted to enable realtors and salesmen to update their knowledge of the fundamentals of listing and selling real estate," Hoffman said.

"The CREA editorial board researched each of the subjects to be presented in order to present the 'here and now' of real estate selling. This conference will not only benefit the realtors and real estate salesmen who attend, but also the citizens in Long Beach by assuring them of professional service in the purchase and sale of real estate."

One of the nation's top sales consultants, Bob Bale of Phoenix, Ariz., will be featured speaker.

According to Ira Gribin of Encino, CREA education chairman, an examination will be given at the close of the one-day conference and those who pass will receive one unit of credit toward the CREA Education Certificate. Twelve units of credit plus three years' experience as a member of a local board of realtors are required for a broker to obtain the certificate. A salesman needs eight units and three years' experience.

DAVE CONGER of Vallejo, chairman of the CREA Education Sales Conference Committee, announced that the subjects and speakers to be presented on the conference program include:

"Listing—The Professional Approach," by Dan Wright, Santa Barbara; "Advertising and Public Relations," by Lou Von Dyl, Sherman Oaks; "Selling Real Estate Investment Property," by David Stone, San Jose; and "Financing—The Key to Closing the Sale," by Herbert Hawkins, Temple City.

Dave Conger will act as the moderator of the program.

"In most cases the purchase of a home or apartment house is a family's largest investment in a lifetime," said Hoffman. "Professional counsel and guidance by a qualified realtor is necessary to assure that the purchase represents a sound and wise investment for the years to come."

"This conference, one of a series co-sponsored by CREA and Long Beach District Board of Realtors, enable our members to give improved professional real estate service."

Japanese Inspect H.B. Prestige Units

A group of representatives from the Japan Construction Industry Study Team, in the United States to inspect all facets of this nation's building, recently toured the Huntington Village Prestige Homes development in Huntington Beach.

The tour was arranged by Ken Kirk, Orange County Chapter manager of the Building Contractors Association of California, with the Prestige Homes community being selected because it most nearly met the specifications of the study team as to size, 849 homes plotted with 600 finished or under construction; the variety of plans and financing available to the home-buyer; and the fact that the development led all others in Huntington Beach, Fountain Valley and Westminster in total homes sales in 1964.

A Japanese style brunch was hosted by the Doyle & Shields Development Co., Inc., builders of Prestige Homes, before the group toured the models and inspected other feet. Hence, most departments will be increased by one and a half times their former size and more merchandise than ever will be offered for sale.

Hours will be from 6 to 10 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

LAST YEAR'S sale netted $16,818 and a healthy improvement over that figure is expected this year with the increased sales area. All proceeds go into the Long Beach Junior League's Community Trust Fund to be returned to the community through projects and philanthropies such as Homemakers Service, Children's Dental Foundation and Symphony Previews.

NOTES OF BUSINESS AND ECONOMY

Have You Heard of Jeep Bargain? Don't Believe It

By KEN CHILCOTE

Business Editor

Perhaps you are among the thousands of Americans who want to buy a jeep because you have heard that surplus World War II jeeps "still in crates" are available at anywhere from $50 to $150 each. Such deals just don't exist! Uncle Sam says so through the Defense Logistics Services Center which is in charge of surplus sales. All military surplus jeeps are being sold at two locations, Defense Logistics Services Centers in San Diego and Norfolk.

Norfolk last week sold 55 so-called jeeps but they really were carcasses from which mechanics had removed such major components as engines, wheels, radiators, axles, transmissions, windshields and seats. Those parts will be used in repairing others. Any jeeps that the Army can't use are picked up immediately for use by some other governmental agency.

What about San Diego jeep sales? Well, the first sale under the government policy inaugurated last year for such disposal, still is pending. Only two saleable surplus jeeps turned up west of the Mississippi River.

ONE NEIGHBORHOOD shopping center for Long Beach is near completion and another has been started. The center at Redondo Avenue and Anaheim Street has some components now open and the remainder will open shortly.

Meanwhile, construction is under way on Willow Shopping Center at the southwest corner of Willow St. and Caspian Ave., being developed by Bessie and George Werner. Dwyer-Curlett & Co., mortgage banking firm secured a loan commitment on the neighborhood center through Life and Casualty Insurance Co. of Tennessee.

Alpha Beta will occupy the main store in the center which Contractor Ernest W. Hahn is expected to complete in June.

A $1,250,000 Rose/Linda Shopping Center for Yorba Linda is announced by Harry S. Rinker of Rinker Development Corp. It will be at the corner of Rose and Yorba Linda Blvd. Von's Market will be featured.

A HIGH RISE apartment building for Signal Hill is meeting with some loan commitment difficulties. The development group blames cancellation of the World's Fair in Long Beach for discouraging Eastern investments in the city. Roger D. Brown of Newport Beach has joined Lockheed Propulsion Co. as manager of Army sales.

American Honda Motor Co. announced expansion of its warehousing facilities in Gardena with an additional 22,000 square feet being acquired immediately adjacent to the warehouse.

PAULEY PETROLEUM Inc., in the first quarter of their fiscal year drilled 21 wells of which 20 were productive, including a new gas discovery well on the Naval Weapons Station lease in Contra Costa County. The well potentials at 20,500,000 cubic feet of gas per day. Republic Supply Co. of California — the Thomas P. Pike headed company — has expanded beyond the Pacific states for the first time by construction of a major headquarters in Dallas. The company now has 18 warehouses and sales offices in five states. The company also has embarked on diversification and now owns 53% of National Engineering Science Co.

AEROJET - GENERAL Corp., the El Monte based subsidiary of General Tire and Rubber, reported sales the past year of $611,455,283 with earnings per share of common stock $3.36. The company is a major supplier of propulsion systems for missiles and rockets and is diversified by bow operating in such fields as automation, plastics, chemicals, water desalination, electronics, ship construction and repair, underwater research and optical systems equipment.

Beckman Instruments announced acquisition of a metabolic monitoring system from Precision Scientific Co. to incorporate into a new system for hospitals to be manufactured and marketed by the company's Physiological Measurements Group of Fullerton. The system utilizes breath analysis techniques to monitor general metabolism of the body in a wide range of applications.

THE WORLD'S largest conveyor belt system is being used at Oroville to build the world's highest embankment dam. B. F. Goodrich supplied the 52,135 feet of steel cable rubber belting. Goodrich also has perfected a multi-cellation of the World's Fair help save lives when aircraft are forced down at sea. J.C. Penney Co., reported annual volume of $2 billion for the first time in its 63-year history, joining an exclusive group of four other retailers America personnel changes doing more than $2 billion in this area include: Mare sales annually.

HARVEY ALUMINUM of Torrance reported net income for the first fiscal quarter rose 40%. Premium income of Aetna Life Insurance Co. will exceed $1 billion for the first time in the company's 112-year history, according to George McKeehan, Long Beach general agent.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS — Jerry L. Block, 1858 Fanwood Ave., has been named sales division manager of Geigy Pharmaceuticals. Bank of America personnel changes include: Mare

Ferrari, San Pedro, now assistant cashier at North Long Beach branch; Roderick McWhinney a Pecos Verdes, named assistant advertising officer at Los Angeles headquarters; Stan G. Broberg, 485 E. 55th St., named assistant cashier, Gardena Branch. Crocker-Citizens National Bank announced that Donald E. Clark of Lakewood has been named assistant cashier in charge of the bank's staff sales program and R.E. Soenichsen of Norwalk has been named vice president and manager of the Hawthorne-Artesia office.

The Egg and He Cooks Up Chicken

By MILDRED K. FLANARY, P-T Food Editor

With apologies to the "Egg and I," this shot should be headed, "The Egg in Action."

Never doubt, however, that the man guiding the destinies of that egg knows exactly what he's about. (So did the phone, Chuck Sandquist.) Today's the Chef of the Week, Arnold Vann, as owner of The Tenderloin, had better know.

Vann, who purchased the eating place just two months ago, is probably better known, for another affiliation... Welch's Restaurant, which he managed for 17 years. He estimates that some one million persons were served during those years.

VANN MADE his debut in this business-of-eating about 25 years ago. Rex Welch was then the civilian business manager at Allen Center, and Vann, then in the Navy, was in charge of Navy personnel.

Then came the rumor that all men at Allen Center would be sent overseas. So Welch transferred him to the Roosevelt Naval Operating Base. The rumor was wrong—so was the transfer—and Vann was sent to the South Pacific, where he served two years. One version is that Welch didn't want to lose him. Another is, that it was a "Shanghai" deal. However, they remained good friends, and upon his return, Vann again joined Welch on Terminal Island.

About this time (1947) Welch was dreaming up his "garden spot" at 4401 Atlantic Ave. Vann went along with the dream, AND along with the restaurant—as manager.

Quite naturally, Vann runs on "restaurant time," not Greenwich Mean Time. He does his best cooking (and loves it) at home, at night, after the restaurant closes. And the dish he's most likely to fix is a batch of chili 'n beans.

at California State College, Long Beach. It's understood that our "Chef" isn't particularly fond of chicken, but this recipe is the exception. It's his own concoction.

CHICKEN HAWAIIAN

- 1 chicken (2 1/2-3 1/2 lbs.). Clean, disjoint and DRY thoroughly.
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1 egg yolk
- 1/2 tsp. pepper
- 1/2 tsp. paprika
- 2 tbsp. soy sauce
- 2 tbsp. lemon juice
- 2 tbsp. butter
- 1/4 cup honey

Melt butter and add to other ingredients. Dip chicken in mixture (generously), place on cookie sheet or shallow baking pan, and bake at 400 degrees for 1 1/2 hours.

Serve it with Hawaiian Rice: 1 cup uncooked rice 1 can beef bouillon 1/2 dozen green onions (chopped, tops and all)

Saute onions in butter, add rice and bouillon. Cover and cook very slowly until rice is done.

Rental Wives Aren't New

DEAR ABBY: I have conceived an idea that is so great it frightens me. In this day of renting everything and charging it on credit cards, wouldn't it be wonderful if a man could rent a wife?

Just think of the possibilities! Some men like to hunt and fish, but their wives don't. So a man could rent an out-door type to go hunting and fishing with him. There are men who like nothing better than to eat a home-cooked meal, and then fall asleep watching television. Quiet women who enjoy being alone would qualify for that kind of man. Men who have to attend lots of conventions could rent a "wife" who'd enjoy going with him if he's married to a woman who can always find a million excuses to stay home. I am interested in your opinion, Abby.—"GENIUS"

DEAR GENIUS: Don't try to copyright your idea—it's as old as the "heels" although not advertised as a "rental service." It's never put on a credit card or deducted as a business expense. And if the idea "frightens" you enough to forget it, you'll be lucky.

DEAR ABBY: For heaven's sake, why don't they have a humane society for husbands like they have for dogs and cats? A woman can be prosecuted for starving and neglecting an animal, but what if she treats her husband that way? I know a wife who,

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old girl in the seventh grade. A group of girls from our school stick together during the noon hour. Since we attend a parochial school, sex is a touchy subject. There are nine of us and not one has the heart to ask our mothers about the facts of life. We are afraid if we let on that we are even thinking about it they would die of embarrassment. Abby, would you please tell mothers not to leave the questions up to their kids when they reach this age? If the kids haven't already asked by this time, they are too chicken. Sex is a dirty word to most kids because their parents whisper it and grown-ups shut up about it when we enter a room. Maybe they will see what we mean. Thank you.—TOO CHICKEN

READ LETTERS FROM WOMEN, YOU MAY EVEN KNOW PERSONALLY, TELLING ABOUT THEIR FIGURE PROBLEMS, FRUSTRATIONS, FINALLY REDUCING SUCCESS

Long Beach Woman Reduces From a Size 18 to a Size 12

Here you see a snapshot of Mrs. Janette Gleason when she was a size 18 and weighed 170 pounds. She tried pills and fasting and would lose a few pounds but in a short time would gain the lost pounds right back. Nothing seemed to work until she tried the Pat Walker reducing program. In the next three months she was a size 12 and she is today.

Miss Janette Gleason, Long Beach

I will always be grateful that I happened to pick up the paper and saw your advertisement. It was about an older woman who had lost weight through your program. So I decided to look into it.

I had a beautiful figure before I had my children. After the first one I went up to 155 pounds and stayed for 10 years until my second son came. I then weighed 170 pounds and I couldn't seem to lose it. Oh I'd go on a diet and lose a few pounds but would then gain right back on.

In 1964 I had to have my left lung removed and in the 5 years following I went up to 180 1/2 pounds. My doctor kept telling me I had to lose weight. He gave me pills but nothing seemed to work.

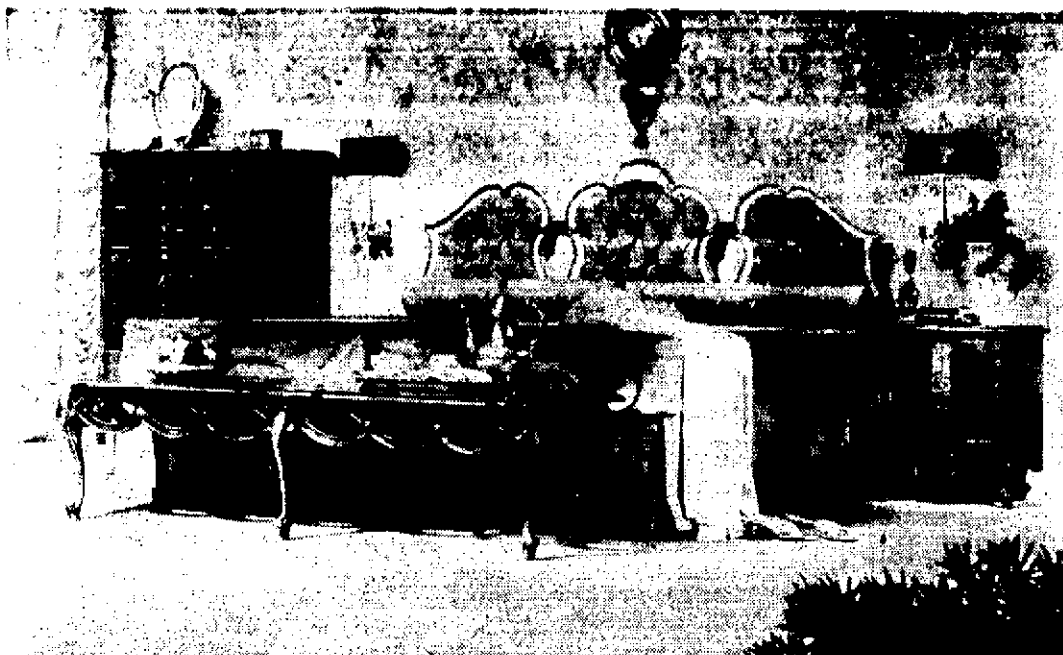

About a year ago I made up my mind that something had to be done. I couldn't walk any distance at all without puffing like a steam engine. So my doctor gave me pills and put me on a diet. I was getting so lost and flabby I didn't look like I was a mother and I still wore a size 18 dress.

When I saw your advertisement and decided to give it a try, I'm down to a 128 pounds and a size 12 dress. I feel like a million and look like one.

My husband always and he liked me big but now you should see how I feel. He and his three sons all love me now. I feel like a new woman. I feel like I have a new life. I feel like I have a new future. I feel like I have a new hope. I feel like I have a new dream. I feel like I have a new goal. I feel like I have a new vision. I feel like I have a new mission. I feel like I have a new purpose. I feel like I have a new destiny. I feel like I have a new calling. I feel like I have a new anointing. I feel like I have a new power. Fit for a King

ELEGANCE in antique-white-and-gold — a swing-apart, king-size bed from Kent Coffey's "Cote d'Or" collection.

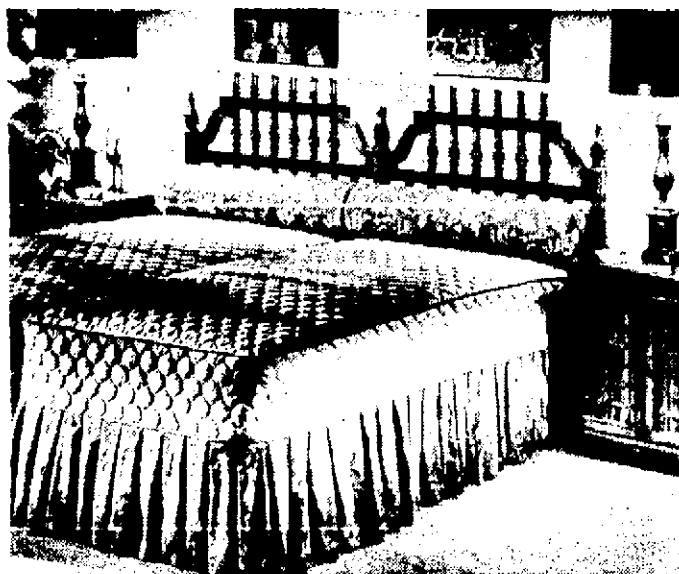

ANTIQUED and mellow—Kent Coffey's "Tierra" bed, styled to sunny look of Spain.

... AND BIG BEDDING!

So you've bought a king-size bed. Now must you spend a king's ransom for new bedding?

Not if you shop wisely. Compare prices, sometimes private labels run less than sale sheets and pillowcases. Buy the type (percale or muslin) rather than brand—quality is fairly standard, according to the experts. Remember, though fitted sheets are pre-shrunk, flat ones must be purchased wider than your mattress measures. Allow 5% more length, about 2% more width. The new cotton and rayon 180-count percales are proving popular—they're both durable and soft.

As to bedspreads, judging from this year's fashion trends, solution-dyed fibers have come into their own. They adapt to rich, vibrant hues that bring out the best in Mediterranean furnishings, as well as the new trend-setting, elegant modern. Also, they retain color and softness after repeated cleaning.

A KING from two . . . Spindle beds by Morganton go together in kingly fashion.

By Mary Neth
I, P-T Home Furnishings Editor

Big beds are no luxury. They're a necessity.

The boom in over-sized, queen-sized, king-sized beds has brought critical cries from some. Seems, a few people (shorties, we're sure) have interpreted the trend as a sign of society going soft—a definite movement toward too much emphasis on luxury.

Well, they just don't know the facts.

They haven't heard that in the past 50 years, the average height of both men and women has shot up two inches. Result: beds once considered perfectly adequate have a new overhang (feet) and are too short to provide a good night's sleep.

A standard double bed measures 54 inches wide by 74 inches long.

Split that width in two—and you've got a Lilliput sleep plot of only 27 by 74 inches.

That's the exact width of a baby's crib—and what adult could sleep like a baby in such a cramped space?

According to sleep experts, any adult needs more than 27 inches of width, and anyone over 5-feet-4 needs a bed longer than 74 inches. The ideal sleeping area should be at least 39 inches wide and 10 inches longer than the height of the sleeper.

So . . . now that you realize your hankering for a bigger place to bed down isn't an indication of extravagance—go looking.

There's a big selection in big beds. There are styles and periods to fit any room—if it's not too small, that is.

DEAR MOLLY MAYFIELD

Aunty's Money Must Go!

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:
My boy friend and I have been talking of marriage and are quite serious about each other. He is 21, I am 19.

My problem is that he has no goal in life. He has never really had to work for things he wants; his aunt sends him money when he needs it. He is presently in the Air Force but he is still dependent on her.

How can I make him become an independent, responsible person?—C.W.

DEAR C.W.:

The answer is short and simple. You can't. I mean you can't by urging and pleading and/or nagging, and all that sort of thing. If you insisted he "prove himself" before you married, well, maybe—but I doubt it. Maybe the Air Force will help him develop character. Who knows?

But if Aunt's cut off the you-know-whats and the lad

SIMPLY HAD TO BE ON HIS OWN—that might do the trick. Ever had a chance to confer with Aunt?—M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:
I am 14 and have been going steady with a boy since May. His parents liked me and my parents liked him all summer.

About three months ago my mother became concerned about our going steady and thought we were too serious but she didn't try to break us up. She thinks I'll forget him when I get in high school.

His parents have turned against me and are trying to make him stop seeing me. I don't know why unless they are afraid we might want to get married too young. His mother is constantly on his back about me and he has threatened to run away if she doesn't stop.

He left home once before because of her.

What can I do to help this situation?—HOPELESS

DEAR HOPELESS:

Going steady at 14 is much too young but I know it's useless to tell you that. I think your mother has the right attitude and it would be nice if his mother would look at it the same way. Why she doesn't is something I can't answer.

The idea of your boy friend running away from home shows how young and childish he is. Running away doesn't solve anything and will only cause worse trouble.

I think you kids could get along all right if you just continue to date and not make a big point of "going steady"; make no plans for the future and I think time will take care of your trouble—one way or another.—M.M.

ANOTHER LUCKY HERE

Lucky Stores will open this new market Thursday noon at 21st Street and Pacific Avenue. The company announced this is the first of several new markets planned in the Long Beach area.

Lucky Market on Pacific Will Open

Lucky's newest discount supermarket opens its doors to the public at noon Thursday at 21st and Pacific Ave. Like all Lucky Stores in Southern California, the new Lucky will feature nationally advertised brands, Lucky's fine quality "Bonded" meats and farm-fresh produce at discount prices.

The store was designed by Carl Maston, A.I.A., and Kennigott-Brossner were retained as color consultants to give the store, constructed by Ernest W. Hahn, Inc., a most pleasing and modern appeal. The exterior is of modern styling with a wide use of sandblasted brick and featuring a full height glass facade. Wayne H. Fisher, vice president and general manager, said: "We have had many requests from residents in this and other Long Beach areas, for more conveniently located stores. We are indeed appreciative of this display of confidence by so many residents."

"THIS STORE at 21st and Pacific is only the forerunner of several others planned for the Long Beach area."

The new Lucky store has 19,934 square feet of space. It is completely air-conditioned. The interior offers maximum customer shopping convenience with automatic doors and double-deck frozen food cases. The newest open shelf "air-curtain" dairy box does away with the necessity of opening and closing doors.

The well-lighted parking area will accommodate more than 100 cars.

THE STORE will be open Lucky's regular store hours, 12 noon to 9 p.m. daily; Saturday and Sunday 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Les Corbett, Lucky Stores operation manager, said, "This beautiful new store will continue Lucky's policy of low discount pricing."

Special activities will take place at the new store for the grand opening. Free orchids for the ladies will be given Thursday, Friday and Saturday and free ice cream cones will be given to all.

Another Thrifty Drug Set to Open

Thrifty Drug Stores will open a new super-store in Long Beach Thursday.

The ultra-modern Thrifty, located in the Belmont Shopping Center at Redondo Ave. and Anaheim St., will be one of the most beautiful in the entire chain, it was disclosed.

Beginning with one small store in Los Angeles in 1929, Thrifty has grown meteorically until today it is the largest drug, variety and junior department store chain in the West. The pioneer firm now operates 250 stores in California, Arizona, Nevada, Idaho, Utah and Oregon. The new store will feature a 10-huge chain opens an average day sale.

of 25 stores each year.

THRIFTY DRUG regularly carries over 25,000 separate items of drug, variety and department store merchandise, purchased from throughout the country and many distant lands as well.

Ease of shopping has been a prime factor in the chain's successful growth pattern. Thrifty has been a leader in self-service shopping and has developed merchandising services that make each store a pleasant place to shop.

The grand opening of the new store will feature a 10-huge chain opens an average day sale.

Dance Lessons for Residents of Area

Residents of Holiday Village, Huntington Beach Townhouse development, turned out in droves for square dance lessons held recently at the community's recreation building.

The dance lessons were arranged by Jo Hannigan, social director for the development as a part of regularly scheduled social and recreational activities for the residents. Other events scheduled for coming weeks are pancake breakfasts, pot luck dinners and a bingo party.

THE WEEKLY activities are held in the subdivision's spacious recreation building which is equipped for all types of social events. More than half of the residents attend each of the parties.

Holiday Village, now 80% completed, is being developed by Kaufman and Broad Building Co., largest producer of homes in the country.

The homes are designed for people without children with emphasis on large master bedrooms, spacious baths and private garden patios. Payments are as low as $89 a month. Model homes are located on Adams at Brookhurst in Huntington Beach.

Artesia Landmark Homes Have Appeal

The public is invited to attend the all new showing of Landmark Homes in Artesia. According to R. C. Morrison, Sales Manager for the residential neighborhood with schools, churches, shopping and recreational centers are nearby.

Bob Morrison added that "When Landmark Homes are still in the designing stage, we organize each style residence to have the most convenience, comfort, privacy and beauty. That is why the massive bedroom suite is upstairs, giving adult privacy that is highly desired."

"Our homes have been designed for large families with four and five bedrooms and two baths. We know that large families need separated entertainment areas, so we designed a family room for teenage entertaining and gave it easy access to the kitchen. The sunken living room is also an ideal area for entertaining."

Landmark Homes are at Gridley and Artesia Boulevard in Artesia. Immediate occupancy is available.

The builders are William Shattuck and Don McHone of Shattuck & McHone, a Santa Ana based building firm.

ROSSMOOR PANORAMA

Above is view of swimming pool, club house, putting greens, and some of mansion-type homes at Rossmoor Townhouses, adjacent to Rossmoor Business Center.

Rossmoor Townhouse Sales Top $2½ Million

Popularity of Rossmoor Townhouses with homebuyers in North Orange County and Long Beach was noted last week with announcement by William Ballon, president, Jaymar Corporation, that more than $2½ million in sales have been made to date at the unusually designed residential development. This amounts to approximately 50% of the homes in the project.

Although new home sales generally are running at a reduced pace throughout Southern California, the trend of activity at Rossmoor Townhouses has been continuing at a high rate since the first of the year.

"BUYERS are coming from all geographic areas," said Ballon, "and we are especially getting a lot of purchasers who are selling their old homes for the new way of life available here."

Rossmoor Townhouses' 2, 3 and 4 bedroom homes have been built on a luxury scale with quality construction usually found in homes costing up to $40,000.

Priced from $19,950, these homes have been acclaimed as outstanding values in today's housing market. Under the townhouse plan, each homeowner obtains a grant deed and is taxed separately.

Rossmoor Townhouses can be reached from Los Angeles via the Long Beach or Harbor freeways to the San Diego

Southern Pacific Hopes to Avoid Rate Increases

Southern Pacific intends to continue its efforts to hold the line against freight rate increases, despite major wage boosts and other higher operating costs.

Chairman D. J. Russell declared recently that "Southern Pacific considers it imperative to keep rates at lowest possible levels, so we can compete effectively with other forms of transportation, even though much higher costs have created substantial pressure for rate increases."

RECENT wage settlements in the rail industry cost Southern Pacific about $17 million in 1964, he said, and its bill for wages and fringe benefits will go up by an additional $12.5 million in 1965.

The big December floods in Oregon and Northern California also were costly to the railroad. Lines and facilities of SP and its subsidiary, the Northwestern Pacific Railroad, suffered more than $12 million in damage.

"In the face of such increased costs," Russell said, "holding the line on freight rates—with their importance to the general inflationary spiral—is only possible because our huge capital improvement programs, of recent years have enhanced our ability to attract business."

Two Key Douglas Positions Filled

Personnel appointments filling two key positions in the Douglas C-5A heavy logistics transport program were announced last week by James L. Murray, vice president and general manager of the company's recently formed C-5 Division.

Carlo R. Tosti, formerly a market development adviser, was named assistant to the vice president-general manager, reporting directly to Murray.

Wilbur A. Day Jr., previously an executive adviser in the market development department, was appointed C-5A marketing manager.

Two Major Talks Slated for Industrial Conference

Long Beach City College's eighth annual Industrial Relations Conference will be held Thursday afternoon and evening on the Business and Technology campus, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Highway. More than 500 representatives from business, industry and labor organizations are expected to attend.

The conference will begin with registration at 4:45 p.m. in the campus gymnasium and will include two major addresses, a dinner meeting and a concluding panel discussion and question period.

Rasbury will speak on "The Problem of Communicating and the Value of Continuous Bargaining." A specialist in employee relations and labor law, he was on the staff of the National Labor Relations Board from 1957-1961.

Silvey's topic is "The Effects of Automation and Opportunities for Youth."

A staff member at AFL-CIO national headquarters for many years, Silvey has specialized in the study of automation and its effects on employment and has lectured extensively both in the U.S. and Europe. He also has served as a labor consultant for the Marshall Plan and the National Production Authority.

Falkenstein Fountains Flow

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Claire Falkenstein, well-known in Long Beach for metal sculpture she has created here, opens a show of her recent work Monday in the Esther Robles Gallery, 665 N. La Cienega Blvd., Los Angeles. It will continue through March 5.

Miss Falkenstein first came to Long Beach in 1960 after she met Dallas Conklin in Europe and was commissioned to execute a piece of her fused glass and metal sculpture for Miss Conklin's new beach home at 6311 E. Seaside Walk.

It was then that she met Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Bufum who in 1962 commissioned the sculptor to design and build a fountain for their home at 1161 Los Altos Ave.

This fountain was displayed at the Robles Gallery in 1963 and was seen by the designers of the distinguished new California Federal Savings and Loan building at 5670 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles. Shortly after, Miss Falkenstein created a fountain for the Robles' personal garden.

AS A RESULT of this work, architect Charles Luckman commissioned Miss Falkenstein to create a huge fused glass and metal fountain, some 35 feet high, as an integral part of the California Federal Savings and Loan building.

Miss Falkenstein calls her work "sculptured water."

The building with its tremendous, beautiful fountain will open formally with a reception Monday night.

Miss Falkenstein's next undertaking will be a large work for California State College at Fullerton, where Dr. John Olsen, formerly of Long Beach, heads the art department.

TWO EXHIBITS by outstanding seascape artists go on view at private galleries in Pasadena Monday.

Peter Ellenshaw, who exhibits infrequently, will have a one-man show at the Manhattan Galleries, 540 S. Lake Ave.

An Academy Award winner, he has done special art work for Walt Disney productions, including "Mary Poppins," but he prefers to paint for himself and his paintings are snapped up by buyers all over the world. He produces between 50 and 60 paintings a year and has standing orders for his work from as far away as Lima, Peru.

The second Pasadena exhibit, which also includes oils of Southern California deserts, is by Henry Vander Velde of Catalina Island. It will hang in the Poulsen Galleries, 910 Pasquel St. through March 6. Trained at the University of Michigan and the National Academy of Design, New York, the artist is represented in public and private collections throughout the United States.

A COLLECTION of "surrealistic" paintings by the controversial artist John Ahern opens today at the M-art Gallery, 137 S. Pacific Ave., Redondo Beach. This is the first time the artist has exhibited in the South Bay area.

ADVANCED artists in painting and sculpture who have won awards or exhibited in major shows are invited by salesman-auctioneer Tom Long to participate in an art auction in Lakewood Country Club at 7 p.m. March 15.

Registered artists will be notified by mail to take their work to the May Co. and other stores in Lakewood Center. Consignments must be registered not later than Feb. 25. On March 15, artists must move their work to the country club for display from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Works will be sold to the highest bidders and artists must donate at least 50% of the final selling price to an endowment fund for the Institute at the John F. Kennedy library.

For further information, call Long at the Ellis-Schrader Realtors, 5505 Woodruff Ave., Lakewood.

PETER, PAUL AND MARY TRIO will begin a seven-day concert tour of Southern California with performance in Municipal Auditorium Feb. 26.

Pandit to Play

Organist Korla Pandit will play a concert Feb. 23 at the Wilshire Theater, Los Angeles. The announcement was made by the Los Angeles Chapter of American Theater Organ Enthusiasts, a national non-profit organization dedicated to restoring, salvaging and maintaining great theater organs in the United States. No theater organs have been built for the last 35 years, although church organs still are being made.

Cantors Ensemble to Sing

The famed Cantors Ensemble, a chorus of directors of sacred music in Los Angeles temples, will sing at the Concert Hall of Long Beach Municipal Auditorium Saturday, Feb. 27, at 8:15 p.m.

Long Beach's two Conservative congregations, Temple Sinai and Temple Beth Shalom, arranged the concert in response to repeated requests after the cantorial choir performed at a testimonial dinner last year for Cantor Morris Greenfield of Temple Sinai.

Appearing as soloists, duets and trios, as well as in chorus, the cantors will present their repertoire of Israeli folk songs, all-time Yiddish favorites, Biblical music, traditional cantorial chants and liturgical choral music.

EACH CANTOR is a standout vocalist in his own right; as a chorus the group has received national acclaim.

Cantor Greenfield of Sinai and Cantor David Kane of Beth Shalom are co-chairmen of the concert. Reservations may be made by the public at either temple on patron, sponsor or donor basis, with other reserved seats also available.

Brilliant New Shows Provocative at LBMA

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Two outstanding exhibits continue at the Long Beach Museum of Art through Feb. 28. Works by the art faculties of Long Beach City College and California State College, Long Beach, occupy the lower galleries while a one-man show by Edward Reep is presented upstairs.

The faculty works are a delight with brilliant new offerings by old-timers and astonishing productions by new members. The sculptor, Stephen Werlik, from USC, LB is represented by two intricate bronze pieces, "Circification" and "Group," in which exquisitely formed human bodies move among confining slabs of metal.

DAVID BORDER'S "1 January 1965" is the most arresting work; it is a huge collage-painting of stretched fabric and other objects of recognizable origin with letters and photos. John Martin's "View of the Sea" in his rich, painterly technique, is in dream-like harmonies of blue and greens. Herman Graff's "Drawing" is a very specific rendering of an ungodly, infernal machine-room.

Study Group to Discuss L.B. Concert

The new Study Group of Long Beach Auxiliary of the Southern California Symphony Association will meet Friday in the home of Mrs. Betty Benwell, 3849 Weston Place at 10 a.m. All interested members of the auxiliary are invited. The Study Group sessions are held before each Long Beach concert to consider the music in greater depth than is possible at the regular salons.

SPECIAL GUESTS Friday will be Mrs. Lloyd Nix and Mrs. Draver Wilson of Los Angeles. Mrs. Nix is president of all affiliated committees of the Southern California Association and Mrs. Wilson is executive secretary.

Mrs. Robert Lease, chairman of the Study Group, will discuss music of Beethoven and Ravel. Joanna Hodges, Long Beach concert pianist, will discuss modern Russian methods of composition and will illustrate music themes and forms of the sonata and allegro. She recently returned from New York where she played a concert in Carnegie Hall.

FROM LBCC, Norma Matlin's "Ephemera" is a pastiche of elegant printed works, fresh and appealing. Al Down's "Untitled" will gladden beach sun worshippers. "Two Dried Weed Pots" by Bob McMenomy are mushroom-pod-like containers. Upstairs, Reep offers a variety of strong, individual paintings. His "To JFK" No. 1 and No. 2 are appropriately phrased in the atmosphere of the Mexican death cult. "Lobster Rake" burgeons and foliates in oranges and vermillions on a luminous grey ground, while "Locomotive" thrusts its power at a crazy angle in mountain green with black outlines.

REEP AVIDS ecstasies into a specific creature of his own, "Moth Walk" in built-up dusty planes of grey is really marvellous.

All of Reep's 20 works command respect and study. There are many excellent works in the Faculty Show other than those mentioned. Both of these exhibits will reward the thoughtful viewer with provocative new ideas.

ON THE KINDERGARTEN BEAT

It's Only a Paper Heart—But... Please Be My Valentine

By MARY NETH

Combine hearts, flowers, tongue-out-of-cheek concentration and pasty (sticky, that is) paws—and what do you have? Do-it-yourself Valentines, of course—kindergarten-style. All over town the past week, small fry have been turning out poster-sized Valentine poetry—via paint and colored paper. The object of their affections: mama mostly, though dad's remembered, too.

A few years from now Johnny will swagger through the 'love day' with a sneer on his angelic (?) face. He'll smirkingly present his 'true-love' (a freckle-faced chubby in the first row) with the most awful, most insulting comic Valentine he can find. And he'll most likely declare his undying hatred at the same time he tosses it at her.

But, that's all in the future. Today, innocence and industry combine to create the most sincere, most sentimental valentines of all time—Valentines mama will treasure forever and ever and ever.

Take, for example, the designing enthusiasm of the kids in Beth Biddick's kindergarten class at Tincher School. So engrossed were the young artists in fashioning cupids and bows and frills, they hardly noticed the newspaper photographer.

But, we thought you'd notice THEM—it's our Valentine to you.

BOLD, BRIGHT and so beautiful—Martha Williams, 5 (above), displays kindergarten Valentines made in Beth Biddick's class at Tincher School. Heartfelt art work was dedicated to the mamas. Mark Sweeney, 5 (right), really gets the feel of the project—fingerprint a happy heart of brilliant red.

RAPT WITH RAPTURE that comes with making something for someone, Gina Fenner, 5, concentrates on card-cutting. Her Valentining will be a grand success—it's in the cards. The kindergarten project made use of many media—paints, paste, colored paper. But small-fry imagination was what turned it from an exercise to an artistic adventure.

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Their Lucky 13--Your Good Luck

By ELISE EMERY

Tossing their pretty heads and snapping their fingers at superstition, Junior Leaguers are facing up to the final week of preparation for Operation Rummage Sale.

Months ago — when the event was scheduled for this coming Friday and Saturday—there were dark warnings by skeptics that this would be the league's 13th annual rummage sale and it would be bedeviled by all the evils that surround that unlucky number.

But members merely laughed.

Not only are they defying Lady Luck to desert them by having their 13th sale, they are going further.

THIS YEAR, the giant-of-all rummage sales becomes a real Paul Bunyan by pulling on seven league boots and taking a tremendous stride from the previous site (Municipal Auditorium) to the new Long Beach Arena.

Reason for the big move? Simple—more sales area.

Mrs. Robert W. Latimer, ways and means chairman, points out that the space is increased from 20,000 to 50,000 square

Just 'Leaf' It to Mayonnaise ... and a few cubes of ice

If you want to look fresh—and you're a rubber plant—ask for mayonnaise dressing.

That's what Claudine Cluff (above) is giving the leafy green plant at Ken's Restaurant, 3918 Long Beach Blvd.

"Mayonnaise make-up leaves my rubber plant's leaves with a real bouncy look," says Bill Snodgrass, owner-manager.

The pampered four-foot hunk of shiny plantdom arrived at Ken's just 2½ years ago. It thrives on the dining-out atmosphere and doesn't eat up the profits.

It's daily fare is mayonnaise dressing—no lettuce or tomatoes—and ice cubes.

The ice cubes? "I've used that method of watering plants all my life," says Bill.

The theory? The ice melts slowly and gets to the root of the matter in an even manner. You don't run the chance of flooding your plant. It's cool, man!

WITH DERRING-DO and carefree disregard of superstition, Mrs. John Pearce and Mrs. Robert W. Latimer are ready to walk under the ladder.

WILD WAVES SAY

World Premiere to Aid the World

By Lola Masterson
I, P-T Society Editor

TIME IS of the essence—and so is the status of your bank balance—if you want to be part of a status night—the world premiere of "The Greatest Story Ever Told." The picture will be given a posh first-night send-off—to the tune of $100 per ticket—on Wednesday at Pacific Cinerama Theater, Sunset and Vine, Hollywood. Proceeds will go to the Eleanor Roosevelt Memorial Foundation, which in turn supports the United Nations.

Support great show for a great cause.

Joyce's interest is manifold in the event. She is on national committee of the foundation, has long been a national figure in UN activities. What's more, she is a member of LB's sister city committee for Valparaiso, Chile. At premiere all consul generals in Los Angeles will be honored and Joyce and husband, Alex, will be host to Honorable Miguel L. Bravo and Mrs. Bravo of Chile during show and champagne supper following at Coconut Grove.

Premieres, incidentally, will be shown in major cities throughout U.S. Wednesday—all benefitting the foundation and UN. If you want to be part of an exciting, socially extravagant night, Mrs. Alexis Jacobowsky, 257 Belmont Ave., will try to make reservations for you. Check the piggy bank first.

FOR ONCE, sophisticated Helene Drown was as flabbergasted as a kid caught stealing cookies from the pantry. Only she wasn't stealing anything—instead was being given a large amount of pleasure at a cleverly engineered and very swank surprise birthday party by Betty and Dan Ridder in Rolling Hills.

Helene was tricked into being there in appropriate party dress because Betty had told her they were entertaining for friends from Tacoma. In on the secret, Jack Drown (the sneak) never once let his wife in on the fancy connivery.

Among 30 at the black tie cocktail and sit-down dinner, were Lorraine and John Lungren, Dorothy and Lee Wiltz, Peg and Ray Webb. Among the PV and Rolling Hills crowd present were Dorothy and Manley Natland, Rosemary and Don Dunbar, Janice and Oggie Coale.

EVEN THE jet set will have to concede that Lt. Col. Joe Herrmann's change of duty has broken some kind of "faster than" barrier. He and wife, Dorrie, and their five children, streaked off into the wild blue Monday for new Air Force duty in England and Joe reported in with a snappy salute early Wednesday.

After several years in this area, Joe—one of the most popular of the regular Air Force men—served as exec. officer and director of personnel for the AF Reserve at LB Municipal Airport. Now he's begun a stint in Jolly Olde but with a promise that, whenever he decides to retire, he'll ground himself in Long Beach to make this his and Dorrie's hometown.

"THE CONTAINER" for Long Beach Museum Association's cocktail party and annual membership get-together from 5 to 7 p.m. this afternoon will be Frank Brothers' store, 2400 L.B. Blvd.

That glib reference to the store as the party container was Eddie's own. A founding member of the association, he has arranged for members and prospective members to meet at chair, sofa, lamp, table, etc. emporium—will have on display a most unusual series of vignettes of original classic contemporary pieces from 1925 (and even before) to the present. They are (I was told by other than Eddie) really collector items.

THE MUSIC CENTER, Los Angeles, has rung to better music, I'm sure, but none more enthusiastically rendered than the sporadic outbursts Saturday night of "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi." It was Sigma Chi (alumni) of So. Cal's annual scholarship fund dinner dance. Long Beach men and their wives or dates first gathered at Edith and Lew Hindley's house for cocktails, then hied on up to the center for the main stream party.

Among them were Phyllis and John Brady, Kelly Williams and Mary Kay Gerson, Margaret and Don Phillips, Harrison Kepler and Jenne Allee, Kitty and "Harpo" Kilroy and Sandra and Bill Du Bourdieu. Sigs as yet not in the alum swing can contact Lew Hindley, 4420 Clubhouse Dr., Lakewood, for details on how to get in with the alum alliance.

FEEL A complaint coming on? Hang back a half a mo' and consider the case of Nancy Drum. She chided Ebell Junior Board members because she hadn't received the traditional birthday card sent board gals. Culprit Carolyn McDowell (whose duty it was, but who missed the date) scurried out and sent a belated greeting via special delivery.

Plan was good, card was clever but the post office just too prompt. Bearer of greetings (neither sleet nor rain, and all that jazz y' know) arrived at 5 a.m. at Nan's house to ring a doorbell long and loud and do his bounden duty. Not only did pealing of bell send Nan into half awake orbit headed for front door, but drummed all other Drums out of cozy beds, by then too startled to return to sleep. Keeping husband Dale and the two boys entertained from 5 a.m. until normal getting up time proved to Nancy that the squeaking wheels may not always appreciate the oil.

A GANG of gal bridge clubbers decided they'd rather put dollars in a kitty each time they played than spend the loot on prizes and, when they had enough cool cash in cool kitty storage, spend it on a night on the town for all.

Problem was, being women—and generally working ones, at that—when they had enough for their first splurge, they couldn't get together on a date or place convenient for all. That went on for—well, on and on.

Finally, they came to grips with selves and cash and decided they had enough for a full weekend of fun—not here, but for a grand and glorious "expense free" trip to San Francisco. Getting ready, below, to break the cash loose from its confines are bidders who spread: Viola (Mrs. Arthur) Hamblin, Helen (Mrs. A. C.) Parker, Janet (Mrs. L. L.) Victorson and Marcella (Mrs. Russell) Best.

Two others I know of who went on joyous jaunt were Ellen (Mrs. M. R.) Bastien and Sada (Mrs. Ed) McKee. They left husbands at home (where else?) and went to Bay country. Fun? You better believe it. They flew up and did everything from having brunch at Buena Vista (followed by rich Irish coffee) to shopping, to riding cable cars, to night clubbing (four of them after dinner at the Fairmont). Then they took the Daylight home, playing bridge all the way, beginning the bank account for next journey—to Las Vegas. Psst, gals—when you go there take husbands well armed with check books. It'll be safest bet since grand slam with all spades.

Their bridge prize—a joyous jaunt.

Fear a Big Travel Deterrent

But Industry Itself Partly to Blame, Says Spokesman

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

More than 50% of the people of this country do no vacation gadding at all, according to travel industry surveys.

To those of us who look forward to our vacations — and the opportunity they afford to visit new places and people — this revelation is, of course, almost inconceivable.

Why, of all things, not? To put it bluntly, it is because these Americans are afraid of travel itself, afraid of leaving the security of home for the unknown.

For instance, many hesitate to plan a vacation at a resort because they are afraid they might not have the right clothes to wear.

SOME DREAD eating at strange restaurants or staying at hotels because they are unsure about how much to tip.

Others avoid visiting famous restaurants because they feel the menu might be in a foreign language which they won't be able to read, and that the adventure will wind up in nothing but embarrassment.

Still others are afraid of trains or planes.

And there are those who feel they can't afford it, or who don't have the time.

Charles Gillett, president of the National Association of Travel Organizations and one of the travel industry's active spokesmen, offers encouragement to those who feel ill at ease when on a trip.

"What the first-time traveler doesn't realize," he points out, "is that no one expects him to know all the answers. People who travel much of the time know that they must ask questions constantly wherever they go. Conditions change from year to year and vary from country to country, and no one can know all the answers all the time."

GILLETT feels strongly that the travel industry itself is partly to blame for the relatively small number of people who travel for pleasure in the United States. It is a paradox, he says, that the very people who are in the business of selling travel, who benefit most from vacation spending, are sometimes responsible for deterring prospective customers.

He says that some hotels and resorts, in attempting to glamorize themselves, project such an image of

Like to Gad on Weekends?

If your dish is weekend gadding, here are some upcoming events that might be to your liking:

Thursday through Sunday: Whiskey Flat Days in Kernville, on the shores of Lake Isabella in the mountains above Bakersfield. Tours to old gold mines, mule packing exhibition, claim jumpers' race, flapjack breakfast, old-time costume, fiddlers' and epitaph contests.

Next Saturday: Flag Parade in Paramount. Starts at 1 p.m. with more than 150 units in line of march including top color guards and award-winning bands, plus hundreds of American flags of all sizes saluting "America the Beautiful."

Also, next Saturday, La Habra holds its Highland Dancing competition at 9 a.m. with piping and dancing at the high school. Competition is limited to those under 19 years of age.

Air travelers are promised an easier and faster ride from London Airport to the center of the city in 1965, according to TWA.

A new motorway, soon to be completed, with an underpass, will offer direct access to the airport and an unimpeded drive to and from London, since it will bypass all buildings, including a factory which necessitates raising the motorway to a height of 40 feet in order to clear its roof.

swank, even at economy prices, that many people are actually intimidated instead of encouraged.

"In too many movies, plays and television shows, the ordinary traveler is depicted in situations in which he is baffled by unfamiliar things or humiliated because he has wandered into a place where he feels he doesn't belong."

GILLETT believes the travel industry can and should take prompt action to overcome the fear of traveling by training personnel to anticipate and answer fully the questions which the first-time traveler may be too embarrassed to ask—whether they are questions about clothes, tipping, whether to bring the children, or exactly how much the trip will cost.

He also feels the first-time traveler may be put off by complicated time tables, the mechanism of making advance reservations at hotels, and other such details of planning a trip — not knowing that a competent travel agent can do all these things for him and more often than not at no additional cost.

Travel, he says, should be made easy, fun and relaxing. When it is, even the timid will take to the road and enjoy its adventures.

A SPOT FOR FROLIC

Where King Solomon Greeted His Sheba

What could be more romantic than having a winter frolic where King Solomon greeted the Queen of Sheba when she traveled to ancient Israel? Or sunning yourself where Roman conquerors bathed in nature's hot springs.

It was at Etzion Geber, today known as Eilat, on the Red Sea that the ancient Israeli ruler had his first confrontation with the charming ruler from Africa. Today Eilat is one of Israel's favorite winter spots offering a variety of accommodations, a wide, sandy beach and the warm, clear waters of the Red Sea.

As for the Roman conquerors of Israel, they made Tiberias one of their centers during their occupation and bathed in its hot sulphur spring, which were famous then as they are now for their healing powers. But, let it not be said that only the ill come to Tiberias for this would be far from the truth.

TIBERIAS is located on the Sea of Galilee and it is on this inland body of water that heavily pleasure-seekers enjoy water-skiing, fishing, sailing and other aquatic sports.

During the winter months Eilat enjoys temperatures around 80 degrees while Tiberias basks in the 70s. At Eilat a deep dip in its waters will put you in contact with some of the most colorful underwater corals and reefs and tropical fish. On the water's surface you can enjoy speed-boat racing, water-skiing and sailing.

Of course you can loiter around on the beach all day and get a golden-brown tan; and if you feel like lying on the beach during the balmy evenings you can gaze at the stars and visualize yourself as being in the most isolated spot in the world for Eilat is at Israel's southernmost tip and beyond its shores beckons the African continent.

IT IS FROM Eilat that Israel's merchant fleets sail to Africa and ships from all over the world make Eilat their port-of-call. Eilat has become a winter haven for many Scandinavians who wish to leave the winter chills behind and it is becoming a popular resort for others who desire sun, fun and tranquility in one of the world's most romantic spots.

Tiberias and the Sea of Galilee up north offer, besides recreation and good accommodations, an area where history was made. Besides accommodating the Roman conquerors this area was the seat of Jewish learning after the destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem and it was along the shores of the Sea that Jesus gathered his disciples and performed many of his miracles. Here, too, the Crusaders, the Byzantines and the Turks stayed and their efforts have been uncovered during archaeological diggings.

BESIDES aquatics and browsing through history there are other distractions at Eilat and Tiberias. From Tiberias you can visit some of the early kibbutzim (communal settlements) which were the backbone for modern Israel's early history and a tour from Eilat will take you to King Solomon's mines and into a part of Israel's serene Negev desert.

FROM OCHOS RIOS it's a pretty ride of a half hour or more to the little town of Montego Bay. On the way in, you pass the ruins of Rose Hill plantation house. In ancient days, a lady named Annie Palmer tortured her slaves and was eventually killed by an obeah—or voodoo — man. Jamaicans say her ghost walks the place. And the caretaker tells a great story.

There's a nice train ride over to Kingston. Your hotel will arrange a one-day trip into the Maroon country. These are descendants of runaway slaves — they run their own show and have a treaty with the Jamaica government.

SEAWARD VIEW FROM SPHERE shows where two 14-foot water conduits will be laid 2,000 feet into Pacific and beneath ocean floor. Trestle will be extended for crane operations in laying intake and discharge conduits. Water leaves plant at about 80 degrees temperature.

INFORMATION CENTER will contain displays and information on nuclear power for enlightenment of visitors. Starting Friday, this will be open to public free of charge.

OPENS TO PUBLIC FRIDAY

Nuclear Power Plant to Have View Center

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

De luxe viewing facilities for would-be "sidewalk superintendents" and other visitors interested in the $87 million Nuclear Generating Station at San Onofre will be opened to the public Friday.

Housed in a dome-shaped modernistic building just off U.S. Highway 101, the new Information Center stands on a site some 85 feet above the generating plant being constructed on the ocean front for Southern California Edison and San Diego Gas & Electric companies.

The plant, now well along in construction, is located on the northern edge of Camp Pendleton, several miles south of San Clemente.

is used to produce the steam which drives the generating system, explained Robert L. Day of Fullerton, Edison's resident engineer on the job. Electricity then is produced in the same manner as in the conventional plant.

About 260 men are at work now on the project, Day said.

Two giant conduits will be extended 2,000 feet out to sea. They will have a 14-foot diameter and be laid several feet under the ocean floor. One will be an intake pipe, the other will discharge warm water from the plant.

A SPUR RAILROAD LINE has been laid from nearby Santa Fe tracks to serve the power plant. One of the principal uses of the line after completion of the plant

THE NEW Information Center, with convenient parking accommodations, is designed to complement the power station's giant steel containment sphere, which looms big and red and is visible from the highway.

Housed in the Center are activated exhibits which demonstrate and explain by recordings how the atom has been converted to peaceful use, its many applications in today's world and how it is being put to work to generate electricity.

The Center is 76 feet in diameter and ringed with a promenade around which visitors may stroll to view the work on the plant below. It will be open free to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Guided tours for special groups may be arranged through local offices of the companies.

When completed in 1967, the nuclear plant will generate up to 450,000 kilowatts. It will be about twice the size of any nuclear-electric plant now in operation.

POWER FROM THE PLANT will be carried into the Edison system and be used over a wide area, including Long Beach.

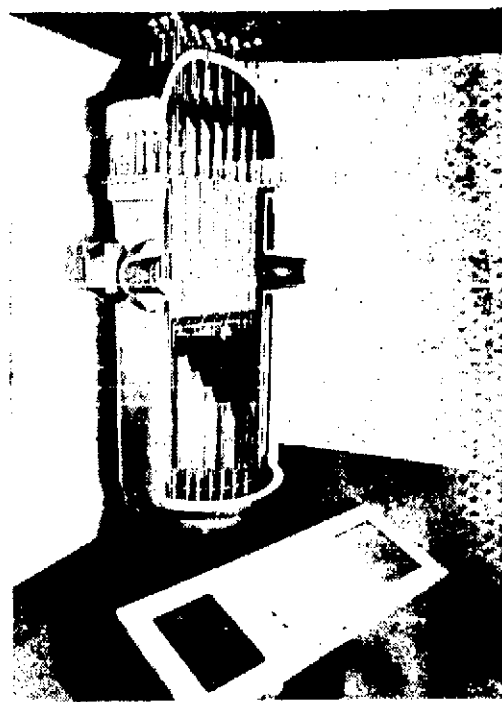

The plant is on a 90 acre coastal site leased from the government. There is a 4,500 foot ocean frontage. Edison is bearing 80% of the cost and the gas company is paying the other 20%.

Westinghouse Electric Corp. is due to deliver the 350 ton reactor this summer. It will be brought by barge from Chattanooga, Tenn., via rivers and sea.

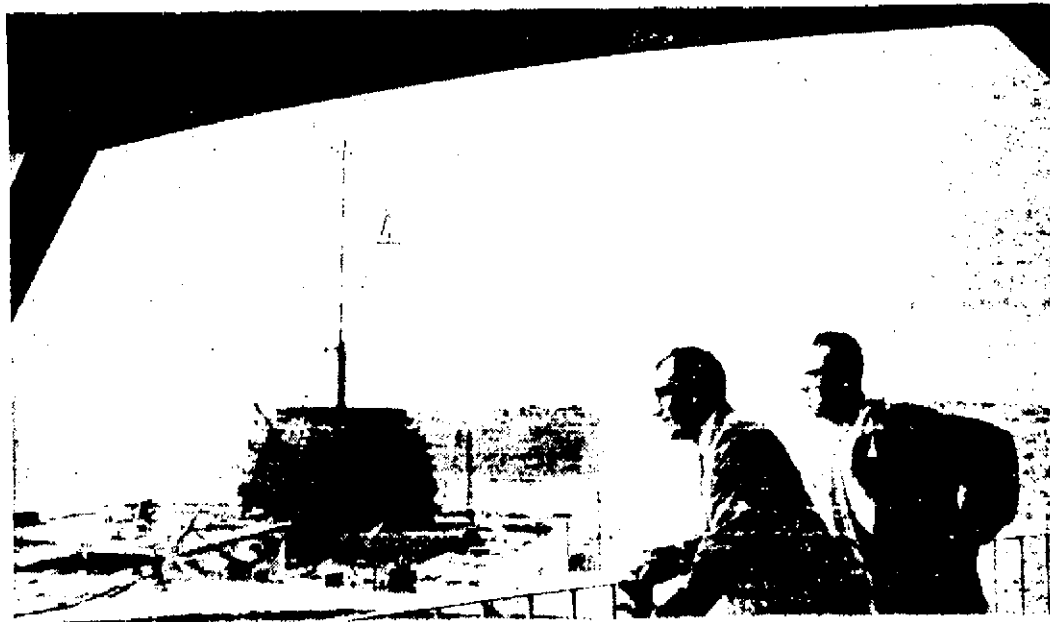

The reactor will be 38 feet high with an inside diameter of 11 feet 7 inches and 9½ inch steel walls. It will be set inside the containment sphere, which is 140 feet in diameter and has an inch-thick steel shell.

THE REACTOR will be the heat source, containing nuclear fuel and control mechanism. Operations in the sphere will be supervised from a nearby control room.

The San Onofre (accent on the "no") station differs from other steam plants, such as those just east of Long Beach and near Huntington Beach, in that nuclear heat will be transportation of lead-shielded fuel weighing about 100 tons per carload.

The plant is due to be ready for operation early in 1967, Day said. Bechtel Corporation is serving as engineer and builder on the project.

There will be no harmful emissions, it was stressed. Emissions from the stack could be breathed without harm and water from the plant could be drunk, except that it will be salty sea water.

SPENT FUEL containing radioactive fission products will be removed safely in special casks and taken to a government reprocessing plant.

The uranium must be made into pellets about a half inch in diameter. These are loaded into tube-like fuel rods some 10 feet long. The rods are assembled into clusters, or "fuel assemblies."

The plant will use 156 fuel assemblies, each containing 189 rods, which laid end to end would extend 55 miles.

The initial fuel loading will be equivalent to 18 million barrels of fuel oil and should last three and one-half years before reloading is necessary.

Used by Columbus

The most famous natural used asphalt from it to caulk asphalt lake in the world—the seams of his ships. 212-acre Pitch Lake in Trinidad is one of the world's dad—was discovered by oldest known building mate Christopher Columbus, who built it.

Up to 45 tons of weight is imposed by running water into huge plywood tanks lined with polyethylene plastic cloth. A maximum load of 150 pounds per square foot is created.

Measurements are taken by sensitive dial gauges to determine deflections to an accuracy of one-thousandth of an inch.

Need for the tests was created by the unique circular pre-stressed slab design. The city wants to be certain it complies with the building code.

THERE WILL BE a series of four tests, with 1 and 2 testing the cantilever portion of the slab and series 2 and 3 testing the slab between the columns and core wall. Tests are being done on the sixth floor.

Building department officials and owner-builder Henry Sassoon were among the spectators as the tests began under supervision of engineers T. Y. Lin & Associates of Van Nuys and Twining Laboratories of Long Beach. Completion of the building is slated for June, and construction is progressing as per timetable.

CPAs Will Hear State Board Chief

The president of the California State Board of Accountancy, Andrew P. Marinovich, will be guest speaker. His topic will be "Rule 58 and Proposed Changes."

Rule 58 deals with a standard reporting and outlines specific requirements for audit reports.

Marinovich is a partner in the firm of Wardenburg, Marinovich & Co., Certified Public Accountants.

He is a past president of the Long Beach-Orange County Chapter and is currently chairman of the Legislative and Regulations Committee, Association of CPA Examiners. He is a graduate of the University of Southern California and a regular lecturer at USC, Los Angeles Harbor College and Long Beach State College.

May Co. Starts Store in Mesa

COSTA MESA — Ground-breaking was held here last week for start of a new May Co. store in the new South Coast Plaza shopping center located north of the San Diego Freeway route near Bristol Street.

This will be the company's 13th store, it was noted by Geoffrey Swaabe, president and general manager. He recalled that the first May Co. store in Orange County was the one opened at Buena Park in 1963.

"The immediate and continuing success of our Buena Park store," he said, "has given us great confidence in the growth of Orange County."

"WE FEEL that there is a May Co. store to serve another part of this fast growing area. We are extremely pleased to be locating our 13th store in the city of Costa Mesa."

The new 248,000 square foot store will be a full line department store on three levels. There will be a May-Mart basement operation and auto center.

May Co. store No. 12 is under construction at Whittier.

SOUTH COAST PLAZA is due to be the largest shopping center in Orange County and one of the five largest in the United States.

The store areas will be under one roof.

The center will include a new Sears Roebuck store, planned as the largest Sears store in the country.

Security Bank Starts New 'ReservAccount' System

A new banking service, called Ready ReservAccount, is being launched this week by Security First National Bank. The program is designed to put a cash reserve behind the checking accounts of customers whose credit standing qualifies them to participate.

The service is only for checking account customers, bank officials emphasized.

THE PLAN works in this manner: A checking account customer fills out an application and submits it to his branch manager. On approval, a mutually agreeable line of credit is placed behind the checking account for use in case of emergencies, unexpected bills and other worthwhile needs.

The Ready ReservAccount is set up cost free. To draw on the account, the customer merely has to write a personal check. The funds will be transferred automatically from the Ready ReservAccount when the amount in the checking account is insufficient to pay the check. A continuing reserve is available for the unused part of the Ready ReservAccount.

IF THE MONEY is paid back within the first 25 days, there is no interest charge. If the customer wishes to repay over a longer period, payments with interest are arranged.

Security Bank checking account statements for Ready ReservAccount customers will show regular checking account balances, Ready ReservAccount amount owing and the balance remaining in the Ready ReservAccount.

Hours will be from 6 to 10 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

LAST YEAR'S sale netted $16,815 and a healthy improvement over that figure is expected this year with the increased sales area. All proceeds go into the Long Beach Junior League's Community Trust Fund to be returned to the community through projects and philanthropies such as Homemaker Service, Children's Dental Foundation and Symphony Previews.

In the arena there'll be wider aisles, more new and nearly new items—AND the popular antique department will have a prominent spot: main floor center.

The hunting will be good, with likelihood of snaring a fur stole for $15, a Dior gown for $10, men's sports shirts for 25 cents, a dining room table for $10,

CHEF OF THE WEEK

The Egg and He Cooks Up Chicken

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I, P.T. Food Editor

With apologies to the "Egg and I," this shot should be headed, "The Egg in Action."

Never doubt, however, that the man guiding the destinies of that egg knows exactly what he's about. (So did photographer, Chuck Sundquist). Today's Chef of the Week, Arnold Vann, as owner of The Tenderloin, had better know.

Vann, who purchased the eating place just two months ago, is probably better known, for another affiliation. . . . Welch's Restaurant, which he managed for 17 years. He estimates that some one million persons were served during those years.

VANN MADE his debut in this business of eating about 25 years ago. Rex Welch was then the civilian business manager at Allen Center, and Vann, then in the Navy, was in charge of Navy personnel.

Then came the rumor that all men at Allen Center would be sent overseas. So Welch transferred him to the Roosevelt Naval Operating Base. The rumor was wrong—so was the transfer—and Vann was sent to the South Pacific, where he served two years. One version is that Welch didn't want to lose him. Another is, that it was a "Shanghai" deal. However, they remained good friends, and upon his return, Vann again joined Welch on Terminal Island.

About this time (1947) Welch was dreaming up his "garden spot" at 4401 Atlantic Ave. Vann went along with the dream, AND along with the restaurant—as manager.

Quite naturally, Vann runs on "restaurant time," not Greenwich Mean Time. He does his best cooking (and loves it) at home, at night, after the restaurant closes. And the dish he's most likely to fix is a batch of chili 'n beans.

The Vanns have one son, Pat, a student at California State College, Long Beach. It's understood that our "Chef" isn't particularly fond of chicken, but this recipe is the exception. It's his own concoction.

CHICKEN HAWAIIAN

1 chicken (2 1/2-3 1/2 lbs.). Clean, disjoint and dry thoroughly.

1 1/4 tsp. salt
1 egg yolk
1 tsp. pepper
1/2 tsp. paprika
2 tblsp. soy sauce
2 tblsp. lemon juice
2 tblsp. butter
1/4 cup honey

Melt butter and add to other ingredients. Dip chicken in mixture (generously), place on cookie sheet or shallow baking pan, and bake at 400 degrees for 1 1/2 hours.

Serve it with Hawaiian Rice: 1 cup uncooked rice
1 can beef bouillon
1 dozen green onions (chopped, tops and all)

Saute onions in butter, add rice and bouillon. Cover and cook very slowly until rice is done.

DEAR ABBY

Rental Wives Aren't New

DEAR ABBY: I have conceived an idea that is so great it frightens me. In this day of renting everything and charging it on credit cards, wouldn't it be wonderful if a man could rent a wife?

Just think of the possibilities! Some men like to hunt and fish, but their wives don't. So a man could rent an out-door type to go hunting and fishing with him. There are men who like nothing better than to eat a home-cooked meal, and then fall asleep watching television. One woman who enjoys being alone would qualify for that kind of man. Men who have to attend lots of conventions could rent a "wife" who'd enjoy going with him if he's married to a woman who can always find a million excuses to stay home. I am interested in your opinion, Abby.—"GENIUS"

DEAR GENIUS: Don't try to copyright your idea—it's as old as the "heils" although not advertised as a "rental service." It's never put on a credit card or deducted as a business expense, but what if the "frightens" you enough to forget it, you'll be lucky.

DEAR ABBY: For heaven's sake, why don't they have a humane society for husbands like they have for dogs and cats? A woman can be prosecuted for starving and neglecting an animal, but what if she treats her husband that way? I know a wife who for the past few months, has been sending her husband to work without breakfast. And she doesn't pack him a lunch, either, knowing full well there is no place at work, nor near there, where he can buy something to eat. When he gets home from work he has to clean up the house, bathe and dress the baby for bed, and do up all the dishes she dirtied during the day. On weekends he has to stay home and do the laundry. My own wife has been packing extra sandwiches in my lunch bucket so I can feed this poor guy. What can be done with a wife like that?—DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: Is she sick or lazy? If she's sick, she needs a doctor. If she's just plain lazy and her husband lets her get away with it, he qualifies for help from the humane society. It's for dumb animals.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old girl in the seventh grade. A group of girls from our school stick together during the noon hour. Since we attend a parochial school, sex is a touchy subject. There are nine of us and not one has the heart to ask our mothers about the facts of life. We are afraid if we let on that we are even thinking about it they would die of embarrassment. Abby, would you please tell mothers not to leave the questions up to their kids when they reach this age? If the kids haven't already asked by this time, they are too chicken. Sex is a dirty word to most kids because their parents whisper it and grow-ups shut up about it when we enter a room. Maybe they will see what we mean. Thank you.—TOO CHICKEN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old girl in the seventh grade. A group of girls from our school stick together during the noon hour. Since we attend a parochial school, sex is a touchy subject. There are nine of us and not one has the heart to ask our mothers about the facts of life. We are afraid if we let on that we are even thinking about it they would die of embarrassment. Abby, would you please tell mothers not to leave the questions up to their kids when they reach this age? If the kids haven't already asked by this time, they are too chicken. Sex is a dirty word to most kids because their parents whisper it and grow-ups shut up about it when we enter a room. Maybe they will see what we mean. Thank you.—TOO CHICKEN

Free entertainment at the Long Beach Home-O-Rama Feb. 24-28 will feature the folk music of The Travelers Three, according to George Colours, producer of the annual home show.

It will be a return engagement for the singers, who scored an outstanding success with Home-O-Rama audiences at the 1962 show, Colours said.

Colours said The Travelers Three will present free shows onstage in the Long Beach Arena twice each weeknight and four times on Saturday and Sunday during the five-day show.

THE GROUP, comprised of Pete Apo, Charlie Oyama and Dick Shirley, started in Eugene, Ore., in 1960. After playing at many local affairs, they toured the Far East for the USO, then played a six-week engagement in the Hawaiian Village on Honolulu.

From there they went on to concert tours at many major universities and at some of the nation's best-known night clubs like the Blue Angel in New York and the Palmer House in Chicago.

They also have made recording albums which have been a hit all over the country and have signed a long-term contract with one of the nation's largest recording firms, Colours said.

THE HOME-O-RAMA, sponsored annually by the Long Beach Builders Exchange, will feature hundreds of decorated booths containing the latest products of interest to homeowners.

Other highlights will be the awarding of The Lucerne, a $10,000 leisure home and a queen contest.

THERE'S a super market of values waiting for you every day in the Classified Section. It's fun to shop this way. Turn back now.

Fit for a King

ELEGANCE in antique-white-and-gold — a swing-apart, king-size bed from Kent Coffey's "Cote d'Or" collection.

ANTIQUED and mellow—Kent Coffey's "Tierra" bed, styled to sunny look of Spain.

By Mary Neth

I, P-T Home Furnishings Editor

Big beds are no luxury. They're a necessity.

The boom in over-sized, queen-sized, king-sized beds has brought critical cries from some. Seems, a few people (shorties, we're sure) have interpreted the trend as a sign of society going soft—a definite movement toward too much emphasis on luxury.

Well, they just don't know the facts.

They haven't heard that in the past 50 years, the average height of both men and women has shot up two inches. Results: beds once considered perfectly adequate have a new overhang (feet) and are too short to provide a good night's sleep.

A standard double bed measures 54 inches wide by 74 inches long.

Split that width in two—and you've got a Lilliput sleep plot of only 27 by 74 inches.

That's the exact width of a baby's crib—and what adult could sleep like a baby in such a cramped space?

According to sleep experts, any adult needs more than 27 inches of width, and anyone over 5-feet-4 needs a bed longer than 74 inches. The ideal sleeping area should be at least 39 inches wide and 10 inches longer than the height of the sleeper.

So... now that you realize your hankering for a bigger place to bed down isn't an indication of extravagance—go looking.

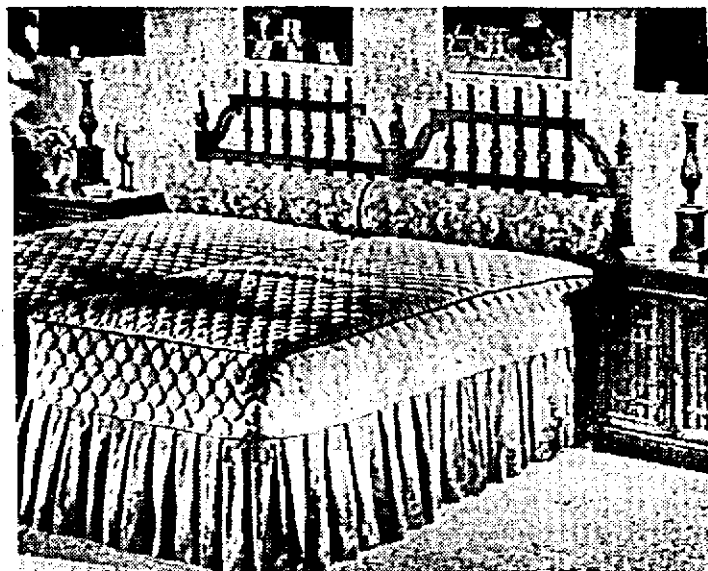

There's a big selection in big beds. There are styles and periods to fit any room—if it's not too small, that is.

... AND BIG BEDDING!

So you've bought a king-size bed. Now must you spend a king's ransom for new bedding?

Not if you shop wisely. Compare prices, sometimes private labels run less than sale sheets and pillowcases. Buy the type (percale or muslin) rather than brand—quality is fairly standard, according to the experts. Remember, though fitted sheets are pre-shrunk, flat ones must be purchased wider than your mattress measures. Allow 5% more length, about 2% more width. The new cotton and rayon 180-count percales are proving popular—they're both durable and soft.

As to bedspreads, judging from this year's fashion trends, solution-dyed fibers have come into their own. They adapt to rich, vibrant hues that bring out the best in Mediterranean furnishings, as well as the new trend-setting, elegant modern. Also, they retain color and softness after repeated cleaning.

A KING from two... Spindle beds by Morganton go together in kingly fashion.

DEAR MOLLY MAYFIELD

Aunt's Money Must Go!

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: My boy friend and I have been talking of marriage and are quite serious about each other. He is 21, I am 19.

My problem is that he has no goal in life. He has never really had to work for things he wants; his aunt sends him money when he needs it. He is presently in the Air Force but he is still dependent on her.

How can I make him become an independent, responsible person?—C.W.

DEAR C.W.:

The answer is short and simple. You can't. I mean you can't by urging and pleading and/or nagging, and all that sort of thing. If you insisted he "prove himself" before you married, well, maybe—but I doubt it. Maybe the Air Force will help him develop character. Who knows?

But if Aunt cut off the you-know-what and the lad

SIMPLY HAD TO BE ON HIS OWN — that might do the trick. Ever had a chance to confer with Aunt? —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD: I am 14 and have been going steady with a boy since May. His parents liked me and my parents liked him all summer.

About three months ago my mother became concerned about our going steady and thought we were too serious but she didn't try to break us up. She thinks I'll forget him when I get in high school.

His parents have turned against me and are trying to make him stop seeing me. I don't know why unless they are afraid we might want to get married too young. His mother is constantly on his back about me and he has threatened to run away if she doesn't stop.

He left home once before because of her.

What can I do to help this situation?—HOPELESS

DEAR HOPELESS:

Going steady at 14 is much too young but I know it's useless to tell you that. I think your mother has the right attitude and it would be nice if his mother would look at it the same way. Why she doesn't is something I can't answer.

The idea of your boy friend running away from home shows how young and childish he is. Running away doesn't solve anything and will only cause worse trouble.

I think you kids could get along all right if you just continue to date and not make a big point of "going steady"; make no plans for the future and I think time will take care of your troubles—one way or another.—M.M.

Cal-Fed 'Unveils' 28-Story $17 Million Office Building

NEW CALIFORNIA FEDERAL BUILDING

California Federal Savings & Loan Association this week will unveil its new Miracle Mile skyscraper on Wilshire Boulevard in Los Angeles.

Dedication ceremonies are scheduled Monday morning. A week-long series of grand opening events follow. Speakers scheduled for the events include John W. Stadler, Washington, D. C., president of the United States Savings & Loan League, the national trade association for all S&Ls, and Roy Wenzlick, St. Louis, real estate consultant, author and lecturer.

STADTLER will speak at the dedication luncheon Monday and Wenzlick's address will come Thursday at a dinner for Southern California builders and Realtors, sponsored by California Federal's Loan Division.

Known as the billion-dollar association's head office Plaza Building, the $17 million, 28-story structure has been under construction at 5670 Wilshire Blvd., for three years. It is the crowning jewel in a multi-story construction program which, to date, has seen the association provide 11 of its 13 branches with substantial regional office quarters in the Southland.

MOST RECENT announcement was a $1 million office building to house California Federal's Lakewood office.

The general public is invited to tour the diamond-shaped skyscraper "from the bottom up" in tours that begin during the grand opening week and continue on a permanent basis.

Golden-suited girls will lead visitors on tours at 15-minute intervals during regular business hours.

MAJOR FEATURES of the skyscraper—Wilshire's tallest—include the highest and largest helipark (365 feet above ground) on any commercial office center in the West, a massive fountain (17x45x30 ft.) created by the internationally-known sculptress Claire Falkenstein especially for the Wilshire-Hauser corner, a 350-seat auditorium on the third floor, and numerous other accommodations.

A view of the Los Angeles-Hollywood area from one of the Plaza Building's top floors will be among the sights for the visitors.

Orange County Appraisers to Meet

SANTA ANA—Nationally-known housing executive Lester Goodman, will address the Orange County Chapter of the Society Real Estate Appraisers Wednesday evening at the Revere House, Santa Ana, California.

The meeting will begin with cocktails at 6 p.m., with dinner at 7.

Goodman will speak on the "Development and Organizational Costs Often Not Considered by Appraisers in the Appraisal of New Tract Development."

He also will discuss the latest proven techniques in marketing of tract housing. Reservations may be made by calling Emilie H. Betts.

PALOS VERDES PENINSULA PROJECT

Retirement Residence, Inc. of San Francisco has announced plans to build this high-rise structure at High Ridge and Buflspring roads on the Palos Verdes Peninsula, near Peninsula Center. It would contain 308 apartment units for retirement living, with a medical setup too. Company representatives said it was hoped construction could start within a month. The project is under sponsorship of the National Health Foundation. Another building also is planned in the Southland, at Van Nuys.

Air Force Role in Space to Be Told

Role of the Air Force in the nation's space program will be explained Thursday noon at the Long Beach Advertising Club luncheon in the French Room at the Lafayette Hotel.

Southern California's economy is deeply involved in this subject. Maj. Francis E. Thompson, of the Space MAJ. THOMPSON Division of the Air Force, will present the program, assisted by Lieut. David E. Hankins. The talk will be highlighted by animated illustrations, movies made by the government.

Thompson will be introduced by Ken McCafferty, advertising consultant, formerly with Sears bi-county advertising office, and a past president of the club. President Frank H. Schultz, sales manager of Southern California Edison, will preside.

Reservations may be made by calling Helen Perkins, manager of Independent, Press-Telegram Engravers.

NLB Club to Hear Board President

James C. Hoffman, president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, will discuss "Realtor-Realty Board Relationships" when he guest speaks at the North Long Beach Real Estate Club Thursday at the Crown Bowl.

Dorothy Annis, executive secretary of the board, will also be a guest. She and Hoffman will be introduced by Bruce Kunkel.

NASA Contracts to Macco Unit

The contracts are to install hardware and plumbing aboard the first three mobile launchers being built at the Kennedy Space Center's Merritt Island facility near Cape Kennedy.

Probably the world's tallest vehicle, the mobile launcher is a 405-foot-high tower standing atop a two-story, 100-foot by 150-foot platform.

SUBJECTS FOR DISCUSSION

Realtors Will Meet Feb. 25 in L.B. for Sales Conference

Hundreds of Long Beach area realtors will attend an all-day sales conference Feb. 25 in the Municipal Auditorium Concert Hall.

The program is part of the California Real Estate Association's educational program.

Theme of the conference will be "The Professional Approach to Listing and Selling Homes and Small Income Property," according to James C. Hoffman, president of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, a co-sponsor of the meeting.

In attendance will be realtors from Bellflower, Compton, Lynwood, Downey, Montebello, Norwalk-La Mirada, Pico Rivera, Southeast and Whittier as well as Long Beach boards.

"THIS CONFERENCE is conducted to enable realtors and salesmen to update their knowledge of the fundamentals of listing and selling real estate," Hoffman said.

"The CREA editorial board researched each of the subjects to be presented in order to present the 'here and now' of real estate selling. This conference will not only benefit the realtors and real estate salesmen who attend, but also the citizens in Long Beach by assuring them of professional service in the purchase and sale of real estate."

One of the nation's top sales consultants, Bob Bale of Phoenix, Ariz., will be featured speaker.

According to Ira Gribin of Encino, CREA education chairman, an examination will be given at the close of the one-day conference and those who pass will receive one unit of credit toward the CREA Education Certificate. Twelve units of credit plus three years' experience as a member of a local board of realtors are required for a broker to obtain the certificates. A salesman needs eight units and three years' experience.

DAVE CONGER of Vallejo, chairman of the CREA Education Sales Conference Committee, announced that the subjects and speakers to be presented on the conference program include:

"Listing—The Professional Approach," by Dan Wright, Santa Barbara; "Advertising and Public Relations," by Lou Von Dyl, Sherman Oaks; "Selling Real Estate Investment Property," by David Stone, San Jose; and "Financing—The Key to Closing the Sale," by Herbert Hawkins, Temple City.

Dave Conger will act as the moderator of the program.

"In most cases the purchase of a home or apartment house is a family's largest investment in a lifetime," said Hoffman. "Professional counsel and guidance by a qualified realtor is necessary to assure that the purchase represents a sound and wise investment for the years to come."

"This conference, one of a series co-sponsored by CREA and Long Beach District Board of Realtors, enable our members to give improved professional real estate service."

Falkenstein Fountains Flow

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Claire Falkenstein, well-known in Long Beach for metal sculpture she has created here, opens a show of her recent work Monday in the Esther Robles Gallery, 665 N. La Cienega Blvd., Los Angeles. It will continue through March 5.

Miss Falkenstein first came to Long Beach in 1960 after she met Dallas Conklin in Europe and was commissioned to execute a piece of her fused glass and metal sculpture for Miss Conklin's new beach home at 6311 E. Seaside Walk.

It was then that she met Dr. and Mrs. Robert L. Bufum who in 1962 commissioned the sculptor to design and build a fountain for their home at 1161 Los Altos Ave.

This fountain was displayed at the Robles Gallery in 1963 and was seen by the designers of the distinguished new California Federal Savings and Loan building at 5670 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles. Shortly after, Miss Falkenstein created a fountain for the Robles' personal garden.

AS A RESULT of this work, architect Charles Luckman commissioned Miss Falkenstein to create a huge fused glass and metal fountain, some 35 feet high, as an integral part of the California Federal Savings and Loan building.

Miss Falkenstein calls her work "sculptured water."

The building with its tremendous, beautiful fountain will open formally with a reception Monday night.

Miss Falkenstein's next undertaking will be a large work for California State College at Fullerton, where Dr. John Olsen, formerly of Long Beach, heads the art department.

TWO EXHIBITS by outstanding seascape artists go on view at private galleries in Pasadena Monday.

Peter Ellenshaw, who exhibits infrequently, will have a one-man show at the Manhattan Galleries, 540 S. Lake Ave.

An Academy Award winner, he has done special art work for Walt Disney productions, including "Mary Poppins," but he prefers to paint for himself and his paintings are snapped up by buyers all over the world. He produces between 50 and 60 paintings a year and has standing orders for his work from as far away as Lima, Peru.

The second Pasadena exhibit, which also includes oils of Southern California deserts, is by Henry Vander Velde of Catalina Island. It will hang in the Poulson Galleries, 910 Pasquel St. through March 6. Trained at the University of Michigan and the National Academy of Design, New York, the artist is represented in public and private collections throughout the United States.

A COLLECTION of "surrealistic" paintings by the controversial artist John Aherne opens today at the M-art Gallery, 137 S. Pacific Ave., Redondo Beach. This is the first time the artist has exhibited in the South Bay area.

PETER, PAUL AND MARY TRIO will begin a seven-day concert tour of Southern California with performance in Municipal Auditorium Feb. 26.

Pandit to Play

Organist Korla Pandit will play a concert Feb. 23 at the Wilshire Theater, Los Angeles. The announcement was made by the Los Angeles Chapter of American Theater Organ Enthusiasts, a national non-profit organization dedicated to restoring, salvaging and maintaining great theater organs in the United States. No theater organs have been built for the last 35 years, although church organs still are being made.

Cantors Ensemble to Sing

The famed Cantors Ensemble, a chorus of directors of sacred music in Los Angeles temples, will sing at the Concert Hall of Long Beach Municipal Auditorium Saturday, Feb. 27, at 8:15 p.m.

Long Beach's two Conservative congregations, Temple Sinai and Temple Beth Shalom, arranged the concert in response to repeated requests after the cantorial choir performed at a testimonial dinner last year for Cantor Morris Greenfield of Temple Sinai.

Appearing as soloists, duets and trios, as well as in chorus, the cantors will present their repertoire of Israeli folk songs, all-time Yiddish favorites, Biblical music, traditional cantorial chants and liturgical choral music.

LOIS ELYNN

EACH CANTOR is a standout vocalist in his own right as a chorus the group has received national acclaim.

Cantor Greenfield of Sinai and Cantor David Kane of Beth Shalom are co-chairmen of the concert. Reservations may be made by the public at either temple on patron, sponsor or donor basis, with other reserved seats also available.

Pacific Ballet Theater on Toes for San Pedro Show

Ballerina Lois Elynn of Fullerton and dancer Patricia Norman of Palos Verdes will appear with a cast of professionals in Pacific Ballet Theater's offering of the 1965 season at San Pedro High School Auditorium, 1001 W. 15th St., San Pedro, next Sunday, Feb. 21.

The program, "Ballet Highlights," will be repeated Sunday, Feb. 28, at Santa Monica High School Auditorium, Sixth Street and Michigan Avenue, Santa Monica. Performances will start at 2:15 p.m.

ON THE BILL are Act II of "Swan Lake," Act III of "Sleeping Beauty" and the comic ballet, "Katinka and the Matchmaker," created by Andrei Tremaine. He is director of the ballet company and is former soloist with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo. Danced in pantomime with knee boots instead of ballet slippers, the ballet was an instant hit when it premiered in Los Angeles last year.

Chicago Ballet Dances Monday

The Chicago Opera Ballet will dance Monday night in the Convention Hall of Municipal Auditorium. The program is one of the Long Beach Community Concert Association series. Admission is by season subscription ticket only and no tickets are on sale at the box office. Doors will open at 7:15 p.m. Curtain time is 8:15.

Irina Borowska, premiere danseuse of the London Festival Ballet will be guest artist. Other featured dancers include Dolores Lipinski, Orrin Kayan, Charles Schick, Jeanne Armin and Larry Long.

At Ash Grove

Music of Israel and the United States share honors at the Ash Grove, 8162 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles through Feb. 21. The Oranin Zabar, Israel's celebrated musical group, features vocalist Geula Gill who sings in 16 languages. Richard and Jim are personable young men who sing a wide variety of American folk songs.

ADVANCED artists

in painting and sculpture who have won awards or exhibited in major shows are invited by salesman-auctioneer Tom Long to participate in an art auction in Lakewood Country Club at 7 p.m. March 15.

Registered artists will be notified by mail to take their work to the May Co. and other stores in Lakewood Center. Consignments must be registered not later than Feb. 25. On March 15, artists must move their work to the country club for display from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Works will be sold to the highest bidders and artists must donate at least 50% of the final selling price to an endowment fund for the Institute at the John F. Kennedy library.

For further information, call Long at the Ellis-Schrader Realtors, 5505 Woodruff Ave., Lakewood.

Top Folk Singer Trio Signed for L.B. Date

The Peter, Paul and Mary Trio, that top-rated folksinging group, will sing and strum in Municipal Auditorium Friday, Feb. 26, at 8:30 p.m.

The three have sold more than 10 million recordings and have just returned from Australia where they broke attendance records, including one set by Elvis Presley in Sydney. They have played to SRO houses and have received standing ovations in Canada and in almost every state of the United States.

The group is made up of Peter Yarrow, Paul Stookey and Mary Travers, who met in the Greenwich Village section of New York less than five years ago.

Tickets for the concert are on sale at Humphreys Music Co., 135 E. Third St., and at Wallichs Music City in Lakewood.

Concert Today

The symphonic wind ensemble and concert band of California State College at Long Beach will present a program today at 4 p.m. in Long Beach City College Auditorium.

The program includes a march by John Philip Sousa, ballet music from "William Tell" by Gioachini Rossini and selections from Ottorino Respighi and Johann Sebastian Bach.

Admission is free but persons with tickets will be admitted at 3:30 p.m.

Japanese Inspect H.B. Prestige Units

A group of representatives from the Japan Construction Industry Study Team, in the United States to inspect all facets of this nation's building, recently toured the Huntington Village Prestige Homes development in Huntington Beach.

The tour was arranged by Ken Kirk, Orange County Chapter manager of the Building Contractors Association of California, with the Prestige Homes community being selected because it most nearly met the specifications of the study team as to size, 849 homes plotted with 600 finished or under construction; the variety of plans and financing available to the home-buyer; and the fact that the development led all others in Huntington Beach, Fountain Valley and Westminster in total homes sales in 1964.

A Japanese style brunch was hosted by the Doyle & Shields Development Co., Inc., builders of Prestige Homes, before the group toured the models and inspected other

BANKING ON THE FUTURE

This branch of Farmers & Merchants Bank on the southwest corner of Anaheim Street and Obispo Avenue, will be torn down for parking as soon as construction of a new building (at right) is completed. The bank for years has used a parking lot on the southeast corner of the intersection and that has been taken over for a new restaurant. G. A. Walker, president, said the new bank will offer drive-in facilities and additional parking has been purchased at the rear. New building will be ready about April 1.

Brilliant New Shows Provocative at LBMA

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Two outstanding exhibits continue at the Long Beach Museum of Art through Feb. 25. Works by the art faculties of Long Beach City College and California State College, Long Beach, occupy the lower galleries while a one-man show by Edward Reep is presented upstairs.

The faculty works are a delight with brilliant new offerings by old-timers and astonishing productions by new members. The sculptor, Stephen Werlick, from CSC-LB is represented by two intricate bronze pieces, "Crucifixion" and "Group," in which exquisitely formed human bodies move among confining slabs of metal.

DAVID BORDER'S "January 1965" is the most arresting work: it is a huge collage-painting of stretched fabric and other objects of recognizable origin with letters and photos. John Martin's "View of the Sea" in his rich, painterly technique, is in dream-like harmonies of blue and greens. Herman Grall's "Drawing" is a very specific rendering of an ungodly, infernal machine-room.

FROM LBCC, Norma Matlin's "Ephemera" is a pastiche of elegant printed works, fresh and appealing. Al Down's "Untitled" will gladden beach sun-worshippers. "Two Dried Weed Pots" by Bob McMenomy are mushroom-pod-like containers.

Upstairs, Reep offers a variety of strong, individual paintings. His "To JFK" No. 1 and No. 2 are appropriately phrased in the atmosphere of the Mexican death cult. "Lobster Rake" burgeons and foliates in oranges and vermillions on a luminous grey ground, while "Locomotive" thrusts its power at a crazy angle in moonlit green with black outlines.

REEP WELDS cubism into a specific creature of his own. "Moth Walk" in built-up dusty planes of grey is really marvelous.

All of Reep's 20 works command respect and study. There are many excellent works in the Faculty Show other than those mentioned. Both of these exhibits will reward the thoughtful viewer with provocative new ideas.

Study Group to Discuss L.B. Concert

The new Study Group of Long Beach Auxiliary of the Southern California Symphony Association will meet Friday in the home of Mrs. Betty Benwell, 3849 Weston Place at 10 a.m. All interested members of the auxiliary are invited. The Study Group sessions are held before each Long Beach concert to consider the music in greater depth than is possible at the regular salons.

SPECIAL GUESTS Friday will be Mrs. Lloyd Nix and Mrs. Draver Wilson of Los Angeles. Mrs. Nix is president of all affiliated committees of the Southern California Association and Mrs. Wilson is executive secretary.

Mrs. Robert Lease, chairman of the Study Group, will discuss music of Beethoven and Ravel. Joanna Hodges, Long Beach concert pianist, will discuss modern Russian methods of composition and will illustrate music themes and forms of the sonata and allegro. She recently returned from New York where she played a concert in Carnegie Hall.

JULIEN MUSAFIA will perform both classic and contemporary works with Long Beach Symphony Orchestra Saturday night in LBCC auditorium. One, the Shostakovich "Concerto No. 2," has not previously been performed with orchestra in Long Beach.

Concerts Billed by L.B. Symphony

Long Beach Symphony Orchestra will play concerts Saturday and next Sunday. Lauris Jones will conduct.

The Saturday performance, another of the popular Saturday Evening Concerts in Long Beach City College Auditorium, will feature pianist Julien Musafia, one of the community's most gifted musicians. He will leave immediately after the concert for an extended tour of Europe where he will play recitals in many cities and on the national radio in France and Spain.

THE BRILLIANT young artist, professor of piano at California State College, Long Beach, gave his first recital at the age of 6. He graduated from the Royal Conservatory in Bucharest with first prize and from the University of California magna cum laude. He has made solo recordings for Metro Goldwyn Mayer, Columbia Pictures and the Voice of America, and appeared as himself in a movie with Joan Crawford.

The program will include the Rakoczy March from "Damnation of Faust" by Berlioz, Mozart's "Concerto No. 21," Rimsky-Korsakov's "Scheherazade" and "Concerto No. 2" by Shostakovich. For the Mozart concerto, Musafia will play his own cadenzas.

THE CONCERT will begin at 8 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at Humphreys Music Co., 135 E. Third St., or at the Long Beach Symphony Office in Gilmore's Music Store, 1935 E. Seventh St. They will go on sale at the box office at 7 p.m. the evening of performance.

The Sunday concert at 4 p.m. in the Concert Hall of Municipal Auditorium will spotlight winners of the symphony's annual Student Musicians Competition. There is no admission charge.

The following first place winners will perform as soloists: Bonnie Boyd, flutist; Dennis Tremblay, double bass player; and Bill Poledouris, pianist.

A collegium musicum is a society devoted to the study and performance of old music, particularly music which is rarely heard today, and to the study and use of old musical instruments.

Dr. Robert Tyndall and Dr. Bertram McGarrity, both of Long Beach, are directors of the newly formed Collegium Musicum.

Have You Heard of Jeep Bargain? Don't Believe It

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

Perhaps you are among the thousands of Americans who want to buy a jeep because you have heard that surplus World War II jeeps "still in crates" are available at anywhere from $50 to $150 each.

Such deals just don't exist. Uncle Sam says so through the Defense Logistics Services Center which is in charge of surplus sales.

All military surplus jeeps are being sold at two locations, Defense Logistics Services Centers in San Diego and Norfolk.

Norfolk last week sold 55 so-called jeeps but they really were carcasses from which mechanics had removed such major components as engines, wheels, radiators, axles, transmissions, windshields and seats. Those parts will be used in repairing others. Any jeeps that the Army can't use are picked up immediately for use by some other governmental agency.

What about San Diego jeep sales? Well, the first sale under the government policy inaugurated last year for such disposal, still is pending. Only two saleable surplus jeeps turned up west of the Mississippi River.

ONE NEIGHBORHOOD shopping center for Long Beach is near completion and another has been started. The center at Redondo Avenue and Anaheim Street has some components now open and the remainder will open shortly.

Meanwhile, construction is under way on Willowst Shopping Center at the southwest corner of Willow St. and Caspian Ave., being developed by Bessie and George Werner. Dwyer-Curlett & Co., a mortgage banking firm, secured a loan commitment on the neighborhood center through Life and Casualty Insurance Co. of Tennessee.

Alpha Beta will occupy the main store in the center which Contractor Ernest W. Hahn is expected to complete in June.

A $1,250,000 Rose/Linda Shopping Center for Yorba Linda is announced by Harry S. Rinker of Rinker Development Corp. It will be at the corner of Rose and Yorba Linda Blvd. Von's Market will be featured.

A HIGH RISE apartment building for Signal Hill is under construction. B. F. Goodrich supplied the 52,135 feet of steel cable for the building. Goodrich development group blames the cable for the building's problems.

help save lives when aircraft are forced down at sea.

J.C. Penney Co., reported annual volume of $2 billion for the first time in its 63-year history, joining an exclusive group of four other retailers doing more than $2 billion in sales annually.

HARVEY ALUMINUM of Torrance reported net income for the first fiscal quarter rose 40%. Premium income of Aetna Life Insurance Co., will exceed $1 billion for the first time in the company's 112-year history, according to George McKeehan, Long Beach general agent.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Fear a Big Travel Deterrent

But Industry Itself Partly to Blame, Says Spokesman

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

More than 50% of the people of this country do no vacation gadding at all, according to travel industry surveys.

To those of us who look forward to our vacations — and the opportunity they afford to visit new places and people — this revelation is, of course, almost inconceivable.

Why, of all things, not? To put it bluntly, it is because these Americans are afraid of travel itself, afraid of leaving the security of home for the unknown.

For instance, many hesitate to plan a vacation at a resort because they are afraid they might not have the right clothes to wear.

SOME DREAD eating at strange restaurants or staying at hotels because they are unsure about how much to tip.

Others avoid visiting famous restaurants because they feel the menu might be in a foreign language which they won't be able to read, and that the adventure will wind up in nothing but embarrassment.

Still others are afraid of trains or planes.

And there are those who feel they can't afford it, or who don't have the time.

Charles Gillett, president of the National Association of Travel Organizations and one of the travel industry's active spokesmen, offers encouragement to those who feel ill at ease when on a trip.

"What the first-time traveler doesn't realize," he points out, "is that no one expects him to know all the answers. People who travel much of the time know that they must ask questions constantly wherever they go. Conditions change from year to year and vary from country to country, and no one can know all the answers all the time."

GILLETT feels strongly that the travel industry itself is partly to blame for the relatively small number of people who travel for pleasure in the United States. It is a paradox, he says, that the very people who are in the business of selling travel, who benefit most from vacation spending, are sometimes responsible for deterring prospective customers.

He says that some hotels and resorts, in attempting to glamorize themselves, project such an image of

Like to Gad on Weekends?

If your dish is weekend gadding, here are some upcoming events that might be to your liking:

Thursday through Sunday: Whiskey Flat Days in Kernville, on the shores of Lake Isabella in the mountains above Bakersfield. Tours to old gold mines, mule packing exhibition, claim jumpers' race, flapjack breakfast, old-time costume, fiddlers' and epitaph contests.

Next Saturday: Flag Parade in Paramount. Starts at 1 p.m. with more than 150 units in line of march including top color guards and award-winning bands, plus hundreds of American flags of all sizes saluting "America the Beautiful."

Also, next Saturday, La Habra holds its Highland Dancing competition at 9 a.m. with piping and dancing at the high school. Competition is limited to those under 19 years of age.

Faster Ride Into London

Air travelers are promised an easier and faster ride from London Airport to the center of the city in 1965, according to TWA.

A new motorway, soon to be completed, with an underpass, will offer direct access to the airport and an unimpeded drive to and from London, since it will bypass all buildings, including a factory which necessitates raising the motorway to a height of 40 feet in order to clear its roof.

swank, even at economy prices, that many people are actually intimidated instead of encouraged.

"In too many movies, plays and television shows, the ordinary traveler is depicted in situations in which he is baffled by unfamiliar things or humiliated because he has wandered into a place where he feels he doesn't belong."

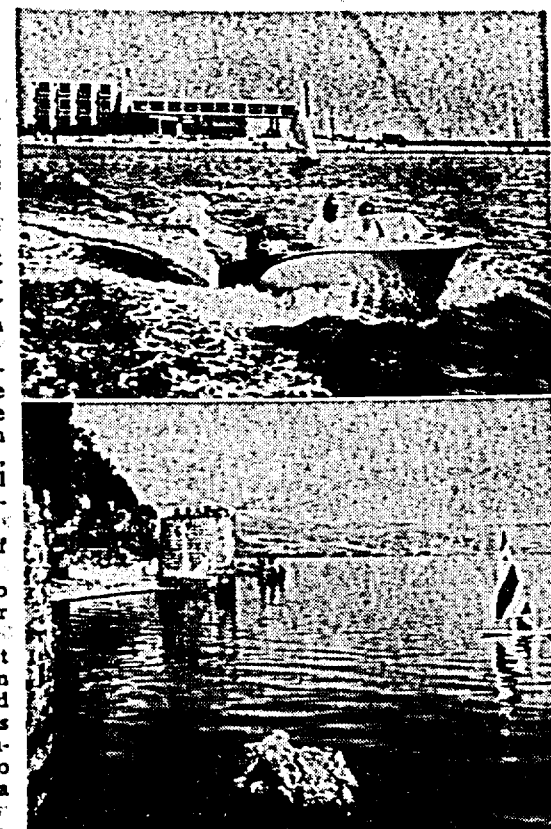

GILLETT believes the

travel industry can and should take prompt action to overcome the fear of traveling by training personnel to anticipate and answer fully the questions which the first-time traveler may be too embarrassed to ask—whether they are questions about clothes, tipping, whether to bring the children, or exactly how much the trip will cost.

He also feels the first-time traveler may be put off

by complicated time tables, the mechanism of making advance reservations at hotels, and other such details of planning a trip — not knowing that a competent travel agent can do all these things for him and more often than not at no additional cost.

Travel, he says, should be made easy, fun and relaxing. When it is, even the timid will take to the road and enjoy its adventures.

Where King Solomon Greeted His Sheba

What could be more romantic than having a winter frolic where King Solomon greeted the Queen of Sheba when she traveled to ancient Israel? Or summing yourself where Roman conquerors bathed in nature's hot springs.

It was at Etzion Geber, today known as Eilat, on the Red Sea that the ancient Israeli ruler had his first confrontation with the charming ruler from Africa. Today Eilat is one of Israel's favorite winter spots offering a variety of accommodations, a wide, sandy beach and the warm, clear waters of the Red Sea.

As for the Roman conquerors of Israel, they made Tiberias one of their centers during their occupation and bathed in its hot sulphur spring, which were famous then as they are now for their healing powers. But, let it not be said that only the ill come to Tiberias for this would be far from the truth.

TIBERIAS is located on the Sea of Galilee and it is on this inland body of water that hearty pleasure-seekers enjoy water-skiing, fishing, sailing and other aquatic sports.

During the winter months Eilat enjoys temperatures around 80 degrees while Tiberias basks in the 70s. At Eilat a deep dip in its waters will put you in contact with some of the most colorful underwater corals and reefs and tropical fish. On the water's surface you can enjoy speed-boat racing, water-skiing and sailing.

Of course you can loll around on the beach all day and get a golden-hued tan; and if you feel like lying on the beach during the balmy evenings you can gaze at the stars and visualize yourself as being in the most isolated spot in the world for Eilat is at Israel's southernmost tip and beyond its shores beckons the African continent.

IT IS FROM Eilat that Israel's merchant fleets sail to Africa and ships from all over the world make Eilat their port-of-call. Eilat has become a winter haven for many Scandinavians who wish to leave the winter chills behind and it is becoming a popular resort for others who desire sun, fun and tranquility in one of the world's most romantic spots. Tiberias and the Sea of Galilee up north offer, besides recreation and good accommodations, an area where history was made. Besides accommodating the Roman conquerors this area was the seat of Jewish learning after the destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem and it was along the shores of the Sea that Jesus gathered his disciples and performed many of his miracles. Here, too, the Crusaders, the Byzantines and the Turks stayed and their efforts have been uncovered during archaeological diggings.

BESIDES aquatic and browsing through history there are other distractions at Eilat and Tiberias. From Tiberias you can visit some of the early kibbutzim (communal settlements) which were the backbone for modern Israel's early history and a tour from Eilat will take you to King Solomon's mines and into a part of Israel's serene Negev desert.

FROM OCHOS RIOS it's a pretty ride of a half hour or more to the little town of Montego Bay. On the way in, you pass the ruins of Rose Hill plantation house. In ancient days, a lady named Annie Palmer tortured her slaves and was eventually killed by an obeah — or voodoo — man. Jamaicans say her ghost walks the place. And the caretaker tells a great story.

There's a nice train ride over to Kingston. Your hotel will arrange a one-day trip into the Maroon country. These are descendants of runaway slaves — they run their own show and have a treaty with the Jamaica government.

"How do we find out what shots we need for a trip around the world?"

U.S. PUBLIC Health Service — nearest office of Washington, D.C. — has a list of recommended shots for various areas. You get a yellow international health card with your passport. Have your doctor write in all the shots he gives you. And then have Public Health — local or U.S. — stamp it.

I can't remember how many times I've been stabbed in foreign airports just because I didn't get the original shot record validated.

"Would like to drive to Mexico City via El Paso, Texas. Will this be very hot?"

NOT NOW. In fact, it's cold at this time of year. Spring is pleasant. Summer it's about 90 degrees — but dry, desert heat. About three days of this until you start climbing to the great central

ANOTHER LUCKY HERE
Lucky Stores will open this new market Thursday noon at 21st Street and Pacific Avenue. The company announced this is the first of several new markets planned in the Long Beach area.

Lucky Market on Pacific Will Open

Lucky's newest discount supermarket opens its doors to the public at noon Thursday at 21st and Pacific Ave. Like all Lucky Stores in Southern California, the new Lucky will feature nationally advertised brands, Lucky's fine quality "Bonded" meats and farm-fresh produce at discount prices.

The store was designed by Carl Maston, A.I.A., and Kenngott-Brossner were re-furnished as color consultants to the store, constructed by Ernest W. Hahn, Inc., a most pleasing and modern appeal. The exterior is of modern styling with a wide use of nience with automatic doors and double-deck frozen food cases. The newest open shelf "air-curtain" dairy box does away with the necessity of opening and closing doors.

The well-lighted parking area will accommodate more than 100 cars.

THE STORE will be open Lucky's regular store hours, 12 noon to 9 p.m. daily; Saturday and Sunday 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Les Corbett, Lucky Stores operation manager, said, "This beautiful new store will continue Lucky's policy of low discount pricing."

Special activities will take place at the new store for the grand opening. Free orchids for the ladies will be given Thursday, Friday and Saturday and free ice cream cones will be given to all.

Another Thrifty Drug Set to Open

Thrifty Drug Stores will open a new super-store in Long Beach Thursday.

The ultra-modern Thrifty, located in the Belmont Shopping Center at Redondo Ave. and Anaheim St., will be one of the most beautiful in the entire chain, it was disclosed.

The pioneer firm now operates 250 stores in California, Arizona, Nevada, Idaho, Utah and Oregon. The new store will feature a 10-huge chain opens an average day sale.

ROSSMOOR PANORAMA

Above is view of swimming pool, club house, putting greens, and some of mansion-type homes at Rossmoor Townhouses, adjacent to Rossmoor Business Center.

Rossmoor Townhouse Sales Top $2½ Million

Popularity of Rossmoor Townhouses with homebuyers in North Orange County and Long Beach was noted last week with announcement by William Ballon, president, Jaymarc Corporation, that more than $2½ million in sales have been made to date at the unusually designed residential development. This amounts to approximately 50% of the homes in the project.

Although new home sales generally are running at a reduced pace throughout Southern California, the trend of activity at Rossmoor Townhouses has been continuing at a high rate since the first of the year.

"BUYERS are coming from all geographic areas," said Ballon, "and we are especially getting a lot of purchasers who are selling their old homes for the new way of life available here."

Rossmoor Townhouses' 2, 3 and 4 bedroom homes have been built on a luxury scale with quality construction usually found in homes costing up to $40,000.

Priced from $19,950, these homes have been acclaimed as outstanding values in today's housing market. Under the townhouse plan, each unit also was costly to the homeowner obtains a grant deed and is taxed separately.

Rossmoor Townhouses can be reached from Los Angeles via the Long Beach or Harbor freeways to the San Diego freeway; south to the Los Alamitos Boulevard north exit, then left five blocks on Los Alamitos Boulevard to the Rossmoor Shopping Center.

Southern Pacific Hopes to Avoid Rate Increases

Southern Pacific intends to continue its efforts to hold the line against freight rate increases, despite major wage boosts and other higher operating costs.

Chairman D. J. Russell declared recently that "Southern Pacific considers it imperative to keep rates at lowest possible levels, so we can compete effectively with other forms of transportation, even though much higher costs have created substantial pressure for rate increases."

RECENT wage settlements in the rail industry cost Southern Pacific about $17 million in 1964, he said, and its bill for wages and fringe benefits will go up by an additional $12.5 million in 1965.

The big December floods in Oregon and Northern California also were costly to the railroad. Lines and facilities of SP and its subsidiary, the Northwestern Pacific Railroad, suffered more than $12 million in damage.

"In the face of such increased costs," Russell said, "holding the line on freight rates—with their importance to the general inflationary spiral—is only possible because our huge capital improvement programs, of recent years have enhanced our ability to attract business."

From Long Beach go east on 7th Street to the Los Alamitos Boulevard north exit, then left five blocks to the Rossmoor Shopping Center. Furnished models are open daily 10 a.m. 'til 8 p.m.

Two Key Douglas Positions Filled

Personnel appointments filling two key positions in the Douglas C-5A heavy logistics transport program were announced last week by James L. Murray, vice president and general manager of the company's recently formed C-5 Division.

Carlo R. Tosti, formerly a market development adviser, was named assistant to the vice president-general manager, reporting directly to Murray.

Wilbur A. Day Jr., previously an executive adviser in the market development department, was appointed C-5A marketing manager.

Two Major Talks Slated for Industrial Conference

Long Beach City College's eighth annual Industrial Relations Conference will be held Thursday afternoon and evening on the Business and Technology campus, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Highway. More than 500 representatives from business, industry and labor organizations are expected to attend.

The conference will begin with registration at 4:45 p.m. in the campus gymnasium and will include two major addresses, a dinner meeting and a concluding panel discussion and question period.

SPEAKERS will be James T. Rasbury, manager of employee relations for the Signal Oil & Gas Co., and Ted Silvey of the AFL-CIO Research Department in Washington, D.C.

Rasbury will speak on "The Problem of Communicating and the Value of Continuous Bargaining." A specialist in employee relations and labor law, he was on the staff of the National Labor Relations Board from 1957-1961.

Silvey's topic is "The Effects of Automation and Opportunities for Youth."

A staff member at AFL-CIO national headquarters for many years, Silvey has specialized in the study of automation and its effects on employment and has lectured extensively both in the U.S. and Europe. He also has served as a labor consultant for the Marshall Plan and the National Production Authority.

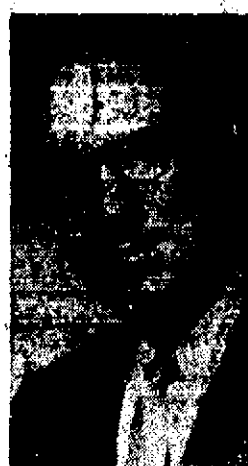

REGISTRATION FEE for the conference, including the dinner, is $5. Programs and registration forms are available on the Business and Technology campus.

Members of the LBCC Industrial Relations Advisory Committee in charge of program arrangements are George D. Hart, Wayne J. Hull, Dale E. Lowell, Bert Gilbertson, Peter L. Marcus, H. G. (Buck) Newsome, W. P. Evans, B. T. McClendon, Omer P. Rivard, James H. Simmons, James T. Stevens and W. S. Rule.

THIS WEEK

Time was when bicycling was big business, then it suffered a relapse. Cycling became kid stuff. Today, cycling is experiencing its biggest boom, what with the population explosion, health fads (cycling is good and pleasant exercise, you know) and more leisure time. For a look at the tremendous cycling "explosion," read Lou Jobst's "Cycling Pedals to Its Biggest Boom" in next Sunday's Southland Magazine.

'Everybody's Sweetheart'

By DON DRURY

VALENTINE QUEEN of Long Beach City College is Cynthia Solomon, 19, of 2721 Golden Ave.

A hazel-eyed, honey blonde, Cynthia was selected by the Associated Student Body Cabinet on the Liberal Arts campus both as LECC's annual Valentine's Day contribution to the pages of Southland and as queen of the recent end-of-semester Sweetheart Prom.

She was born in Long Beach and has lived here all of her life, except for an interlude in Washington, D.C., where she attended junior high school. In Long Beach, she attended Lafayette and Birney elementary schools and Polytechnic High School.

At City College, Cynthia is a sophomore art major and, she hopes, a future art teacher. After graduation from LBCC this June she will transfer to California State College at Long Beach.

CYNTHIA'S favorite college subjects are art and philosophy. Outside the classroom she has been active in the Associated Women Students and is a past vice president of TNT, women's social club. Her other extracurricular interests include music, visiting art galleries, and attending football and basketball games.

Still another of Cynthia's major hobbies, until very recently, has been acquiring pets of all kinds and sizes—including baby sparrows, kangaroo rats, hamsters, mice, lizards and a squirrel monkey. Somewhat to the relief of the rest of her family, she is now down to just one dog.

Since a Valentine Queen is "everybody's sweetheart" (symbolically speaking), it is appropriate to observe that Cynthia is neither engaged nor going steady at the moment. Her present plans involve finishing college and starting her career as an art teacher before even considering matrimony.

She's a Queen, Too

SUSAN SCHIEL

Long Beach City College's other Prom Queen for the recently ended fall semester is Susan Schiel, 19, sophomore on the Business and Technology campus.

Susan recently won two elections the same day, being chosen as spring semester Associated Women Students president at BTC and as queen of the Winter Fantasia Ball. She resides at 740 W. 28th St.

Now a fourth semester student in the Medical Office Assisting program, Susan plans ultimately to attend the Scripps Institution of Oceanography and become a marine biologist.

Cynthia is an art student and hopes to be an art teacher after her studies are completed.

Life in a Sky Town

By Lou Jobst

SOUTHLANDERS may one day live on platforms perched high in the sky and in shafts sunk under the sea.

This is the view of architect Kiyonori Kikutake, one of the world's foremost authorities on high density population centers.

Sky towns and submarine cities, says Kikutake, 36, a visiting design critic at USC, are a practical answer for the already overcrowded, land-hungry megalopolises of the earth.

The Japanese urban designer puts the Los Angeles area along with his teeming island-homeland in this category in the not too distant future.

In fact, Kikutake believes the lofty tower towns will be built within his lifetime.

supporting community of about 5,000 persons, scattered across several platforms, each 1,000 feet above the ground.

The platforms, supported by massive steel-reinforced concrete pillars, would be interconnected by bridges. Travel to and from the ground would be by helicopter and elevators.

The sky platforms would enable the earth resident to have a "place in the country" 1,000 feet above his office on land, he said.

Tower towns of these dimensions would increase the "function" of a vast metropolitan area such as Los Angeles or Tokyo without materially disturbing use of ground surfaces, he asserted.

KIKUTAKE says his tower towns — each costing about $50 to $60 million — would be high enough not to disturb weather. Rain and sunlight would still reach the ground community beneath.

Offshore Kikutake suggests that immense floating islands of irregular shape and size could support both tower buildings above the islands and inhabited under-sea shafts below them.

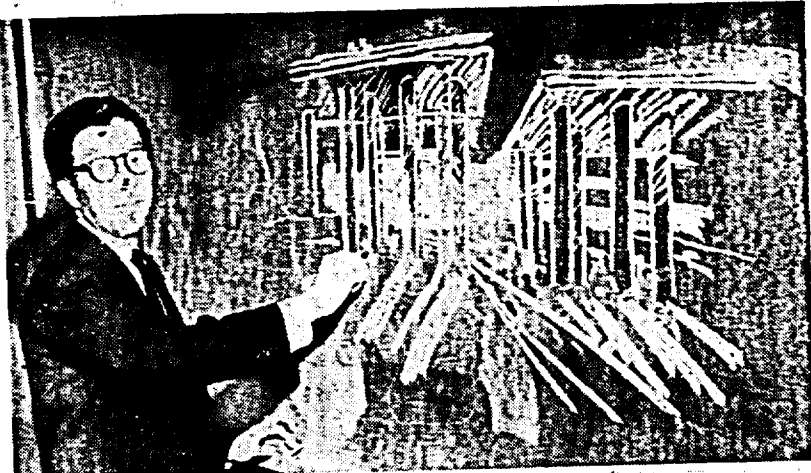

He believes that in this manner as many as a half million persons could live comfortably in an area no larger than four square miles.

Kikutake says his under-sea shafts would be between 100 to 300 feet deep and would be placed on the lighted seas of the continental shelf.

TRAVEL between shafts would be by submarine, or individual aqua lung.

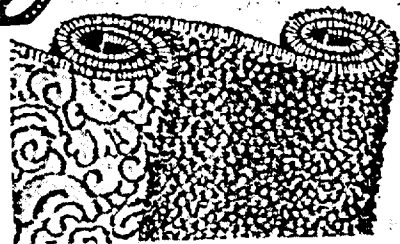

The surface islands could be moved around, allowing future city bosses to relocate a factory district or a residential area to fit the needs of his constituents.

Conceptual version of giant sea platforms he envisions as an answer to world's crowded and sprawling cities is sketched by Kiyonori Kikutake.

'Gizmo' Mystery

By Ruth C. Ikerman

WHAT is this heavy metal thing which looks something like a steel potato masher? We asked ourselves this question every time we got into the cupboard and tried to find a cookie tin or an ice bucket. Studying the piece of steel in our hands we would determine to try to find out where it really belonged, but meanwhile there were cookies to be baked, and ice to be put from trays into the bucket for the pink lemonade.

Could it be a spare part for the mechanical juicer? Well, it really didn't seem to fit, no matter how we jiggled it into the opening where the various parts are applied for different household chores. Maybe it wasn't a part of the juicer after all.

Then probably it belonged to the chopper, and could it be useful in chopping up leftover roast for a good meat pie? Maybe it was an extra part for the grinder which helps turn orange peel and raisins and nuts into such a good mixture for the making of the family's favorite loaf cake.

We didn't dare throw it out, for fear we would discover someday just exactly then we might need it to do then we might need to do that task. One of our visitors helping in the kitchen one night was sure it was a part of an old fashioned potato ricer which used to take the place of the wooden ball with handle with which the potatoes were "smashed" before the time of electric mixers.

THE MAN of the house declared the "gizmo" sure didn't belong to him out in the garage. At last, we got ready to toss it onto the junk heap. But before we could truly clean out the cupboard the washing machine man came to fix our washer. This called for a new part.

When he had installed it, he handed us the discarded part and said, "I don't know what you'll do with this, but here it is." And lo and behold it was an exact duplicate of the part in the cupboard we had been saving for all these years and spending all that brain power trying to decipher the mystery of the steel. It gave us double pleasure to toss out two worn out parts. It's surprising that we saw the similarity, and didn't clutter our cupboard with two mysterious spare parts.

WHY CHILDREN LEARN MUSIC BETTER ON A HAMMOND ORGAN

Children are born with a sense of rhythm, an instinctive response to melody. Music lessons can be as natural for a child as learning to talk. Read how a Hammond Organ fosters this natural process and gently disciplines his musical instincts.

When a child presses a certain key on a Hammond Organ he hears a certain note. When he releases it, the sound stops. Simple, natural, cause and effect.

Whenever he presses that key, he hears the same note. Natural, predictable, reassuring to a child. He quickly learns this relationship, but, more important, he understands it because it is natural and satisfies a child's strong sense of logic. But the genius of a Hammond goes beyond its logic. The instrument satisfies him with its rich, mellow tone.

What he plays sounds important, and when he sounds good, he knows he's making progress.

A Hammond Organ introduces him to many instrumental voices . . . teaches him how to identify brasses, strings, woodwinds, and he goes quickly from identification into a growing ability to blend them into magnificent orchestral effects.

No other organ gives him such a variety of tones. No other organ allows him to manipulate them as easily. In addition, a Hammond Organ gives him rich echo effects, brilliant percussion accents, subtle vibrato expressions . . . more total music than he can explore in a lifetime.

We provide excellent lesson programs for children. Patient and knowledgeable teachers will instruct your child individually. We have plans for teaching children and parents together. Nurturing your child's instinct for music is the most natural thing in the world. You'll give him more music, more understanding, more lifelong satisfaction, if you start him on the natural instrument—a Hammond Organ.

'Gizmo' Mystery

By Ruth C. Ikerman

WHAT is this heavy metal thing which looks something like a steel potato masher? We asked ourselves this question every time we got into the cupboard and tried to find a cookie tin or an ice bucket. Studying the piece of steel in our hands we would determine to try to find out where it really belonged, but meanwhile there were cookies to be baked, and ice to be put from trays into the bucket for the pink lemonade.

Could it be a spare part for the mechanical juicer? Well, it really didn't seem to fit, no matter how we jiggled it into the opening where the various parts are applied for different household chores. Maybe it wasn't a part of the juicer after all.

Then probably it belonged to the chopper, and could it be useful in chopping up leftover roast for a good meat pie? Maybe it was an extra part for the grinder which helps turn orange peel and raisins and nuts into such a good mixture for the making of the family's favorite loaf cake.

We didn't dare throw it out, for fear we would discover someday just exactly then we might need it to do that task. One of our visitors, helping in the kitchen one night was sure it was a part of an old fashioned potato ricer which used to take the place of the wooden ball with handle with which the potatoes were "smashed" before the time of electric mixers.

THE MAN of the house declared the "gizmo" sure didn't belong to him out in the garage. At last, we got ready to toss it onto the junk heap. But before we could truly clean out the cupboard the washing machine man came to fix our washer. This called for a new part.

When he had installed it, he handed us the discarded part and said, "I don't know what you'll do with this, but here it is." And lo and behold it was an exact duplicate of the part in the cupboard we had been saving for all these years and spending all that brain power trying to decipher the mystery of the steel. It gave us double pleasure to toss out two worn out parts. It's surprising that we saw the similarity, and didn't clutter our cupboard with two mysterious spare parts.

Water Department's Fountain of Flame

Symbol of Service That Never Fails

Long Beach Water Dept. headquarters seems to be afloat.

Among features of the water department's architecture award-winning building are this lake and fountain. Water also serves to air-condition the many offices.

AT 32 DEGREES F. it turns crystalline.

At 212 degrees it turns to steam.

At all temperatures between, it evaporates.

Turn of the faucet and it flows out. Each day 49,000,000 gallons of it flows from the faucets of Long Beach's homes and industrial plants.

It's an almost automatic gesture—just a flick of the wrist and an unlimited supply gushes forth.

As a symbol of this unending process there is a fountain in Long Beach from which 350 gallons of water each minute sprays toward the sky and splashes back into a huge pool upon which a bright, gleaming building seems to float.

AFTER DARK the spray turns into tiny spears of light as blue, green, red and yellow spotlights turn the droplets into minute torches, lighting a tropical lagoon.

The fountain sits in front of the headquarters of the Long Beach Water Dept., 1800 E. Wardlow Road, a public utility that supplies a priceless material at what might be called the biggest bargain rate of all time.

The Long Beach Water Dept. sells its merchandise for 8 cents a ton, and that's the delivered price.

It is, the water people claim with much pride, cheaper than dirt.

Despite stories that water is getting scarce, Long Beach has been guaranteed that its 49 million gallons per day will continue to flow through its 840 miles of pipeline within the city limits to its 82,000 subscribers.

SIXTY PER CENT of the supply is purchased from the Metropolitan Water District and comes from the Colorado River. The remainder comes out of the 40 wells within the city that have been pumping water for 70 years.

All water in the Long Beach lines has been processed through the city's treatment plant—one of four in Southern California. The others are at Vernon, San Diego and Beverly Hills. Much of the water consumed by Southern Californians is untreated out of deep wells.

The Long Beach well water is not treated for purification, but to remove color and odor caused by the particular soil formation of the area.

Average daily consumption per capita in Long Beach is 123 gallons (industrial usage is included in the figuring) and the average householder bill for two months is about $6 (not including industrial bills).

Asked how much a glass of water costs, a spokesman for the department said "We've got computers, but I'm not sure even they could come up with an answer on that one." It has been computed, however, that water to fill a bathtub costs "about 1 cent."

WATER COSTS about 3 cents per day per person in Long Beach. "The most expensive thing you can do is water the lawn," says a department spokesman. That costs about 9 cents.

The department's headquarters building, completed in 1961, has won several architectural awards. The department, too, is an award-winner. It attracted national attention recently with its newest service: Whenever it has to cut off somebody's water for repairs, the blue-uniformed servicemen deliver a gallon bottle of clear, sparkling drinking water fresh out of a city faucet, compliments of the department.

"As far as we know this isn't done anywhere else," says a LBWD official, "and we've been getting a lot of inquiries from around the country about it."

The fountain in front of the LBWD administration building is more than the symbol of the department—it is the symbol of the eternal cycle of that combination of hydrogen (two atoms) and oxygen (one atom) which combine to form what the chemists have termed H₂O.

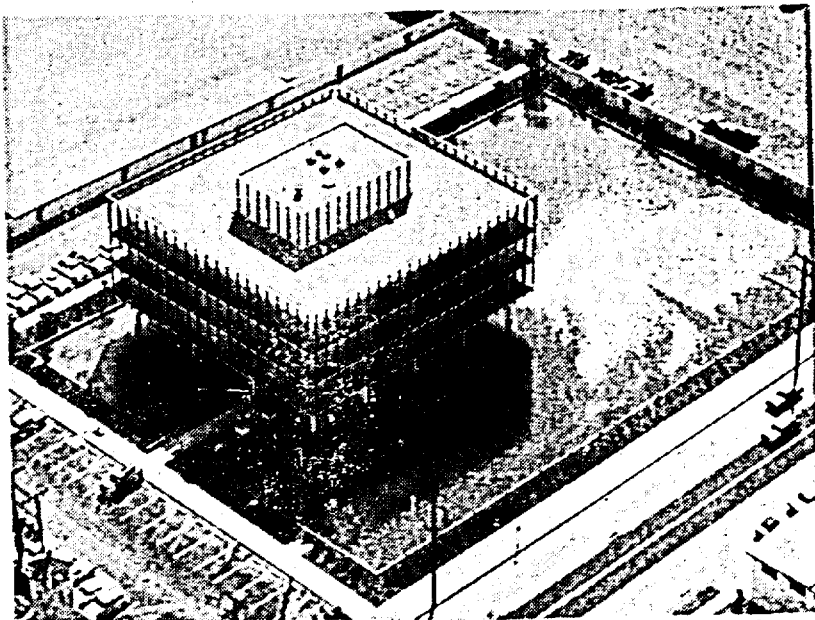

THOUGH NONE of Long Beach's water is reclaimed sewage (but many American cities use reclaimed sewage water), all water in the world is reused water. It is evaporated into the atmosphere and returned to earth on the wings of the next rainstorm.

The fountain at the LBWD uses the same process. The 350 gallons a minute pumped through it into the air falls back to earth and is pumped through the administration building's air conditioning system and back into the fountain again.

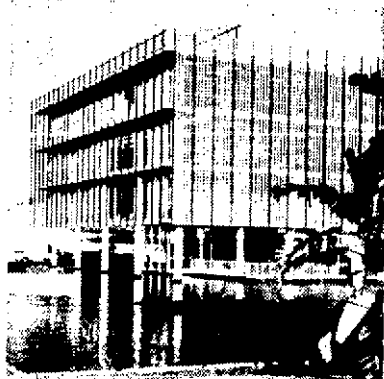

In a day's time the fountain spouts a half million gallons, in a week's time it hurtles 3½ million gallons into the sky and in a year's time the total is 183 million gallons.

But that is a total not likely to impress the people of the Water Department. After all, they watch the people of Long Beach gulp the equivalent of 5 billion glasses of water every day.

From above, the water department's nerve center presents this interesting view. Despite shortage stories, Long Beach has ample water supply assured.

Suddenly the powder exploded, driving the crowbar into the man's head. He survived.

PHINEAS GAGE was usually a cautious man. But something went drastically wrong one day—and Gage made medical history.

Foreman of a Rutland and Burlington Railroad construction gang, he was using a crowbar to charge a hole with powder, preparatory to blasting. Suddenly the powder exploded prematurely, driving the crowbar through Gage's head. The bar was an inch and a quarter in diameter and weighed 13 pounds.

The crowbar entered the left side of his face beneath the cheek bone, passed up by the eyesocket, and emerged from the top of his head. Though a bit dazed by the accident, amazingly, Gage didn't lose consciousness. In fact, he walked up a flight of stairs seeking medical attention.

When the bar was removed and the broken bone cleared away, there remained a hole $3\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter in Gage's skull. Despite the destruction of huge amounts of brain tissue, he was normal and his mental faculties were unimpaired. He recovered completely, except for the loss of sight in one eye.

THE ACCIDENT occurred in 1847. Phineas Gage lived for many years afterwards. Today a cast of his head along with the original crowbar are on exhibit in the museum of Harvard Medical School.

Surprisingly, many equally lucky persons somehow survive death-dealing accidents. Among the fortunates is Mrs. Nancy Lyles of Alton, Ill. Several years back as she walked along a trestle, a passenger train thundered up behind her. Flinging herself between the rails, she was horrified when the locomotive rolled over her. She escaped with nothing more than a few scratches.

"It's a miracle," declared Arthur Yordy, the stunned conductor. "I don't see how she ever got out of it alive. There is no more than eight inches of clearance between the tractor motors of the double diesel locomotive and the trestle cross-ties."

CEDA PAVLOVIC also dodged the Grim Reaper by a narrow margin. Several years ago while taking a bath in his Belgrade, Yugoslavia, home, he reached out a wet hand to flip a light switch.

The resulting electric shock almost killed him. Mrs. Pavlovic, discovering her husband's unconscious form in the bathtub, called a doctor, who gravely shook his head and notified the cemetery. By government decree Pavlovic's body was dispatched to a frigid vault beneath the cemetery chapel to await formal burial.

Ceda regained consciousness in his coffin. Fortunately, the lid wasn't secured and he hopped out. The vault door was bolted, but the "dead man" hollered for help. Finally a frightened cemetery guard summoned up enough nerve to investigate. He released Pavlovic from his living tomb.

Fast-thinking Ferdinand Stoj of the Bronx survived an equally hazardous brush with death. Locked in an air-tight car trunk by burglars, Stoj frantically tried to pry open the door with a car jack, but without success. Slowly suffocating, he remembered the spare tire and its supply of air.

FOR SIX HOURS he kicked at the trunk lid periodically and inhaled whiffs of life-giving air from the tire. Finally a night watchman heard the commotion and rescued him—not a minute too soon.

Christopher Geyer of Syosset, N. Y., carried a permanent reminder that death must have been on a holiday one day in 1945. As a GI, Geyer was crossing the Remagen Bridge over the Rhine River when he stopped an enemy bullet.

The bullet lodged in the left ventricle of his heart, miraculously plugging its own hole, and thus saving his life. To this day doctors maintain that surgery for the removal of the bullet will not help. Geyer will doubtless carry it in his heart to the end of his days.

A surprising number of persons miraculously survive falls from cliffs, buildings and even from airplanes. A while back Stephen Jeffers and his wife of Long Beach parked their car on the edge of a cliff to view the June moon. Starting up again, the car got out of control and plunged over a 500-foot cliff and crashed into a ravine. The car was smashed almost beyond recognition, but the occupants calmly climbed out of the debris and walked more than two miles for help.

JAMES WHEATLAND of Norwalk, Conn., was under the influence of a relaxing anesthetic when he leaped from the third-floor window of his dentist's office. Striking a first-floor roof, he got up and jumped to the street. A passing policeman escorted the uninjured patient back to the dental office where he had been recovering from a tooth extraction.

There's no telling what circumstances may save a falling person from serious injury, or even death. Mrs. Rose Lazzeri, a New York housewife, was sweeping a concrete courtyard by her house, when she heard a terrifying scream. Looking up, she gasped. Her husband had fallen from a third-story window and was hurtling downward.

Racing to his line of fall, she reached it just as her spouse's body hit a clothesline and bounced off. She caught him in her arms and they both tumbled to the pavement unharmed.

Ex-paratrooper Tom Grace, a pipefitter's apprentice, was working on the 11th story of a building under construction when he lost his balance and went hurtling downward through space. At the third-floor level his left side smashed against a bricklayer's scaffold, slowing his descent. Fortunately missing bricks and rubble in landing, he suffered only a broken rib.

"I was in the paratroopers in World War II," Grace explained. "I learned how to fall. I twisted my body so my head wouldn't hit. That saved me."

PERHAPS THE luckiest person of all is British Air Force pilot Brian Cross. He bailed out of his spinning Meteor jet fighter and dropped 20,000 feet with a collapsed parachute into four feet of water.

Cross' parachute ripped as he was struggling free from the jet. The damaged chute alternately billowed and collapsed over him during his four-mile fall into the sea. Though he suffered multiple injuries, Cross managed to inflate his life raft and fire distress signals. Rescuers picked him up within minutes and rushed him to a hospital where he ultimately recovered.

Fortunately for Brian Cross, Tom Grace, Phineas Gage and many others, death sometimes goes on a holiday. Otherwise they wouldn't have survived their harrowing experiences.

The Beat Patrolman

The old-time beat patrolman is rapidly being replaced by helmeted men in sleek patrol cruisers. Only a few remain on the Long Beach force.

By BILL HAZLETT

MODERN advances such as high-speed patrol cars, two-way radios and computerized sleuthing have almost eliminated a once-familiar figure from the field of law enforcement.

The beat patrolman, who waged his war on crime with shoe leather and a nightstick, has all but disappeared; gone with the streetcar and the horse-drawn fire engine.

But the need for close contact police activity is still important.

The man walking a beat can see and hear far better than his motorized fellow officer in the sleek patrol cruiser. The beat officer can ferret out illegal activities in the dank, smelly alleys which are often bypassed in the fast-moving patrol cars. And the Long Beach Police Department, recognizing the need for policemen on foot, has retained a small force of beat officers.

UNLIKE HIS early-day counterpart, who soon became well known on his beat; helping lost children, checking neighborhood stores, and making things uncomfortable for loiterers; today's beat patrolman is seldom seen.

Officer Jim Rodda is one of the city's modern-day beat patrolmen, and his daily, or nightly, routine is typical of the work being done by the policemen on foot. His tour of duty starts after dark, and his patrol takes him through parking lots, between buildings, along fences and into the side streets of downtown Long Beach.

At the end of an alley he stops and peers into the lights for a few moments.

"Never walk directly out of an alley.

"If you watch the street for a while, it gives you an advantage . . . you see things happen before anyone sees you," Rodda explained.

DARKENED parking lots are closely watched by the beat officers.

"You never know what you'll find," Rodda said.

During a recent patrol Officer Rodda spotted two men selling stolen suits from the trunk of a parked car. Before the sale was really under way, Rodda collared the "salesmen" and hauled them in for a jail garb fitting.

Sometimes the arrests are less important. A drunk stumbling down a side street suddenly weaves into the wall of a building and collapses in a heap. A call to headquarters brings a patrol car to haul the drunk to a cell where he can sleep it off.

"It's more for his own good than anything else. He's liable to get killed in traffic," Rodda said.

OTHER TIMES a warning is enough. Three toughs following an attractive girl along the sidewalk quickly found other interests after a word or two from the beat patrolman.

Beat patrolmen, such as Officer George E. Austin of the Long Beach Police Department of 1903, are being largely replaced in the modern age, but there's still the need for them, and Officer Jim Rodda, modernly equipped, is shown on duty, checking suspect's identity, watching darkened building and phoning for "the wagon."

The beat officer spends plenty of time checking trash cans.

"That's where employees who steal from their jobs hide merchandise until they can pick it up," Officer Rodda said, after spending nearly an hour crouched in a construction site watching the trash bins behind a nearby department store.

The beat patrolman's tour can take him from the neon glare of a swinging night-spot to the blackness of a trash-littered passageway between two buildings.

HIS JOB puts him in personal contact with the derelicts of society, hiding in alleys to swill cheap wine; the confused sailors, trying to make it back to their ship without getting into trouble; the lost visitors, who need a few friendly directions; and others, like the well-dressed society matron whose stalled car has marooned her in a deserted parking lot.

No matter what his role—arresting officer, helpful guide, sympathetic listener, or parking lot mechanic—the beat patrolman carries the image of the police department. His contact with the citizens is important—because it is personal.

Although he often makes his foot-weary return to headquarters without solving an important crime, or making a big arrest, the beat patrolman knows he has helped perform some of the minor tasks which are a major part of law enforcement.

The Beat Patrolman

The old-time beat patrolman is rapidly being replaced by helmeted men in sleek patrol cruisers. Only a few remain on the Long Beach force.

By BILL HAZLETT

MODERN advances such as high-speed patrol cars, two-way radios and computerized-sleuthing have almost eliminated a once-familiar figure from the field of law enforcement.

The beat patrolman, who waged his war on crime with shoe leather and a nightstick, has all but disappeared; gone with the streetcar and the horse-drawn fire engine.

But the need for close contact police activity is still important.

The man walking a beat can see and hear far better than his motorized fellow officer in the sleek patrol cruiser. The beat officer can ferret out illegal activities in the dank, smelly alleys which are often bypassed in the fast-moving patrol cars. And the Long Beach Police Department, recognizing the need for policemen on foot, has retained a small force of beat officers.

UNLIKE HIS early-day counterpart, who soon became well known on his beat; helping lost children, checking neighborhood stores, and making things uncomfortable for loiterers; today's beat patrolman is seldom seen.

Officer Jim Rodda is one of the city's modern-day beat patrolmen, and his daily, or nightly, routine is typical of the work being done by the policemen on foot. His tour of duty starts after dark, and his patrol takes him through parking lots, between buildings, along fences and into the side streets of downtown Long Beach.

At the end of an alley he stops and peers into the lights for a few moments.

"Never walk directly out of an alley.

"If you watch the street for a while, it gives you an advantage . . . you see things happen before anyone sees you," Rodda explained.

DARKENED parking lots are closely watched by the beat officers.

"You never know what you'll find," Rodda said.

During a recent patrol Officer Rodda spotted two men selling stolen suits from the trunk of a parked car. Before the sale was really under way, Rodda collared the "salesmen" and hauled them in for a jail garb fitting.

Sometimes the arrests are less important. A drunk stumbling down a side street suddenly weaves into the wall of a building and collapses in a heap. A call to headquarters brings a patrol car to haul the drunk to a cell where he can sleep it off.

"It's more for his own good than anything else. He's liable to get killed in traffic," Rodda said.

OTHER TIMES a warning is enough. Three toughs following an attractive girl along the sidewalk quickly found other interests after a word or two from the beat patrolman.

Beat patrolmen, such as Officer George E. Austin of the Long Beach Police Department of 1908, are being largely replaced in the modern age, but there's still the need for them, and Officer Jim Rodda, modernly equipped, is shown on duty, checking suspect's identity, watching darkened building and phoning for "the wagon."

The beat officer spends plenty of time checking trash cans.

"That's where employees who steal from their jobs hide merchandise until they can pick it up," Officer Rodda said, after spending nearly an hour crouched in a construction site watching the trash bins behind a nearby department store.

The beat patrolman's tour can take him from the neon glare of a swinging night-spot to the blackness of a trash-littered passageway between two buildings.

HAIR PIECES ARE TOP SECRET

Mum's Word on Milady's Wig

By HOYT McAFEE

Wig experts say Kim Novak—she's Moll Flanders in new film—looks good in wigs of any color.

have suffered "rip and tear" during a hair-pulling rumpus with one of her rivals.

ALL THE WIG expert knows—or will tell—is that he received an "urgent call" from the much-agitated actress during the middle of the night. Its import was this: Could he hurry up to the nitery and bring her a wig to replace the one she'd lost?

Gallantly he responded to her plea with all possible dispatch. A female employe cooperated with him by taking the wrapped-up wig into the ladies' lounge, where the fuming and embarrassed actress was hiding out.

It turned out—I was told—that this same Hollywood glamour girl met with more "wig trouble" later that week. Divorced from her second husband, she was out doing some high heel-kicking with an actor from Broadway.

She declined his invitation to cook steaks for them at his apartment. Then, in a real "switcheroo," she invited him to stop off at her cozy den for a look at HER etchings!

In bidding her an affectionate good-night, it seems that he inadvertently clutched her becoming wig and pulled on it. Off it came—revealing the actress as having "dishwater blonde" hair! Worse, her patchy bald spot on the side of her head was bared to the startled actor's gaze.

REMARKED the Beverly Hills hair stylist (needlessly, I thought): "She exploded with anger and ordered the actor to get lost. His feeble apology, that she was still a sexpot in spite of her bald spot, only made matters worse."

So, fellow males, we're now forewarned. That very charming young woman we know—the one who wears a fetching wig—may be trying to cover up some bald patch. As for those of us males with high foreheads and thinning hair, we have absolutely nothing to hide from our wig-wearing girlfriends!

SOMETHING new under the sun has been added in wig service for women—even a "special number" appropriate for your favorite girl on Valentine's day. A popular specialty shop in Sidney, Australia, provides it for the benefit of Aussie and visiting American women.

It long has prided itself on this motto: "Special wigs for all occasions and styled to fit your personality." In fact, the Sydney wig shop even maintains a far-sighted rental service—a facility which enables a woman to deck herself out in a becoming headpiece for a banquet, dance, or to catch the eyes of men at a party. After one night's use she returns it to the wig shop.

Two Australian girls who recently returned to their homeland, after a visit to Southern California, described the "Valentine number" for this reporter. According to their account, it features a heart-shaped effect of loops, whirls, and flourishes up front, well above the right eye.

IN THE LAND down under, there was a boom in wigs for women as early as 10 years ago. Only during the past two years has the same fad, or fashion, evidenced standout popular appeal in the United States.

Of all the wig shops in the Southern California area, one out in Beverly Hills enjoys the most enviable position. Its proprietor, an expert hair stylist in his own right, caters almost exclusively to the "glamour trade." In short, to leading actresses of film, TV, and fashion-model fame. Likewise to the most prominent young starlets of Hollywood.

What fascinating secrets this man could spill, if he were so disposed! But talk about a discreet, tight-lipped guy: this one could win a prize in the hush-hush league. In a city which woos publicity with the abandon of an eager young lover courting his sweetheart, he bands over backward to avoid it!

As he explains it, some of his famous feminine clients are hyper-sensitive about their "under-the-wig" secrets. It turns out that at least eight of them are afflicted with "patchy baldness." Spelled out, this means that "only sparse strands of hair cover certain areas of their heads."

THEY BELIEVE (and their studios wholeheartedly agree with them) that "it would disillusion male movie-goers to learn that certain glamour queens have a bald spot or spots." They would, the hair stylist submits, "much rather have the public learn about the spicy details of their love life than discover that they must cover up patchy bald spots!"

Thus he, a discerning business man, realizes what folly it would be for him to "mumble or gab about what lies under their specially designed and fitted wigs."

In approaching the man who outfits glamorous stars and starlets with "patchy hair covering and wigs," a reporter is reminded of a cloak-and-dagger operation in full swing at Central Intelligence Agency in Washington, D. C. He, the hair stylist, will pass along dribs, dribbles, and revealing hints—but no names!

UNDER NO circumstances will he identify the feminine stars who have bald spots or very thin hair. (They get that way, incidentally, from nervous and glandular disorders. Also, a few contract a damaging case of tropical fever while on location in jungle areas and on far Pacific Islands—a malady which often causes some or much hair to fall out.)

During a lengthy luncheon engagement, however, the "posh clientele" wig man cheerfully supplied me with a background briefing on his various clients. This corresponded to a presidential news conference, during the course of which the Chief Executive will sometimes provide reporters with background information. But they, in turn, are forbidden to quote him directly.

These are some of the morsels I managed to glean from him: Kim Novak can wear an assortment of wigs "as becomingly as any actress I know. Her texture of skin and eyes radiate sex appeal, regardless of whether she may be outfitted with raven tresses, a henna-colored hairpiece, or a more striking blonde wig."

KIM'S collection of wigs received a sudden deluge of publicity recently while filming of "Moll Flanders" in London—in which Kim portrays one of history's most sensational harlots. While everybody was looking elsewhere, some bold thief stole her most prized wigs.

In addition to Kim Novak, the Beverly Hills wig expert avows that Lana Turner, Rhonda Fleming, Barbara Nichols, and Ava Gardner "look intriguing in specially designed hairpieces of various colors." In all instances, he has discovered, "their sex appeal continues to make itself felt, no matter what kind of wig you create for them."

It piqued my curiosity to hear him tell about "the still young and very attractive woman star who lost her wig in a ladies' room one night." This occurred at a whoop-it-up night spot along the gaudy Sunset Strip.

Her specially designed hair-piece was a burnished coppery tint, one entirely pleasing to male viewers. Maybe she doffed it in the rest room for a moment and an envious female grabbed and fled with it. Or it could

As a reader of Southland, you can get an answer, by mail, to any question of fact from Information Bureau, 635 F St., N.W., Washington 4, D.C. Please enclose return by writing to Southland Magazine or self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Q. Is there an easy way to get ink off your hands? K. B.

A. Ink stains can be removed without harsh scrubbing which may irritate the skin, according to a prominent pen manufacturer. In the case of ballpoint inks, rub the skin gently with cotton dipped in rubbing alcohol. Fountain pen inks can ordinarily be washed away with soap and water. For persistent stains, however, wash with a 5% solution of potassium permanganate, rinse with water, and apply a 5% solution of sodium bisulfate until the brown color has disappeared. These materials can be obtained without prescription at a drug store. The manufacturer further notes that fountain pen and ballpoint inks won't harm children's skin unless poured on in quantity and rubbed in.

Q. Which American birds, once numerous, are now extinct? P. K.

A. At least five: the Labrador duck, the great auk, the heath hen, the passenger pigeon, and the California parakeet. There was a strong possibility that the whooping crane might join this list, but the few remaining birds are being carefully protected, and the whooping crane is now believed to be "winging slowly back from the brink of extinction."

Q. Does it hurt a cat to bathe it regularly? P. H.

A. Authorities seem to agree that cats should not be bathed regularly. Cats may be bathed if a veterinarian prescribes bathing for some skin condition; if through some accident it has become too dirty to clean itself; or for show preparation. When a cat is bathed, care should be taken to dry it thoroughly and to keep it warm afterward.

Q. Are special kinds of skates used by the performers in professional ice shows? F. H.

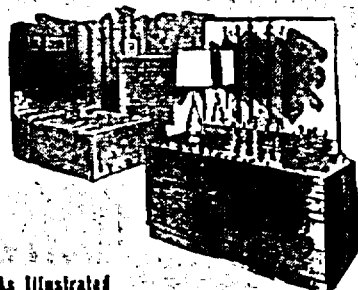

A. Their figure skates have a special blade that is wider than the blade of ordinary ice skates, and is curved at the front end, leaving only a small portion in contact with the ice. This allows the performer to make sharp curves and spins but cuts down speed. The forward edge of the skate is saw-toothed for quick stops.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

No Love for Doors

By Stella George

MR. AND MRS. Ray E. Gephart don't like doors and they do like space.

Therefore, when they set about remodeling their upstairs apartment at 450 W. 20th St., they eliminated as many of the former and created as much of the latter as possible.

"It was an ordinary two-bedroom apartment," explains Mrs. Gephart. "We looked at about a million houses and apartments until we found exactly the features we wanted. We drew our plans, submitted them to a contractor, the blueprints were drawn—and not a change was made in the plans."

FIRST OF ALL, two windows in the living room became one big plate glass window; then they cut north and east windows in the dining area. The result is that they have superb views of Signal Hill and Mount Baldy, and the evening sunsets over Palos Verdes.

They took out the wall and door between kitchen and dining area.

They converted the two bedrooms into a master bedroom.

They added a hall and a den in the apartment, with a downstairs workshop for Gephart and a painting studio for Mrs. Gephart.

Living room colors are beige through gold to orange and brown. Carpet is beige, draperies are ivory; the day-enport is brown with a gold thread; a heap of bright pillows gives a color accent. Most of the living room furniture is antiqued white with gold. Chairs are covered in moss green or peach velvet.

ATTENTION centers on a very old, handsomely carved oak cabinet, which contains cut glass, crystal and Mrs. Gephart's hand-painted china. A tiered table bears an antique rose bowl. The room is lighted with cathedral lamps.

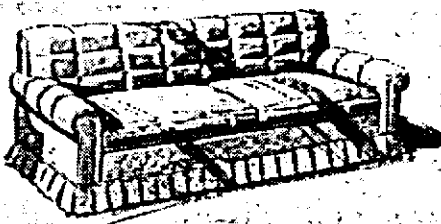

A Florentine lamp hangs above the dining table. In the corner stands a tall tropical plant.

Kitchen counter tops are ceramic tile; cabinets are dark; accents are a sunny yellow. Mrs. Gephart is particularly proud of the roll-out shelves and walk-in pantry.

Bedroom furniture is antiqued white and gold; the two double beds are cov-

Because they like open areas and frown on excess doors, Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Gephart remodeled their apartment to suit their wishes. Above are two views of their living room in their upstairs apartment at 450 W. 20th St.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

No Love for Doors

By Stella George

MR. AND MRS. Ray E. Gephart don't like doors and they do like space.

Therefore, when they set about remodeling their upstairs apartment at 450 W. 20th St., they eliminated as many of the former and created as much of the latter as possible.

"It was an ordinary two-bedroom apartment," explains Mrs. Gephart. "We looked at about a million houses and apartments until we found exactly the features we wanted. We drew our plans, submitted them to a contractor, the blueprints were drawn—and not a change was made in the plans."

FIRST OF ALL, two windows in the living room became one big plate glass window; then they cut north and east windows in the dining area. The result is that they have superb views of Signal Hill and Mount Baldy, and the evening sunsets over Palos Verdes.

They took out the wall and door between kitchen and dining area.

They converted the two bedrooms into a master bedroom.

They added a hall and a den in the apartment, with a downstairs workshop for Gephart and a painting studio for Mrs. Gephart.

Living room colors are beige through gold to orange and brown. Carpet is beige, draperies are ivory; the day-enport is brown with a gold thread; a heap of bright pillows gives a color accent. Most of the living room furniture is antiqued white with gold. Chairs are covered in moss green or peach velvet.

ATTENTION centers on a very old, handsomely carved oak cabinet, which contains cut glass, crystal and Mrs. Gephart's hand-painted china. A tiered table bears an antique rose bowl. The room is lighted with cathedral lamps.

A Florentine lamp hangs above the dining table. In the corner stands a tall tropical plant.

Kitchen counter tops are ceramic tile; cabinets are dark; accents are a sunny yellow. Mrs. Gephart is particularly proud of the roll-out shelves and walk-in pantry.

Bedroom furniture is antiqued white and gold; the two double beds are cov-

Bulls Due in Vegas

LAS VEGAS

IT WAS DUE to happen some day. They are going to horn in on the slot machines here.

Bullfights arrive here Friday at the Convention Center and run through Feb. 21.

In deference to aficionados they will not be referred to as corridas. The bulls will stay alive. Nevada laws are wide open on just about everything, but you can't kill a bull like this.

THE FIGHTS will be staged by a group from Guadalajara, Mexico's second largest city, to promote tourism.

Two of Mexico's finest matadors will work—Manuel Capetillo and Jaime Bravo, plus some American amateurs (novilleros).

It was pointed out the fights will be authentic right down to the matadors wearing the traje de luces (suit of lights). The banderillos will not be hooked.

"SINCE THE BULL will not be weakened by loss of blood prior to the moment of truth," St. Lorenzo Landeros, impresario, said, "the matador will be in considerable danger from these attacking-type bulls from the Santa Domingo and Valparaiso Ranches in Mexico."

Here, where the matador must defend himself at all times, the bulls get their chance to fight back.

Saucy Sense in the Kitchen

Mushroom steak sauce adds zest to many a dish. Pictured above are Beef Cubes Gourmet, Sloppy Josies and Hunter's Stew.

By Mildred K. Flanary

Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

IT MAKES "saucy sense" to do things the easy way—that is, if you don't sacrifice the quality. If the preparation of sauces is your bugaboo, this is for you: a rich-bodied mushroom steak sauce available in ready-to-use 5½ and 10½-oz. cans. Simply open a can, heat and serve. What tawny brown goodness!

Following are some teen-ager's delights, which can be prepared in a jiffy—and with excellent results:

BEEF CUBES GOURMET

- 1½ pounds beef cubes
- Melted shortening
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- ½ cup water
- 1 10½-oz. or 2 5½-oz. cans mushroom steak sauce
- 1 17-oz. can small early peas, drained
- ¼ cup dairy sour cream
- Hot buttered rice or noodles

Brown meat in a small amount of melted shortening in large heavy frying pan. Add seasonings and water; cover and simmer until meat is tender, about 40 minutes. Add more water if necessary to prevent meat from becoming dry.

Stir in mushroom steak sauce and drained canned peas. Heat thoroughly. Remove from heat and stir in sour cream. Serve over hot buttered rice or noodles. Yield: 5 to 6 servings.

HUNTERS' STEW

- 2 10½-oz. or 4 5½-oz. cans mushroom steak sauce
- 1 12-oz. can beef loaf, cubed
- 1 17-oz. can sweet peas with onions, drained
- 1 16-oz. can small whole potatoes, drained
- 1 8-oz. can diced carrots, drained

Heat mushroom steak sauce in medium saucepan or container. Add cubed meat and drained canned vegetables. Heat thoroughly, stirring occasionally. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

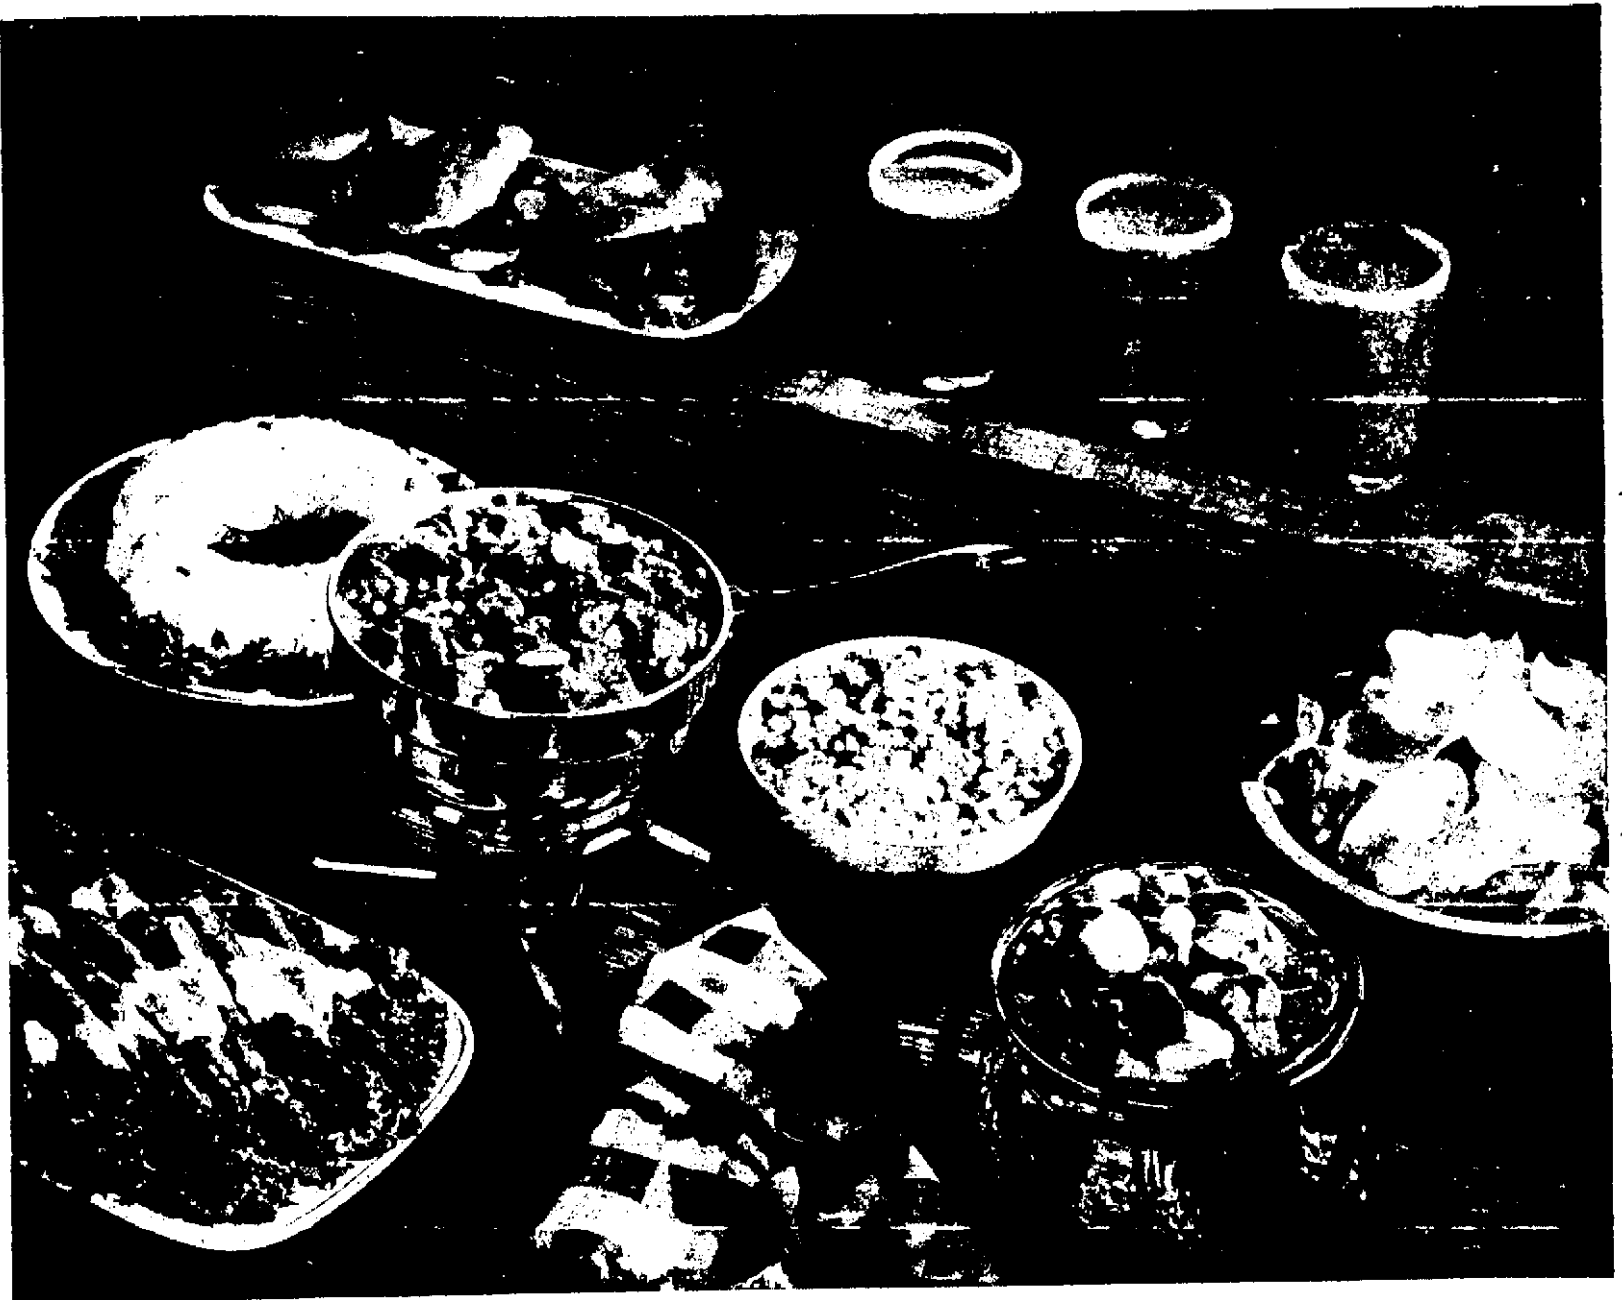

SLOPPY JOSIES

- 1 pound lean ground beef
- Melted shortening
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- ½ teaspoon seasoned pepper
- 1 tablespoon instant minced onion
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 5¼-oz. can mushroom steak sauce
- 6 hamburger buns, sliced and toasted

Brown meat in a small amount of melted shortening in heavy frying pan. Stir in seasonings and mushroom steak sauce; heat thoroughly. Spoon into hamburger buns. Yield: 6 sandwiches.

PRESIDENTIAL VALENTINES

'Special' First Ladies

By Frank Hoyten

WHEN it comes to the special woman in his life—one called Lady Bird—President Johnson admits that he has a "sentimental streak as big as a summer Texas moon." On Valentine's Day he always remembers to surprise her with a gift and card—usually one with a humorous rhyme.

Once, while LBJ was still a U.S. senator from Texas, this reporter remembers that he was invited to make a speech in El Paso on Valentine's Day. He delivered it, all right; but kept it chatty, informal, and brief. Then he drew a laugh and hearty applause from his audience by remarking:

"On this special day, I'm sure husbands and lovers can find something more enjoyable to do than listen to a speech, and I'm signing off now—so they can hurry off to join their wives and sweethearts!"

ANOTHER U.S. President named Johnson—Andrew Johnson—attached special importance to Valentine's Day. It was on that date that he had his first date with his future wife, Eliza McCordle. He, then an awkward, fumbling youth of 17, couldn't even read and write!

Fond of Johnson from the beginning, Eliza McCordle proceeded to teach him these essentials. Unsurprisingly, their romance blossomed. Andrew Johnson, the future 17th President of the United States, proposed to his number one sweetheart on Valentine's Day.

She accepted his proposal and they were married on May 5, 1827. Thereafter, even after Andrew Johnson became President (in the wake of Abraham Lincoln's assassination), he always called his wife "My Valentine" during their affectionate moments together.

To American voters and historians James Monroe was the "Good-Will President"—the man who ushered in an era of peace, prosperity, and rare good feeling among Americans of all stations. He also carved a niche for himself in history by proclaiming the famous "Monroe Doctrine."

BUT TO HIS wife, Eliza-beth Kortright Monroe, he was a man "with an incurable romantic streak." During their merry courtship James Monroe wooed her ardently, "affording me no opportunity to receive

... THE OBJECT OF HIS AFFECTIONS ...
LBJ: A President Who Remembers Cupid's Day

the attentions of two other interested suitors," as Mrs. Monroe later summed up.

America's future fifth President made sure his number one girl got his message. On Valentine's Day he sent her flowers and candy and two separate cards. One card expressed his sentiments with a humorous flavor and the other one made it plain that he loved her!

The evidence also reveals that James Monroe had to overcome "strenuous opposition" by his future wife's family and friends to win her. They all thought Monroe—then 27—"was too old for a 17-year-old girl." Elizabeth Kortright disagreed with them and became Mrs. James Monroe on Feb. 16, 1786.

Some "last-minute interference" prevented Monroe from marrying her on another preferred date—Valentine's Day.

JAMES KNOX POLK, while still a young man "at loose ends," decided to attend a church social on Valentine's Day. That was to prove the beginning of the end of his carefree bachelor day. At the church event he met a "poised but friendly girl who made my heart jump."

Her name was Sarah Childress, and she sent

James Knox Polk—future 11th President of the United States—into so much of a tailspin that he began to recite this verse: "Love at first sight is a spurt of spray, but a spreading sea when it gaineth sway."

Thereafter, Polk would affectionately refer to his wife as "the girl Saint Valentine fetched me."

AS TO THE MOST popular U. S. President on Valentine's Day, no one came close to James Buchanan. But he had this tremendous advantage over the others—he was the only eligible bachelor to enter the White House. He remained single throughout his life.

So, each Valentine's Day, the "merry widows, socialites, career women and others would flood the White House with sentimental cards." Buchanan's term as president turned out to be a stormy and unhappy one. Restless, disenchanted and angry citizens bombarded him at times with critical mail.

But each Valentine's Day bachelor President James Buchanan could look forward to "respite from the storm" with marriage-minded women of America reminding him that he was "cute, eligible and the man of the moment!"

PRESIDENTIAL VALENTINES

'Special' First Ladies

By Frank Hoyten

WHEN it comes to the special woman in his life—one called Lady Bird—President Johnson admits that he has a "sentimental streak as big as a summer Texas moon." On Valentine's Day he always remembers to surprise her with a gift and card—usually one with a humorous rhyme.

Once, while LBJ was still a U.S. senator from Texas, this reporter remembers that he was invited to make a speech in El Paso on Valentine's Day. He delivered it, all right; but kept it chatty, informal, and brief. Then he drew a laugh and hearty applause from his audience by remarking:

"On this special day, I'm sure husbands and lovers can find something more enjoyable to do than listen to a speech, and I'm signing off now—so they can hurry off to join their wives and sweethearts!"

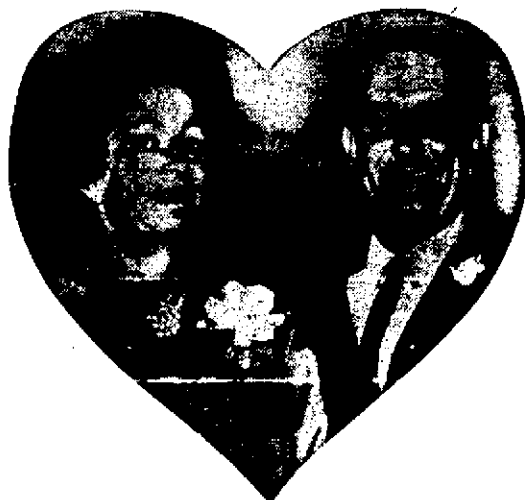

ANOTHER U.S. President named Johnson — Andrew Johnson — attached special importance to Valentine's Day. It was on that date that he had his first date with his future wife, Eliza McCordle. He, then an awkward, fumbling youth of 17, couldn't even read and write!

Fond of Johnson from the beginning, Eliza McCordle proceeded to teach him these essentials. Unsurprisingly, their romance blossomed. Andrew Johnson, the future 17th President of the United States, proposed to his number one sweetheart on Valentine's Day.

She accepted his proposal and they were married on May 5, 1827. Thereafter, even after Andrew Johnson became President (in the wake of Abraham Lincoln's assassination), he always called his wife "My Valentine" during their affectionate moments together.

To American voters and historians James Monroe was the "Good-Will President"—the man who ushered in an era of peace, prosperity, and rare good feeling among Americans of all stations. He also carved a niche for himself in history by proclaiming the famous "Monroe Doctrine."

BUT TO HIS wife, Elizabeth Kortright Monroe, he was a man "with an incurable romantic streak." During their merry courtship James Monroe wooed her ardently, "affording me no opportunity to receive

... THE OBJECT OF HIS AFFECTIONS ...
LBJ: A President Who Remembers Cupid's Day

the attentions of two other interested suitors," as Mrs. Monroe later summed up.

America's future fifth President made sure his number one girl got his message. On Valentine's Day he sent her flowers and candy and two separate cards. One card expressed his sentiments with a humorous flavor and the other one made it plain that he loved her!

The evidence also reveals that James Monroe had to overcome "strenuous opposition" by his future wife's family and friends to win her. They all thought Monroe—then 27—"was too old for a 17-year-old girl." Elizabeth Kortright disagreed with them and became Mrs. James Monroe on Feb. 16, 1788.

Some "last-minute interference" prevented Monroe from marrying her on another preferred date — Valentine's Day.

JAMES KNOX POLK, while still a young man "at loose ends," decided to attend a church social one Valentine's Day. That was to prove the beginning of the end of his carefree bachelor day. At the church event he met a "poised but friendly girl who made my heart jump."

Her name was Sarah Childress, and she sent

James Knox Polk—future 11th President of the United States—into so much of a tailspin that he began to recite this verse: "Love at first sight is a spurt of spray, but a spreading sea when it gaineth sway."

Thereafter, Polk would affectionately refer to his wife as "the girl Saint Valentine fetched me."

AS TO THE MOST popular U. S. President on Valentine's Day, no one came close to James Buchanan. But he had this tremendous advantage over the others—he was the only eligible bachelor to enter the White House. He remained single throughout his life.

So, each Valentine's Day, the "merry widows, socialites, career women and others would flood the White House with sentimental cards." Buchanan's term as president turned out to be a stormy and unhappy one. Restless, disenchanted and angry citizens bombarded him at times with critical mail.

But each Valentine's Day bachelor President James Buchanan could look forward to "respite from the storm" with marriage-minded women of America reminding him that he was "cute, eligible and the man of the moment!"

Suicide Therapy

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Writer

MOST effective treatment for the person who threatens suicide is immediate hospitalization and electroshock, a doctor says.

Conventional drug therapy is too slow to prevent the possibility of suicide, contends Dr. Carl C. Pfeiffer of the New Jersey Bureau of Research in Neurology and Psychiatry.

Dr. Pfeiffer, however, praised a new experimental drug—5-hydroxytryptophane—which is effective "within hours" when injected into a vein of a suicidal patient.

A DRUG called Trancogesic checks pain of dental surgery, according to a study at St. Louis University School of Dentistry.

The compound contains aspirin and a tranquilizer, Trancopal.

Seventy of 100 patients were completely relieved of pain, oral surgeons report. Pain relief usually occurred within 15 minutes. The report is in the Journal of the Missouri Dental Association.

TWO IMPROVED artificial heart valves are reported by surgical researchers.

One, the Cruz-Kaster valve, consists of a disc in a steel cage. The disc lifts slightly to permit blood flow, then shuts down against a steel ring.

The other valve, a hinged leaflet, opens and closes somewhat like butterfly wings.

Both valves are said to be superior to ball-valve replacements, according to a report in Postgraduate Medicine.

A TECHNIQUE called "pulmonary flooding" is beneficial in the treatment of certain lung diseases.

A plastic tube is inserted through the neck muscles, down the windpipe and into the affected lung. Then, for two weeks to three months, a drug is "flooded" into the diseased area.

In this way a higher concentration of the drug can be directed to the diseased area, explains Dr. Jose Ramirez of the Baltimore VA Hospital.

The procedure has been used so far to treat conditions such as lung abscesses; aspergillosis, a fungal disease; and a disorder called alveolar proteinosis.

The report is in Military Medicine.

A RELIABLE sign that anesthesia is becoming too light for a surgical patient in the operating room is formation of shiny beads of mucus on the patient's palate.

The beads appear just before the patient would otherwise regain consciousness, says a researcher in the Medical Journal of Australia. The beads are produced by mucous glands in the palate.

HUNTINGTON'S chorea is an ailment marked by twitching movements, speech difficulties and mental deterioration—and it is one of the few hereditary diseases that first appear in adult life.

A Canadian researcher has found 123 cases of this affliction that can be traced to a single common ancestor who migrated to Montreal in 1645.

PRESSURE, burning and itching in part of the urinary tract can sometimes be caused by food allergy, says Dr. A. Nilzen of Stockholm in the journal Nordisk Medicin.

The doctor describes four women, 22 to 44 years old, who developed a condition known as allergic urethritis as a result of being allergic to foods such as milk, celery, onions or cucumbers.

WHAT MAKES a cat's eyes shine, yellow-green, in the dark?

Riboflavin, a vitamin, say two Boston researchers in Archives of Ophthalmology.

It apparently improves feline vision, the doctors say. The fluorescence from riboflavin brightens the background of the blue-black evening sky to increase contrast between sky and the dark shadow of the predator's moving prey.

The Era of the 'Yellow War'

By Vera Williams

Southland Magazine Book Editor

KNOWN FOR his brilliantly realistic novels, John Hersey shows equal skill as a writer of parables and fables.

His new novel, "WHITE LOTUS" (Knopf, $6.95), the Book of the Month selection for February, falls into this latter category. It is set in a long moving narrative (683 pages) at a period in history after the United States has lost a great "yellow war" and after the victors have transported thousands of Americans to the Orient as slaves.

One such victim is the girl called White Lotus. Born in Arizona and only 15 years old as her story begins, she finds herself growing up as a slave in a strange land. At first she remains docile, keeping and knowing her "place." Later she becomes a leader in the effort of the whites to win a measure of freedom and equality.

In an author's note, Hersey says of his novel: "It is not intended as prophecy; perhaps it should be thought of as an extended dream about the past... a history that might have been, a tale of an old shoe on a new foot."

STUART CLOETE, one of the most widely read authors of our time, best known for his books about the Boer War and South Africa, is the author of a new and unusual novel, "THE THOUSAND AND ONE NIGHTS OF JEAN MACAQUE" (Trident, $4.95). It is the witty and urbane story of a wickedly fascinating Parisian journalist and his amorous and at times philosophical adventures among the peoples and places of Paris. Is it autobiographical? The publisher doesn't know and Cloete doesn't say. However, Cloete, who now lives on a South African farm and divides his time among Africa, England and the U.S., was born in Paris and spent his early years there.

CELESTE Turner Wright, professor at the University of California at Davis, offers in her new book of verse "Etruscan Princess" (Alan Swallow, Denver, $2) pieces that celebrate the joys of visiting many places; Tower of London, Provence, Montana, New Mexico, Spain, Yellowstone, Arizona, Illinois, Canada, and many California places. Because Dr. Wright is a keen observer, and because she is an unaffected traditionalist, her volume should interest many readers whose first love is prose, for this is one book of verse that has a story-book appeal.

Dr. Wright is content to travel the well-known road toward Parnassus; she sings always, and she never travels the byways.

For readers unfamiliar with the poet's works—and her poems have been printed in some of the country's best periodicals—the titles alone should tempt them into purchasing this volume: "Aztec Calendar Stone," "Russian Orchard," "Sea Lion's Grotto," and other equally-inviting locations.

Her poems are fresh and lyrical and ascendant.

THE LARGEST, most handsome and probably the most comprehensive Kennedy book on the market is "THE KENNEDY YEARS" (Viking, $16), a record in words and pictures of the life and times of John Fitzgerald Kennedy. The text was taken from, or adapted from, the pages of The New York Times, assembled and edited by members of the Times staff, directed by Harold Faber. Words and pictures are interwoven to create a chronological narrative.

Covering the span of President Kennedy's public service, hundreds of pictures, a number of them in color, show all facets of his career and the persons most closely identified with his administration, together with personal glimpses of family and friends. Jacques Lowe, who supplied most of the pictures, was official campaign photographer for Kennedy. Many others were supplied by George Tames, Washington photographer for the New York Times.

Among the best: a laughing Kennedy tossing small daughter Caroline high in the air.

A selection of the civil rights speeches of Senator-elect Robert F. Kennedy during his service as attorney general makes up "RIGHTS FOR AMERICANS: THE SPEECHES OF ROBERT F. KENNEDY" (Bobbs-Merrill, $4). In May 1961, Attorney General Kennedy spoke at the University of Georgia Law School

"... on this generation of Americans falls the burden of proving to the world that we really mean it when we say that all men are created free and equal before the law." Between that time and passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, he made 37 speeches on civil rights.

"JACQUELINE KENNEDY: A BIOGRAPHY" by Gordon Langley Hall and Ann Pinchot (Fell, $4.95) presents Mrs. Kennedy as a famous, popular and charming woman—a first lady, wife, mother, hostess, diplomat, good will ambassador, sportswoman, interior decorator, fashion leader, painter, and widow devoted to the memory of her martyred husband.

LAVISHLY praised by the British press, a best seller in England, "QUEEN VICTORIA: BORN TO SUCCEED" by Elizabeth Longford, wife of the Earl of Longford, now is published in America (Harper & Row, $8.50).

The author was given access to the 80-odd volumes of the Queen's Journal and she researched the Wellington and Disraeli papers for new source material.

The young queen is shown tormented by an unhappy childhood, enraptured by a love match, tantalized by an all-too-brief marriage. The effects of the prince consort's death are treated in depth to explain the shock which drove Victoria into her long retirement. A woman of many contrasts, Victoria hid a tempestuous character behind her public facade of sternness, says the author. She could be imperious, yet clinging; alternately harsh and tender; stolidly poised and hysterical; and apparently most calm when situations were at their worst.

VINNIE WILLIAMS has written a fast-moving novel about horses and men, chivalry and honor, adventure and romance, in "I RESIGN YOU, STAL-LION" (Viking, $4.95).

Nineteen

The Era of the 'Yellow War'

By Vera Williams

Southland Magazine Book Editor

KNOWN FOR his brilliantly realistic novels, John Hersey shows equal skill as a writer of parables and fables.

His new novel, "WHITE LOTUS" (Knopf, $6.95), the Book of the Month selection for February, falls into this latter category. It is set in a long moving narrative (683 pages) at a period in history after the United States has lost a great "yellow war" and after the victors have transported thousands of Americans to the Orient as slaves.

One such victim is the girl called White Lotus. Born in Arizona and only 15 years old as her story begins, she finds herself growing up as a slave in a strange land. At first she remains docile, keeping and knowing her "place." Later she becomes a leader in the effort of the whites to win a measure of freedom and equality.

In an author's note, Hersey says of his novel: "It is not intended as prophecy; perhaps it should be thought of as an extended dream about the past... a history that might have been, a tale of an old shoe on a new foot."

STUART CLOETE, one of the most widely read authors of our time, best known for his books about the Boer War and South Africa, is the author of a new and unusual novel, "THE THOUSAND AND ONE NIGHTS OF JEAN MACAQUE" (Trident, $4.95). It is the witty and urbane story of a wickedly fascinating Parisian journalist and his amorous and at times philosophical adventures among the peoples and places of Paris. Is it autobiographical? The publisher doesn't know and Cloete doesn't say. However, Cloete, who now lives on a South African farm and divides his time among Africa, England and the U.S., was born in Paris and spent his early years there.

CELESTE Turner Wright, professor at the University of California at Davis, offers in her new book of verse "Etruscan Princess," (Alan Swallow, Denver, $2) pieces that celebrate the joys of visiting many places; Tower of London, Provence, Montana, New Mexico, Spain, Yellowstone, Arizona, Illinois, Canada, and many California places. Free Swimming Pool Planning Kit

If you are planning a pool this year here is your opportunity to get a free kit showing all phases of pool construction. Also included are tips on pool buying plus complete information on special equipment. Kit is packed with facts and ideas you will want to know before you build.

This free kit was put out by Anthony Pools, world's largest pool-builder.

Its authoritative information was developed by Anthony, based on the building of over 24,000 pools.

In the pictures and text it describes the way modern pools are constructed. The growing use of high-speed automatic equipment for excavation and gunite cementing has kept the price of Anthony pools low while prices in general have gone up. A modern pool is just about the biggest bargain you can get these days.

It is important that you choose a builder large enough to offer you modern speed and economy.

During the first four months of this year Anthony has built more pools in the greater Los Angeles area than the next three largest pool builders combined. This is a dramatic endorsement of Anthony's value, service, and reputation.

Kit also describes such Anthony exclusive accessories as Hida-Sweep automatic pool cleaner — it is never removed from the pool — and Antho-Pure, the automatic pool purifier that holds up to six months' supply of Gardex.

Other sub-assemblies and accessories manufactured in Anthony's 15 acre plant and sold direct to the pool buyer help keep Anthony's price low. Anthony Pools' stock is listed on the American and Pacific Coast Stock exchanges.

For your free copy of this valuable kit, drop in or call Anthony Pools South Gate office at 5971 Firestone Blvd., phone SP 3-2210, TO 1-0331, or our Torrance office, 25412 S. Greshaw Blvd., phone 832-5391 or our Anaheim office at 2050 So. Harbor, phone JE 4-3100.

Green-eyed and blonde Virna Lisi has been acclaimed as the world's most beautiful girl.

MOVIE

Beauty Goddess

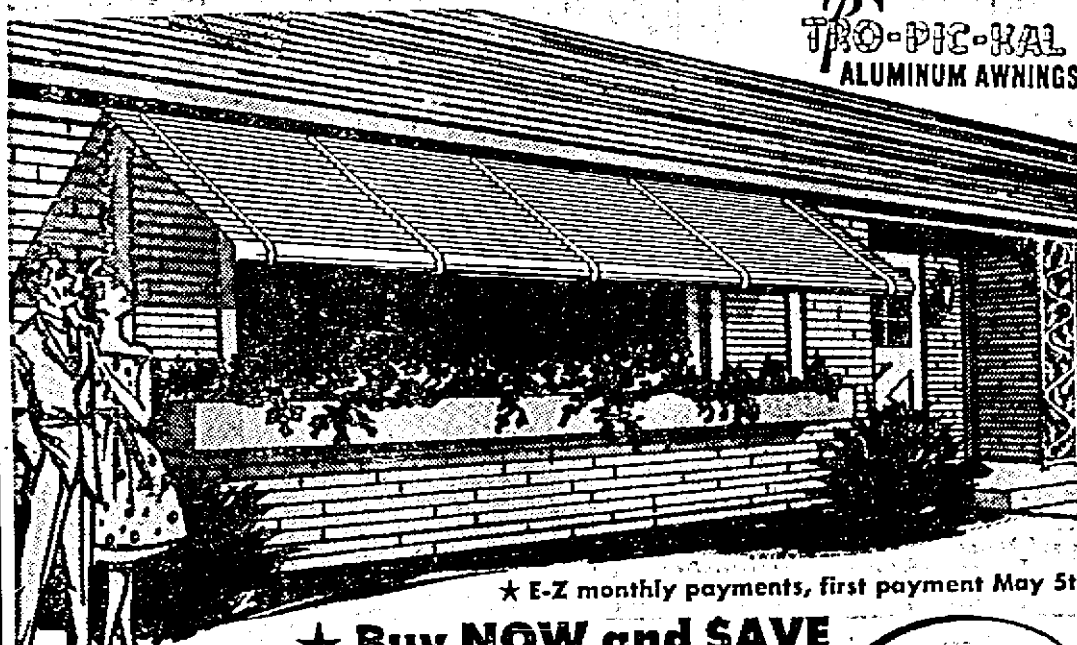

A DAZZLING European beauty will soon make her first appearance on the American motion picture screen. She is Virna Lisi, a green-eyed blonde who has been acclaimed as "the most beautiful girl in the world."

Miss Lisi generated a high pitch of excitement from the first moment she stepped onto the Hollywood set for her first U. S. film, "How to Murder Your Wife," for United Artists release. She is starred as the exotic spouse of Jack Lemmon, an over-imaginative cartoonist.

As can be seen from the accompanying photo, Virna Lisi is a young lady of rare beauty, high fashion, engaging moods and the very epitome of the way a movie star should look... only better.

This daughter of a wealthy Italian family made 24 movies in Europe before flying to Hollywood. The comedy of suspense was written and produced by George Axelrod and directed by Richard Quine.

Colonial Bookstack

Since nearly all parts are straight-cut, this Early American bookstack is an easy project.

By Bill Meyerriecks

WHAT makes the man of the house want to settle down in the workshop? The incentives are that the finished project be useful, handsome and sturdy. Sketchbook's woodworking plan this week meets all these incentives. It's the Colonial Bookstack, plan C-200. And it has some specific reasons of its own why it is a worthwhile project to build.

Along with its appearance as a fine Early American furniture, it provides plenty of storage space in the closed door compartments below and above the book shelves. And if you wish to plan for it, you can set in the TV set at table top level as show in the illustration. If not, the open shelf space of the table top area can hold decorative objects or more books.

The height of the bookstack is about seven feet, its width two feet and depth 18 inches. We suggest in the plan that the project looks wonderful in the soft, warm tones of pine. However, you can decide what wood you prefer.

FOR A NEAT, orderly arrangement to display your books at their best in your home, send 50 cents with name and address for Plan S-200 to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812, and get started on this interesting project.

Shades Do a Comeback

By Steve Ellingson

ROLLER window shades, after a long stay in the attic, are staging a strong comeback. In days gone by, they served two purposes. First to insure privacy and second to keep out the bright sun. Today, homemakers have learned that a striking window treatment performs decorating miracles. It can transform small, drab or badly placed windows into the strong focal point of a room. Colorful shades add brightness and depth to dull windows, and in many instances they hide an unattractive view or even an air-conditioning unit.

Shade murals help the decorator achieve many things besides prettiness. Their charming, even whimsical accents can make a small space interesting and brighten an area, but bring rich vibrant colors into areas that need it.

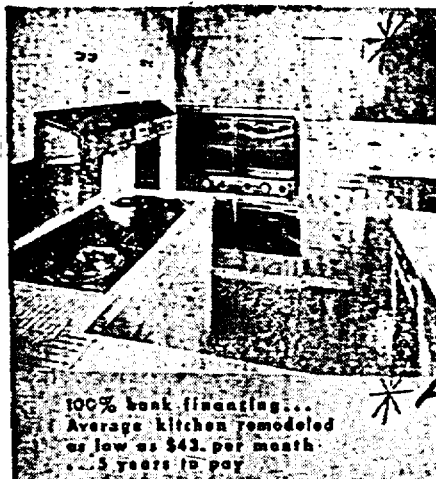

ANYONE, whether artistically gifted or not, can paint murals with professional results by using full-size patterns on the shade or wall, then paint over the tracings.

Patterns tell what colors go where. Different color combinations are given so you can match the mural with the decor of your particular room. Easy to understand directions are included with the patterns. Washable paint, available at all paint dealers, is used.

To obtain three mural (see illustration) patterns assortment No. C-11, send $1 in currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

Shade murals, such as displayed above by Pat Priest of NBC-TV, are decorator's aid.

The Just Right Dog By Eleanor Avery Price

IN TIME for Valentine's Day is today's illustration of a Norwegian Elkhound, Princess Pat of Greenwood, giving away a secret Elkhounds share in common—they are unbeatable when it comes to being loving yet protective of their own as well as their human families. Pat's hind foot expresses her devotion. Pat, shown with this article, belongs to Fred and Alma Foltz, 4567 Linden Ave.

Such a fine breed of dog deserves more attention than it gets. This dog is just right for the whole family, being neither overly small nor overpoweringly large. He is gentle with toddlers, playful with older children. He is a calm pal for mother when she is alone. And, having been the dog the Vikings, sharing their natural love of adventure, he is ideal for dad. His beautiful gray coat is clean and silky soft; his ears stand attentively erect; his dark eyes shine with intelligence; his plume curls tightly but still wags with happiness over just being alive.

LIKE EVERY other puppy, the Norwegian Elkhound puppy deserves the most tender care possible. Youngsters must be taught repeatedly that the new family member must not be handled roughly. Teach children to move slowly around a puppy. Teach them not to grab at him, not to lift him by the legs, not to dangle him in empty space. A puppy fears small hands much more than he does large ones, as kind large hands make him feel secure.

Teach children that a new puppy must get a lot of sleep. Making a puppy tumble and play when he is tired can have a devastating effect. The little fellow will become nervous, cross, so very neurotic he will be ruined for life. Lack of sleep will actually deteriorate his potential intelligence. It may cause death. (Even a grown dog will die shortly if deprived of sleep.)

Of course, the puppy will want to play quite a lot, and he should. The happiness and mischievousness of his play is a window through which you can peer to determine his future ability to learn.

This is adult fare, with an amusing nonintroduction by John Steinbeck and clever sketches by Roy McKie. Ted Patrick was editor of Holiday magazine for 18 years.

I KEEP goldfish in the bathtub when I take a vacation, but I've never kept a loon in the tub. Nor a muskrat, duck, fullfrog, nor a diamond back terrapin. After reading Ronald Rood's "The Loon in My Bathtub" (Stephen Green Press, $4.50), I conclude I've been missing out on something. And I must be missing out as regards my refrigerator and electric fry pan, for I've never hibernated a frog in a refrigerator nor hatched duck eggs in the fry pan.

The Just Right Dog By Eleanor Avery Price

IN TIME for Valentine's Day is today's illustration of a Norwegian Elkhound, Princess Pat of Greenwood, giving away a secret Elkhounds share in common—they are unbeatable when it comes to being loving yet protective of their own as well as their human families. Pat's hind foot expresses her devotion. Pat, shown with this article, belongs to Fred and Alma Foltz, 4567 Linden Ave.

Such a fine breed of dog deserves more attention than it gets. This dog is just right for the whole family, being neither overly small nor overpoweringly large. He is gentle with toddlers, playful with older children. He is a calm pal for mother when she is alone. And, having been the dog the Vikings, sharing their natural love of adventure, he is ideal for dad. His beautiful gray coat is clean and silky soft; his ears stand attentively erect; his dark eyes shine with intelligence; his plume curls tightly but still wags with happiness over just being alive.

LIKE EVERY other puppy, the Norwegian Elkhound puppy deserves the most tender care possible. Youngsters must be taught repeatedly that the new family member must not be handled roughly. Teach children to move slowly around a puppy. Teach them not to grab at him, not to lift him by the legs, not to dangle him in empty space. A puppy fears small hands much more than he does large ones, as kind large hands make him feel secure.

Teach children that a new puppy must get a lot of sleep. Making a puppy tumble and play when he is tired can have a devastating effect. The little fellow will become nervous, cross, so very neurotic he will be ruined for life. Lack of sleep will actually deteriorate his potential intelligence. It may cause death. (Even a grown dog will die shortly if deprived of sleep.)

Of course, the puppy will want to play quite a lot, and he should. The happiness and mischievousness of his play is a window through which you can peer to determine his future ability to learn.

IN HIS NEW book, "The Thinking Man's Dog" (Random House, $4.95), author Ted Patrick has let the blows fall where they may while delighting most of his readers. I say, most, for this is a piercing book and knocks the pegs out from

What Your Name Means

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812, for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you give genealogy and shield description on WHITNEY?

—G. W., Los Angeles.
G. W.: WHITNEY began as the 6th century English locality phrase "Hwitan-eye," describing "blond man's river-island." The town of Whitney is on the River Wye in Herefordshire, England. Eustachius Whitney of Hereford, a remote progenitor, lived in 1056. The Whitney coat-of-arms has a black and gold checkered cross on a blue shield. Among American ancestors, John Whitney and his wife Elinor lived at Watertown, Mass., as early as 1635.

DEAR MISS RULE: What is the background of GOTT.

—J. G., S. M., Long Beach.
J. G., S. M.: GOTT in Germany deciphered in the Middle Ages as "divinely inspired one." This cognomen, applied to a devoutly religious forefather, has been handed down for 800 years. The Gotte shield from Bavaria is gold, crossed by four black horizontal stripes; in the center is a small red shield decorated with two crossed swords between four heraldic birds.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we have data on McPHEETERS.—F. W., A. M., Long Beach.

F. W., A. M.: McPHEETERS originated as the Gaelic Irish "Mac-Pheadruis" or "son of Petrus," the Latin form of Peter meaning rock. The MacPheadruis-MacPheeters shield is blue, engraved with a silver buck head bearing gold antlers.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please analyze CHUR.—I. C., Long Beach.

I. C.: CHUR was adopted by this family's progenitor from his native city of Chur or Coire in Switzerland. The Latin-Roman source of Chur and Coire was "Curia" meaning "place of authority and power." The Chur coat-of-arms has a black rampant mountain goat on a silver shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze SOLIS. — L. S., Lakewood.

L. S.: SOLIS, an early Spanish name, means sun. In 13th century Spain this name described "From the sunny place," the home location of this lineage. The Solis coat-of-arms from Asturias, Spain has a red sun in the center of a gold background. The shield has a gold border decorated with eight red wolf heads.

was a Yorkshire land owner in the late 1300's.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you explain PADILLA?—S. P., Long Beach.

S. P.: PADILLA had its beginning in 14th century Spain and was initiated as a village nickname for the ancestor. Padilla translates as "small frying-pan," referring to a forefather who was an outstanding cook. The Padilla coat-of-arms from Castile, Spain, has three long-handled frying pans placed between nine silver crescents on a blue shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain FLORKE?

—D. F., Anaheim.
D. F.: FLORKE, German in background, was a nickname endowed on the progenitor from his work. Florke deciphered as "little flower," alluding to the occupation of a raiser of beautiful blooms for village markets. No shield is available for Florke.

15 YEARS EXPERIENCE

By DON KIRKLAND

MULEGE, Baja California — In this remote Mexican pueblo, where even the supply trucks take five dusty days to wind their way south from Ensenada, the cantina owner says "hello, amigo," and the children ask, "shine, meester?"

It is a tropical paradise, as incongruous as the big DC3s that thunder in across the lush green hilltops and bring new faces and American dollars to this outpost of Old Mexico.

And yet, it remains unspoiled.

Here, the American influence grows by the day, but the palms still rustle and life goes on much as it has since the days of Pancho Villa. The burros carry the branches of the date palms, bunched to their sides and destined to become the rooftop on a tiny, mud-brick home. The children carry water from subterranean wells, using the same shoulder yoke their great-grandfathers may have used.

LOCATED some 700 miles from the California-Mexico border, Mulege lies just slightly below mid-point in the deceptive expansive Baja California region. It sits on the eastern coast, fanned by the warm winds that breeze across the Gulf of California. Inaccessible by modern highways, Mulege until recently was a haven only for the few hardy Americans who dared challenge the chuck-holed roads and almost interminable distances between gasoline stops.

Now, former Redondo Beach mayor LeRoy Center and a handful of others have developed what they hope will be 1965's answer to Puerto Vallarta—the tropic hideaway of Mexico's mainland.

With the help of Mexican workers, Center recently completed his Serenidad Hotel, an adobe inn adjoined by palm-thatched cabanas, just south of Mulege. There tourists may bathe in the sun, fish in the ocean, roam contentedly through the town or simply relax in an escape that is almost completely without contact with the world outside.

THE WORK that went into Serenidad left Center "tired but satisfied," he says. And that, only temporarily. He plans to expand, to add more cabanas, to improve the plumbing—to give Serenidad "some of the refinements it needs for full comfort."

But the wheels turn slowly. "It took us two years to get permission to move a power pole at the end of the runway," says Center. "That's just an example."

Although construction moved ahead without undue delay, the shipment of simple but often crucial supplies occasionally brought the project to a sudden halt.

Center, who was Redondo Beach mayor from 1957 to 1961, commutes on weekends by plane from his law practice in Redondo. A runway, improved now so that even the big Aeronaves Airlines DC3's can make it, joins the hotel.

WITHIN walking distance are the territorial prison, occupied by felony prisoners who live their sentences on a day-to-day honor system, and the Mission de Santa Rosalia, built by the Jesuit padres in 1704 and only now being restored, even though masses have been spoken there consecutively for almost 300 years.

In a sense, Mulege is a virtually undiscovered for paradox: a spot so desirable centuries.

15 YEARS EXPERIENCE

By DON KIRKLAND

MULEGE, Baja California — In this remote Mexican pueblo, where even the supply trucks take five dusty days to wind their way south from Ensenada, the cantina owner says "hello, amigo," and the children ask, "shlne, meester?"

It is a tropical paradise, as incongruous as the big DC3s that thunder in across the lush green hilltops and bring new faces and American dollars to this outpost of Old Mexico.

And yet, it remains unspoiled.

Here, the American influence grows by the day, but the palms still rustle and life goes on much as it has since the days of Pancho Villa. The burros carry the branches of the date palms, bundled to their sides and destined to become the rooftop on a tiny, mud-brick home. The children carry water from subterranean wells, using the same shoulder yoke their great-grandfathers may have used.

LOCATED some 700 miles from the California-Mexico border, Mulege lies just slightly below mid-point in the deceptive expansive Baja California region. It sits on the eastern coast, fanned by the warm winds that breeze across the Gulf of California. Inaccessible by modern highways, Mulege until recently was a haven only for the few hardy Americans who dared challenge the chuck-holed roads and almost interminable distances between gasoline stops.

Now, former Redondo Beach mayor LeRoy Center and a handful of others have developed what they hope will be 1965's answer to Puerto Vallarta—the tropic hideaway of Mexico's mainland.

With the help of Mexican workers, Center recently completed his Serenidad Hotel, an adobe inn adjoined by palm-thatched cabanas, just south of Mulege. There tourists may bathe in the sun, fish in the ocean, roam contentedly through the town or simply relax in an escape that is almost completely without contact with the world outside.

THE WORK that went into Serenidad left Center "tired but satisfied," he says. And that, only temporarily. He plans to expand, to add more cabanas, to improve the plumbing—to give Serenidad "some of the refinements it needs for full comfort."

But the wheels turn slowly. "It took us two years to get permission to move a power pole at the end of the runway," says Center. "That's just an example."

Although construction moved ahead without undue delay, the shipment of simple but often crucial supplies occasionally brought the project to a sudden halt.

Center, who was Redondo Beach mayor from 1957 to 1961, commutes on weekends by plane from his law practice in Redondo. A runway, improved now so that even the big Aeronaves Airlines DC3's can make it, joins the hotel.

WITHIN walking distance are the territorial prison, occupied by felony prisoners who live their sentences on a day-to-day honor system, and the Mission de Santa Rosalia, built by the Jesuit padres in 1704 and only now being restored, even though masses have been spoken there consecutively for almost 300 years.

Mulege, Mexican village in a long bypassed area, is now seeing development as a resort.

In a sense, Mulege is a paradox: a spot so desirable it rivals the vacation resorts of the world, and yet one which has somehow gone virtually undiscovered for centuries.

Cinerarias Brighten Shade

By Joe Littlefield

Cinerarias add touches of color where planted in shady garden areas. Give them loamy soil.

PLANT cinerarias in the shady garden area, in loamy prepared soil. Feed them two or three times during active growth, protect them from possible late frosts, and aphids. Come blooming time, they'll make the drab looking shade garden light up as though colored lighting had been installed there!

These foot high and taller plants have single, daisy-like blossoms that provide some of the loveliest shades of colors imaginable, in tones of pink, purple, rose, lavender, white, salmon, carmine, and bi-colors. They may be listed as perennials, but are annuals in Southern California.

Grow some of them in pots, place them in shady patio areas, on a porch shaded from sun, or keep them indoors temporarily for their blooms.

Only a few undetected aphids on under-side of the gray, fuzzy foliage can cause the leaves to wilt as though they lack water. In this case, spray with an insecticide.

SWEET PEA blossoms should be cut with some foliage attached to the stems. This helps to avoid jamming the stems close together, causing that "rank amateur arrangement" look. The leaves also add a natural appearance to the bouquet.

When you cut sweet pea blooms in this manner, you help to force the vines to send out secondary growth which also develop more flowers later. If you don't have any sweet peas, buy the young plants, and grow some for later blossoms.

Fertilize them every three weeks with a 5-7-5 plant food formula for continuing new growth and later new blooms.

If some of the plants have many yellow leaves, chances are you are watering the plants too often. This means some may rot off. Additionally, soil kept continually damp may invite mildew attacks. Water them only when soil really dries, then soak soil well.

Troubles We Don't Talk About

What Troubles? Complaints so personal that few people talk about them—burning, irritation and itching in the sensitive perianal (rectal and genital) area. What Causes Them? Many things, but especially the lack of hygiene. Doctors say that lack of proper cleanliness often prevents the condition from clearing up. This is true because the perianal area is repeatedly contaminated with potentially harmful bacteria and fungi.

What Do Specialists Recommend? Thorough and regular cleansing, particularly after each bowel movement. This halts the vicious "itch-scratch" cycle. In many cases, this alone will solve the problem of burning, itching, and irritation.

Why Not Plain, Ordinary Soap? Because soap washes away natural skin oils. Frequent and repeated use of soap can cause dryness and irritation, resulting in itching.

What Should Be Used? A new, foamy aerosol medication called ANNUL. It is a gentle but thorough cleanser to be used on toilet tissue or cotton. ANNUL is an antibacterial, antifungal cleanser—soothing, emollient and protective. Soothes burning and irritation. Helps to protect against secondary infection of raw, irritated skin.

The Best Way to stop itching is never let it get started. Begin regular use of ANNUL this week. Or if you suffer now, begin relief in seconds with ANNUL. It relieves itch-irritation without local pain killers that can mask symptoms and postpone sound medical treatment. If your discomfort persists by all means see your doctor. Ask your doctor whether it isn't wise to use ANNUL with other medications.

Effective Deodorant: Women especially, can be troubled with embarrassing odor. ANNUL is an effective deodorant foam because of its superior cleansing and antibacterial actions. Makes you feel fresher. Secure. Completely groomed.

Most people, after they have tried ANNUL, never use toilet tissue without it. And so inexpensive. You'll find ANNUL in your pharmacy.

He had just visited Los Angeles, he wrote, and had stayed at the fashionable Bella Union Hotel for $3.50 a day.

"I walked around in the afternoon and took a look at the entire city," he recounted.

Three-D Roses

Wonderful new advances in scientific rose breeding have produced an extraordinary "3-dimensional" rose; a rose that can actually be grown as a bush, climber, pillar, rambler or fence cover. Called Joseph's Coat because of its strikingly brilliant multicolored tones of red, orange, yellow and gold, this new 3-D rose opens up a host of new planting opportunities to the home gardener.

A plant of Joseph's Coat grown as a bush this year could very well be used as a climber next year.

Arnold's FARM HOUSE
FAMILY RESTAURANT
BUENA PARK
CLOSED MONDAYS
6601 Manchester, Buena Park

SOMETIMES when I least expect it, the aroma of roast beef or baked ham suddenly wafts me backward in time and I remember similar fragrances in the snug kitchen of my grandfather's dairy farm.

His farm was located on a velvety green meadow near Butte, Mont., and as a boy I visited it often. I especially remember Sunday dinners there when the big table was heaped high with steaming meats, potatoes, vegetables and fresh hot rolls that made rural living exciting and pleasurable.

These days when I have a hankering for hearty fare like that I drive into Orange County and visit a restaurant which has an atmosphere reminiscent of America's farms of yesteryear. Arnold's Farm House, 6601 Manchester Blvd., adjacent to the Santa Ana Freeway in Buena Park, is a huge establishment with the architecture and decor of a large frame home. From its stained glass windows, sweeping eaves and brass lamps to its long counters laden with good things to eat, Arnold's is a restaurant dedicated to hospitality and friendliness.

Owner Miles Arnold and manager Ray Johnson offer tremendous varieties of top quality foods that are always freshly prepared and modestly priced. The serve-yourself dinners include such entrees as roast leg of lamb with mint jelly, $2.15; Arnold's famed round of roast beef, $2.15; roast turkey with all the trimmings, $2.25, and baked breast of chicken Hawaiian with shaved almonds, coconut and pineapple sauce, $2.25. Also available are sea food and Virginia baked ham dinners, with all prices including potato, vegetable, beverage, roll and butter. Open daily and Sunday from 11:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m., the Farm House is closed Mondays.

SUNDAY TREAT—Bacon and beef broiled together present an affinity of flavors which no one can resist. That's why this combination has become one of the most popular entrees at the beautiful Choral Room, 4130 Paramount Blvd. near Carson Street. The bacon is wrapped around choice, tender filet mignons which are available in two sizes, large ($3.95) and the petite ($3.50) for smaller appetites. The prices include selected relishes, huge salads, steaming baked potatoes with cheese sauce, light and dark sourdough breads and beverage. Bill Cheateley, who recently returned as manager, also features such culinary treasures as prime rib au jus with creamy horseradish sauce ($3.50) and Monterey abalone sauteed in butter ($2.50).

SPEED QUEEN.

AUTOMATIC WASHERS

Most washers do a fairly good job of washing. The big difference is dependability: repair bills . . . service calls . . . years of service.

Speed Queen automatics have special features which assure greater dependability—like the fluid drive, extra ball bearings, larger solenoids, stainless steel tub, etc.

That's why there are so many Speed Queens used in coin laundries where the going is really rough! You can have the same dependability in your home.

See the new models now on demonstration. They're the most dependable washers ever built.

Pan and Fan Mail

I was able to watch only a few shots of the Churchill funeral and certainly would like to see some station or network schedule the entire proceedings at a good viewing time.

Bill L. Shelton, Los Alamitos

I think it's a lost cause, Bill.

Could you tell me when the fabulous Beatles will be on TV again? It's torture waiting to see them.

Kathy Long, Long Beach

The torture season should end sometime early in fall when Ed Sullivan will bring back the fabulous.

This year's Arthritis Telethon on KTLA (channel 5) was the best event of its kind we have ever seen in Southern California. It was a grand success from every viewpoint.

J. Paul Gleason, Long Beach

All 19 hours of it?

I was so glad you noted The Secret Storm was starting its 12th year.

I certainly enjoy good stories and actors who make you forget that it is only acting.

I think The Secret Storm, Edge of Night and As the World Turns are the best.

I have friends call me if they have missed the programs and ask what the stories were about.

I recently watched "Hollywood A-Go-Go" and I saw a mopped-top singer called Joey Paige.

I have seen him perform before and I think he is the most fabulous singing entertainer ever.

Could you possibly tell me whether "Shindig" or "Hullabaloo" is planning to have him on their show?

Janet Cox, Bellflower

Can't tell you definitely, but this is a good season for mop-tops. His chances are excellent.

Happy days are here again—Paul Coats has shaved off that monstrous Charley Chaplain paint brush.

Mrs. A. Ranel, Long Beach

Had to. Needed it to finish trimming his house.

AT YOUR ZENITH DEALERS NOW!

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)

The law, in fact and fiction, has an obvious extraordinary fascination for television. One may talk of the many situation comedies, but they are quickly forgotten. Whereas series about the law, even those that fail in the ratings, seem to stir uncommon interest, and are remembered.

Several notable failures come to mind. There was "Sam Benedict," with Edmond O'Brien as Jake Ehrlich, and though it wasn't very good and didn't last long, it had its moments and charmed some watchers to more than the usual degree. And there was "The Law and Mr. Jones," with James Whitmore also as an attorney and a strong write-in campaign by viewers may have had something to do with its brief reinstatement some time after it was originally canceled.

THE SUCCESSES, of course, are legion. There is "The Defenders," which has had a healthy run though it may not return next season. There is "Perry Mason." And though the fleeing hero of "The Fugitive" is not an attorney, his relationship with the law as an unjustly convicted man who has lost his faith in justice undoubtedly has touched a responsive modern chord in view-

"Gallery's People," of course, deals with the law through a state legislator. And though there are cancellations of series, new ones always seem at the ready. Thus we already have the freshman entry, "For the People," about a prosecutor. Next season we will also undoubtedly have Peter Falk as an earthy lawyer, and a series about the Federal Bureau of Investigation. "Naked City" and "The Untouchables" each presented different views of the law.

NEWSPAPERS and magazines seem to be giving more thought and interpretive coverage of the law. Increasing violence in recent years, and obvious concern over personal danger, has made the law a more immediate matter to many. The assassination of President Kennedy was the most horrible sort of crime one could imagine, and the television public was in on the legal steps that followed. In addition, the unending desegregation movement has made the public aware of technicalities of the law in a very human sense.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)

Several notable failures come to mind. There was "Sam Benedict," with Edmond O'Brien as Jake Ehrlich, and though it wasn't very good and didn't last long, it had its moments and charmed some watchers to more than the usual degree. And there was "The Law and Mr. Jones," with James Whitmore also as an attorney, and a strong write-in campaign by viewers may have had something to do with its brief reinstatement some time after it was originally canceled.

“Slavery’s People,” of course, deals with the law through a state legislator. And though there are cancellations of series, new ones always seem to be ready. Thus we already have the freshman entry, “For the People,” about a prosecutor. Next season we will also undoubtedly have Peter Falk as an earthy lawyer, and a series about the Federal Bureau of Investigation. “Naked City” and “The Untouchables” each presented different views of the law.

Travel Series Premier Monday

Two traveling lecturers—who lecture on travel—stop long enough to introduce a weekly series starting 10 p.m. Monday on channel 9.

Naturally, the program is called "Travel '65."

Shelley Stars

Shelley Fabares, niece of star Nanette Fabray, is now grown up from her years as a juvenile on "The Donna Reed Show" and has been signed for the leading role in the projected MGM-TV series, "Meet Me in St. Louis."

Behind the hour-long color productions—and in them as well—are Curt Nagel and Bill Moore. The pair, who have made travel films in 85 countries, have worked as a team for more than 20 years. They have shown their films and lectured throughout most of the United States' major cities.

The opening program on Mexico will feature night scenes of an Indian ritual dance. The torch-bearing dancers dizzily whirl, one time for each week of the year.

What makes the night dance unusual is that it is a ceremonial rite for sun worship.

Reliability

for 56 years

ART NELSON
Gen. Sales Mgr.

In business as in life, it is never easy to maintain the policies of reliability and integrity. However, after more than half of a century, we at Glenn E. Thomas Dodge can say such principles are gratifying. We are the oldest automotive dealership in Long Beach and one of the oldest in the nation. Reliability and integrity reflect themselves in success... and they will continue to be the guiding principles of this agency.

RELIABILITY IN PRODUCT

Dodge has been making dependable cars and trucks for over a half a hundred years. How dependable can one be? And we feel the '65 line of Dodges are the most reliable of all. Dodge feels this way too, enough so to continue the most unprecedented warranty in automotive history. Every Dodge carries a 5-year or 50,000-mile warranty (ask for details).

RELIABILITY IN SERVICE

After-sale service is one of the most important aspects of our business. Although we prepare our new Dodges very carefully before delivery, we are anxious to continue to keep our customers completely satisfied. Our service is reliable, complete, thorough and as convenient as you'll find anywhere. Few dealers place the same importance on customer satisfaction as Glenn E. Thomas.

RELIABILITY IN PRICE

There is always confusion in the minds of new car buyers about price. The simple fact is no one can sell you a '65 Dodge for less money than Glenn E. Thomas. No one can arrange lower, more convenient terms and certainly no other dealer can make possible a lower rate of interest. At Glenn E. Thomas 56 years of reliability and integrity are your best assurance of a reputable automotive agency. Did you know you can buy the

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

THE DAY MAY COME when Barbara Parkins is as big a star as Bette Davis. That's Barbara's ambition. And if that day comes, Barbara may want "my private life more than scrambling for the public's attention."

But right now, Barbara, who is ABC-TV's "Peyton Place's" Betty Anderson, couldn't feel more elated when she is recognized on the street by a fan.

"It's unbelievable," she said. "So many other girls look like me."

It is for more of the "unbelievable" that she wants so very much to become a star.

"It's recognition," she said.

"It's people coming up to me and commenting on my acting. This is what I find so exciting."

STARDOM ALSO REPRESENTS "real achievement" for 19-year-old Barbara.

"When you get there—become a star—you can look back at starting from practically nothing and really making it."

In one sense, she feels she has it made already.

"There is no girl today with whom I would trade places," she said. "And I'm sure there are many girls who would like to trade places with me."

Sometimes she feels like she has traded places with her screen image, Betty Anderson.

"As I watch her on the screen," said Barbara, "she becomes very much apart from me."

"I have the feeling I can't communicate with her. It's very hard to explain."

WHAT ISN'T HARD to explain is that the show's producers and the public are very pleased with the way vivacious Barbara communicates her screen image of Betty to them.

Barbara hopes she's communicating her desire to be a star.

As for dating, fine when she has the time.

"I thing boys are like bridge mix," she said. "It's nice to have a variety."

As for settling down with one of the variety.

"No thanks," said Barbara. "Not just now. Maybe I'll feel completely different in five years, but I hope not."

"If anyone is truly interested in doing something—and that's the way I feel about acting—there's never a time to stop."

"Once you stop, you're an unhappy person."

If being a star is going to make her unhappy, Barbara wants to find it out for herself.

Mr. Stereo ... Says WHY TAPE?

YOU MAY HAVE WONDERED WHY THE HUGE SURGE IN THE USE OF TAPE RECORDERS IN THE LAST FEW YEARS. THE ANSWER IS SIMPLE. TAPE PRODUCES BETTER QUALITY SOUND THAN YOU CAN GET FROM PHONOGRAPH RECORDS, AND TAPE DOES NOT WEAR OUT FROM BEING PLAYED.

Two important developments have taken place recently. First—the manufacturers of the better stereo tape recorders use new narrow-gap recording heads—and that produces fantastic sound, even at slow tape speeds. And secondly—whereas there once were only a limited number of albums available on tape—now there are thousands of selections on pre-recorded stereo tapes.

WESTERN stocks all major lines of tape recorders—Amper, Sony, Wollensak, Roberts, Concord, etc.—And they carry the largest selection of pre-recorded tapes in the Long Beach area. If you hear out this column and bring it with you, WESTERN will let you see the entire Stereo Parade tapes for only $1.49 each. WESTERN TAPES AND RECORDERS ARE ALWAYS AT LOW DISCOUNT PRICES.

SPECIAL

MISS AFTER-DARK—Contestants sponsored by L.A. restaurants and night-clubs vie in both evening gowns and bikinis in the first annual event of its kind. KRLA's Charlie O'Donnell emcees at the Moulin Rouge, at 8 p.m., ch. 13.

BING CROSBY—Bing's real and reel wives appear together during the 9:30 p.m. segment, ch. 7, as Kathryn Grant Crosby plays an avant garde interior decorator hired to team with a PR man (Pat Harrington Jr., seen earlier tonight on "UNCLE") to create a new public "image" for Bing. George Gobel is featured as the manager of a motel to which Collins retreats. (Crosby's series image, with upcoming guests including Phil Harris, Joan Fontaine, Dennis Day and Frankie Avalon, appears already doomed to the race, but ABC will continue using Bing on a host basis, including frequent "Hollywood Palace" stints, and next month's 90-min. "Grand Award of Sports" special.)

ESSAY ON BRIDGES—Harry Reasoner crosses his bridges as he comes to them, from Rome to Bayonne, in describing a theory that bridges are the closest man has come to attaining a state of perfection in which function, beauty, truth and everlastingness converge. Arch, beam, cantilever and suspension bridges are viewed at 10 p.m., ch. 2.

DINAH SHORE—Songs in Swahili, Hindi and Tagalog—from four countries on four continents—and a new song of dedication will be the musical menu served when Dinah joins with Harry Belafonte in a musical salute to the Peace Corps at 10 p.m., ch. 7. Representing the Corps itself will be director Sargent Shriver and a group of volunteers en route to Kenya and Uganda. (Dinah's fourth, and next, special, with Bob Hope and Henry Mancini, showcases L.A.'s new Music Center of March 17.)

TRAVEL '65—Premiere. Travel team-lecturers Curt Nagel and Bill Moore take viewers, and their cameras, on an hour-long tour of "Fabulous Mexico City," filmed in sequence, from a shooting script. Entire 10 p.m., Ch. 9 series is in color, including narration, inserts, film.

2 ON THE AISLE—Premiere. Prof. John Crown, head of USC's piano department, hosts a monthly look at the Southland's flourishing musical culture. Premiere program of varied musical works and performers, at 10:30 p.m., ch. 2, features piano, violin, voice, bass drum students from the Trojan campus in works from Schubert to jazz.

SPECIAL

THE HOLLOW CROWN—

A bold experiment in 1960 when it was first presented at Stratford-on-Avon becomes an equally bold experiment at 10 p.m., ch. 2, when the first part of the widely-praised production is aired as the premiere offering in a group of specials called "Michelob Hour of Excellence." Presented in modern dress, and without a change of scenery or costume, hour covers a panorama of English history from the Saxon kings to Charles I, told in poetry, speeches, letters and other writings as the monarchs saw themselves and as others saw them. Starred are Dorothy Tutin, Max Adrian, Paul Hardwick and John Barton of England's famed Royal Shakespeare Co.

TELEPHONE HOUR—

Singing-dancing comedian Ray Bolger is performing host to an hour built around the masks of comedy and tragedy in the musical theatre. Taking part at 10 p.m., in color, ch. 4, are Carol Lawrence and Harve Presnell with songs from Broadway and Hollywood musicals. Met stars Regine Crespin and Sando Konya with excerpts from "Tosca," and pianist Lorin Hollander with the first movement of Rachmaninoff's "Piano Concerto No. 2."

Weekends Next for Educational TV Station

Two major developments are planned by KCET, channel 28, the ultra-high-frequency educational station.

The first, in answer to increased viewer demand, is to have programs during the weekend.

James Robertson, vice president and general manager of the station, feels this may be partially accomplished by late spring. At that time, he hopes the channel will be on the air at least one day every weekend.

THE SECOND development is a continuous one. It involves incorporating more programming produced in Southern California rather than by the National Education Television network.

The station's current locally produced offerings, "One of a Kind" and "Speculation" are examples, have been well received. New plans call for dramatic and musical programming.

In addition, KCET will add two more hours of school programming in the fall. The Long Beach Unified School System, which has been using instructional television for the first time this year, plans to extend its use next fall.

AS FAR AS general response to channel 28's overall programming, Robertson describes it as "far greater than we had anticipated."

He notes that there are now 500,000 homes — a potential audience of two million people — equipped to receive ultra-high-frequency television transmission.

When the station originally went on the air last September, there were half that many.

- DR. KILDARE — It's a busy and varied week for Oscar-winning ("Sweet Bird of Youth") Ed Begley. Last night he was the much-put-upon judge in "The Dick Van Dyke" show, his first TV comedy role. Later this month he's a political party fund-raiser for "Slattery's People." And tonight Begley's in two hour-long dramas overlapping each other—a "Dick Powell" reprise of a narcotics racket kingpin, and with Kildare, as a 75-year-old sailor, proficient in yoga, who tries to stop his heart so he'll die before his insurance lapses, with the money needed to restore an old sailing ship. Joanna Barnes and Mabel Albertson are featured, at 8:30 p.m., ch. 4, as a ruse by Kildare and an ingenious plan of Gillespie's make the old salt realize he may still be of use in the modern world. Excerpted Reviews on Recent TV Shows Program: "Golden Globe Awards," aired last Monday on channel 4.

Andy Williams and NBC played host last night to Hollywood's Foreign Press Assn. for the award of their "Golden Globes," and a very dressy, dull affair it was.

The presentations, made before a star-studded audience at the Cocoanut Grove, slavishly followed the slow-moving form of the film capital's big annual awards bash, the Oscar ceremonies, complete with the envelope-opening and the long, grateful "I want to thank that great team, my producer, my director..."

Actresses, present because they were nominees for awards, were beautifully and formally attired, but the sartorial shocker of the evening was Carroll Baker. Accepting for a missing winner—Peter O'Toole, I think it was—she dashed on stage in something that looked like sequin-covered pajamas. That even upset the imperturbable Andy.

Anyway, it gave Andy a rather easy evening and the sponsoring organization, a bit of free publicity.

—Critic Cynthia Lowry of AP
Foreign Press Assn.'s Golden Globe awards emerged last night as a bright tv spectacle and a challenge in terms of newshowmanship to its domestic counterpart, the Oscarcast. Given unto the custody of pros who staged the Andy Williams Show, it shone with the polish of skilled applicators and skimmed through the Williams hour without a blemish. Long waits, longer walks and endless speeches were reduced to an absolute minimum, helped out by Dimitri Tiomkin's surprising, "I'm speechless."

—Critic Helm of "Variety"

Program: Varied Sunday series.

One of the few worthwhile periods of television-watching each week occurs early on Sunday evenings, but the networks are making the shows in these hours as inaccessible as a girl doing the watusi.

There ought to be a law, for between the hours of 6 and 7:30 p.m. on Sundays, the discriminating viewer must choose from among a group of competing shows that includes "Meet the Press," "The Twentieth Century," "Profiles in Courage" and "World War I."

Another annoying aspect of the scheduling is that CBS-TV's "Lassie," which opposes the last half-hour of "Profiles in Courage," finds itself in competition with a worthy historical series that is aimed in great part at the same children's audience for educational use. Is it any wonder that some top public affairs people at the networks develop the complexes of second-class citizens?

—Critic Rick Du Brow of UPI

Program: "Aqua Varieties," aired last Sunday on channel 7.

What may be the television season's greatest waste of talent seems to be the special ABC variety shows starring Gordon and Sheila MacRae.

Last night, in their second special of the season, they were busily gurgling inanities about a routine water show filmed at a Miami pool.

Amid the stimulating numbers, Mrs. MacRae was called upon only to exhibit joyous anticipation. At one point, they had Gordon afloat on a raft in a windy pool trying to synchronize his lips with a song obviously sung under happier conditions.

It was a rather dreary hour.

None of this nonsense about talent or personality for the "Miss After Dark" contest.

It's strictly on-the-surface beauty, the kind that photographs. That will be demonstrated when the contest, as a one-hour special, is aired 8 p.m. Monday, channel 13.

The contestants, in evening gowns and bathing suits, will be judged on the basis of looks period.

Fifteen semi-finalists, each representing a Southland night-club, hotel or restaurant, will participate.

Assemblyman Deukmejian Presents 'Slattery's People' Resolution

SACRAMENTO (UPD) — "Slattery's People," the weekly television program which dramatizes a mythical state legislature, has been commended in a resolution by Long Beach Republican Assemblyman George Deukmejian.

"This series of dramas has enabled the people of our country and foreign countries to gain a greater understanding of our democratic form of government," the resolution continued.

The program was cited for "outstanding achievement and contribution to the people of this state and our country."

The sets for "Slattery's People" were modeled after the California legislature.

The resolution (HR115) noted the show's star, Richard Crenna, portrayed a minority leader who was "a crusader at heart, a fighter by inclination, and an incorruptible lawmaker."

People Are Funny... About Baldness IF WE COULD ONLY MAKE THEM BELIEVE US

It would take the entire police force to keep the people of this area from battering down our doors! Yes, people are funny. They'll willingly believe that planes can travel faster than sound, that the atom can be split, that moon trips are around the corner... even though they have never seen these wonders with their own eyes. But mention something having to do with health and appearance and at once you are up against a wall of superstition and misconception. It took years before people were convinced that a weekly bath was not harmful, that tomatoes were not poisonous. And you probably know some people who still sleep with the windows closed to keep the "unhealthy" night air out. But for real dyed-in-the-wool unbelief, you can't beat the skepticism about alleviating baldness. Assemblyman Deukmejian Presents 'Slattery's People' Resolution

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — "Slattery's People," the weekly television program which dramatizes a mythical state legislature, has been commended in a resolution by Long Beach Republican Assemblyman George Deukmejian.

The resolution (HR115) noted the show's star, Richard Crenna, portrayed a minority leader who was "a crusader at heart, a fighter by inclination, and an incorruptible lawmaker."

"This series of dramas has enabled the people of our country and foreign countries to gain a greater understanding of our democratic form of government," the resolution continued.

The program was cited for "outstanding achievement and contribution to the people of this state and our country."

The sets for "Slattery's People" were modeled after the California legislature.

People Are Funny... About Baldness IF WE COULD ONLY MAKE THEM BELIEVE US

It would take the entire police force to keep the people of this area from battering down our doors! Yes, people are funny. They'll willingly believe that planes can travel faster than sound, that the atom can be split, that moon trips are around the corner... even though they have never seen these wonders with their own eyes. But mention something having to do with health and appearance and at once you are up against a wall of superstition and misconception.

It took years before people were convinced that a weekly bath was not harmful, that tomatoes were not poisonous. And you probably know some people who still sleep with the windows closed to keep the "unhealthy" night air out.

But for real dyed-in-the-wool unbelief, you can't beat the skepticism about alleviating baldness. This area is filled with people who are genuinely worried about losing their hair... who have the desperate feeling that no price would be too great to ward off that premature sign of age. Does BLADDER IRRITATION

MAKE YOU NERVOUS? After all, common Bladder Irritation affects twice as many women as men and may make you tense and nervous from too frequent, burning or stinging urination both day and night. Secondly, you may lose sleep and suffer from headaches, backache and feel old, tired, depressed. In such irritation, CYSTEX usually brings fast, relaxing comfort by soothing irritating germs in stores, acid urine and by analgesic pain relief. One CYSTEX at drugstore. Feel better fast.

DOES ASTHMA

Make You Short of Breath? At the first sign of wheezing, coughing, breathing or coughing from asthma, Bronchial Asthma or Bronchitis, start taking MENDACO. It works fast to combat allergy, relax bronchial tubes, thin and help remove thick, choking phlegm. This usually eases breathing fast, always soothing; thus promotes sounder sleep. Get MENDACO at drugstore. Let it help you.

Walter Scott's Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, PARADE, 733 Third Ave., New York 17, N.Y. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Henry R. Luce, powerful publisher of Time-Life, had a first wife, the mother of his two sons. He was divorced from her in order to marry Clare Boothe Luce in 1935. Can you identify his first wife and tell when he married her?—L.T., Greenwich, Conn.

A. The first Mrs. Luce was Lila Hotz, whom he married in 1923.

Q. A group of Hollywood film stars is quietly buying up various shopping centers throughout the country. Recently they bought the Tower Plaza shopping center in Phoenix. Who are they?—Frank Shea, Mesa, Ariz.

A. One group consists of Rock Hudson, Tuesday Weld, Ava Gardner, Barbara Stanwyck, Cesar Romero and Dennis Morgan. The $10 million Tower Plaza shopping center was purchased through their financial advisor, who invests for them. His name: Morgan Marce.

Q. The full name, please, of the late Ring Lardner.—Jim Toland, Dallas, Tex.

A. Ringgold Wilmer Lardner.

Q. Is it possible to obtain the truth about Queen Victoria of Great Britain? I am preparing a term paper on the subject. Was she a sweet, kind old woman or a cixen?—A. Kumataka, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. She was narrow, mean, ignorant, industrious, willful, unthinking, blindly conservative; she provided no governmental leadership, insistently sustained the backward, snobbish, undemocratic practices of the British ruling class. In retrospect hers was a preposterous monarchy. For an authoritative, lengthy, revealing, detailed biography, read the recently published Queen Victoria by Elizabeth Longford (Harper & Row). Critics describe it as "the best work on Queen Victoria yet to appear."

Q. Who is, or was, Jean Moulin?—Robert Tapia, Tampa, Fla.

A. Leader of the French Resistance, tortured to death by the Germans in 1943. His ashes were recently reburied in the Pantheon, Paris.

Q. How much is Lyndon Johnson worth? Who is richer, he or Ike Eisenhower?—Manny Seligman, Jersey City, N.J.

A. Johnson is worth approximately $10 million. When Eisenhower entered the White House, he was worth approximately $750,000. Most of this came from the sale of his book, Crusade in Europe. A group of wealthy oil men and industrialists invested his money while he served as President, and he is probably worth at least five times that amount today.

Q. Nehru, late leader of India—where was he educated?—T. Mintz, Baltimore, Md.

A. In England—at Harrow, later at Trinity College, Cambridge.

Q. Linda Christian, the playgirl—is she married? If so, who is her husband?—Flora Miller, Miami Fla.

A. She recently remarried an ex-husband, Edmund Purdom.

Q. How old is Peggy Guggenheim, and how long has it taken her to amass her fabulous art collection? Also, is it one of the world's most famous, or does it consist of modern junk?—Herbert Seitz, New York, N.Y.

A. Peggy Guggenheim is 66. She opened a modern art gallery in London in 1938. Sales were few. To encourage the artists whose works she exhibited, she bought at least one painting from each. In 1939 she was in Paris when the Germans were two days out of the city. Wealthy friends who were fleeing offered her masterpieces of art at ridiculous prices. She bought $50,000 worth. Today these paintings are worth at least $1 million. None of it is "junk."

Q. I understand that Marlon Brando has been shedding so much hair that Moriturus is his last film without a hairpiece. Is this so?—Harriet Ross, Detroit, Mich.

A. Probably.

Q. What's happened to actress Jeanne Crain?—A. Best, Pasadena, Calif.

A. She has 6 children, ranging in age from 4 to 17, is expecting a seventh in May, when she will reach her 40th birthday.

Q. I've read about the Beatles and how much they earned in America. Is it true that they were not allowed to take any of that money out? What's the scam, daddy-o?—Hazel Hatch, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. Last September, during their 5-week tour of the U.S. and Canada, the Beatles earned close to $1,350,000. As of this writing, the Internal Revenue Service has impounded the money earned in the U.S. The earnings are so vast that the Service has become uneasy over the existing tax treaty under which British and American artists are permitted to keep all their earnings in both countries and pay tax only to their own governments. Apparently both the Inland Revenue in England and the Internal Revenue in Washington are demanding large income taxes from the group. Until the matter is settled, the Beatles say they will not again tour the U.S.

Q. Does Kim Norak have any talent?—M. Meehan, Hartford, Conn.

A. She is extremely kind to her mother.

Q. When Mrs. Peggy Goldwater's mother, Anna Davis Johnson, died in Muncie, Ind., last year, she left an estate of almost $3 million. Who got it? Barry Goldwater?—J.K.G., Indianapolis, Ind.

A. Most of the estate was left in trust to the four Goldwater grandchildren and the three children of Ray P. Johnson, Jr.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

TAYLOR & TAXES. Having been born in England of American parents, film star Elizabeth Taylor has dual citizenship. Until recently she has exercised her American citizenship, paid American taxes. British income-tax rates are much higher than American, but those British citizens who live outside of England for 183 days or more each year pay no British tax. This is one reason why in 1957 Richard Burton, now Miss Taylor's fifth husband, established residence in Switzerland and why he declines to work for long periods of time either in the U.S., which has a reciprocal tax treaty with England, or in his mother country. A whole group of British celebrities has moved out of England and established residences somewhere else: Audrey Hepburn, Deborah Kerr, Noel Coward, Charles Chaplin, A. J. Cronin, David Niven, many others. Hollywood producers point out that many film stars refuse to work in a production unless they can determine its location. Cleopatra, which almost bankrupted 20th Century-Fox, was originally scheduled for filming on the studio's back lot in Hollywood. "It was Elizabeth Taylor," claims one studio spokesman, "who insisted that we shoot the production overseas." Says another Hollywood executive: "Take the latest Taylor-Burton film, The Sandpipers. The film is set in Carmel, Calif., and that's where many of the backgrounds were filmed, but the Burtons wanted to work in Paris for tax reasons, and that's where we filmed." John Huston, the motion picture director, who last year renounced his U.S. citizenship to become a citizen of Ireland, is another film celebrity whose tax considerations sent him abroad. There was a time when U.S. citizens who lived abroad paid no taxes, but under recent amendments to the Internal Revenue code, citizens who earn large amounts overseas must now pay considerable tax. Once Elizabeth Taylor gives up her American citizenship, she pays U.S. taxes only on what she earns in the U.S. In all probability she and Burton will therefore work outside the U.S. as much as possible. Where patriotism and money clash, money in the case of movie stars frequently triumphs.

BATTLE OF THE ATLANTIC. Two new Italian luxury liners, the Michelangelo and the Raffaello, both 43,000 tons, will make their maiden runs across the Atlantic this spring. Three years later the British will come up with their new Cunarder, tentatively called the Q4. The two Italian liners hope to capture the bulk of the luxury trade. Comfort is their theme. Each of their cabins boasts its own air-conditioner, its own bathroom facilities. The liners also offer 6 swimming pools, a play deck, 30 lounges and dining rooms. The Italian ships will carry 1,775 passengers at a maximum speed of 29 knots, will make the trip from Genoa to New York in 7 days. The Italian superliners hope to attract American tourists of Italian extraction and those who prefer water to air transportation. By 1970, however, U.S. airlines in all probability will feature 1,000-seater jet planes. President Johnson has already approved the C-5A transport, a military plane large enough to carry 600 men plus their equipment. Boeing, Douglas and Lockheed are bidding for the contract and will undoubtedly develop a civilian version of the jumbo-jet. It will be twin-decked, with 8 engines, fly at 600 mph, boast a range of 4,000 miles, weigh 400 tons. What such planes will do to transatlantic ships is anyone's guess.

TAYLOR & TAXES. Having been born in England of American parents, film star Elizabeth Taylor has dual citizenship. Until recently she has exercised her American citizenship, paid American taxes. British income-tax rates are much higher than American, but those British citizens who live outside of England for 183 days or more each year pay no British tax. This is one reason why in 1957 Richard Burton, now Miss Taylor's fifth husband, established residence in Switzerland and why he declines to work for long periods of time either in the U.S., which has a reciprocal tax treaty with England, or in his mother country. A whole group of British celebrities has moved out of England and established residences somewhere else: Audrey Hepburn, Deborah Kerr, Noel Coward, Charles Chaplin, A. J. Cronin, David Niven, many others. Hollywood producers point out that many film stars refuse to work in a production unless they can determine its location. HOW AN ARCHAIC, BRUTAL PRACTICE WASTES THE LIVES OF MILLIONS OF MEN AND WOMEN

SHOULD WE JAIL ALCOHOLICS?

by SID ROSS

"Life sentences on the installment plan": group portrait shows 10 Monroe County, N.Y., men who have served total of 90 years for drunkenness charges. Senior man has been behind bars a total of 14 years in short stays.

The 10 men at left represent the biggest single law-enforcement problem in the U.S. Among them, they have served more than 90 years behind bars, have been arrested a total of 1,023 times and have cost the taxpayer $300,000.

You might think that these men had committed some truly nefarious crime or that they are hardened, professional criminals. But the fact is that their offense is only a slight one—though they have committed it again and again. These 10 men are alcoholics—skid-row types who are not able to handle liquor and whose devotion to the bottle is complete. And modern America, for all its insights into alcoholism, its worship of psychiatry and its sympathy for the underprivileged, can think of no solution other than to put them in jail.

In all parts of the U.S., in cities large and small, unfortunates like these are handled in the same fruitless, callous way. Through indifference and ignorance they are treated as criminals rather than as the helpless and inadequate individuals they are. On any given night, they account for one-half to two-thirds of U.S. jail inmates—by one estimate, 1 million a year!

They clutter up the courts, monopolize policemen's time and cost the taxpayers millions. And worst of all, they get little treatment or care, so that many come back again the very next night.

"It's a revolving door that never stops whirling," Donald H. Goff, general secretary of the Correctional Association of New York, told a state legislative committee investigating the problem recently. "These men are serving life sentences on the installment plan." Moreover, the situation seems to be getting worse. From 75 to 80 per cent of those arrested are "repeaters," many with 250 or more arrests for drunkenness in a lifetime. In Monroe County, N.Y., where the men at left were photographed, drunks make up 77 per cent of all arrests.

But at least Monroe County is trying to do something about the problem. A concerted effort by public agencies, private industry and civic groups will soon result in an excellent program focused around a new rehabilitation center. But the real tragedy is that far too few municipalities are following Monroe County's lead. For, knowing what we do about alcoholism, psychology and rehabilitation, the U.S. could alleviate the alcoholics-in-jail problem—if not eliminate it.

An Exercise in Futility

Instead, PARADE found, drunks are being subjected to brutal, inhuman—and futile—treatment. Rockford, Ill., locks them in a gloomy basement called "The Pit"; near-by Joliet puts them in a ghastly "drunk tank"; Chicago keeps them in 11-by-12 cells whose odor is intolerable. In San Francisco, police conduct regular tours to "sweep the streets." In St. Louis, on the other hand, they ignore all but "lying-down" drunks. "We're humane," says one police official. "We don't bother a guy if he can stand or stagger." But at least St. Louis takes all arrested drunks to a hospital for examination before jailing them.

Even more appalling is the waste of human life which these cases represent. Most people think of skid-row drunks as worthless bums, yet many are men—and some are women—of skill and high intelligence. However, PARADE found most cities offering little more than the vestiges of treatment, help or rehabilitation. Consequently some drunks spend almost their entire lives behind bars. Among the examples:

In San Francisco, where 24,000 persons were arrested on drunk charges in 1963, PARADE talked to a 43-year-old man who had spent 285 days behind bars that year. He had been arrested 148 times since 1957.

In Nashville, Tenn., police told the story of Wilma and Theodore Cooper, who had been married for 30 years, been arrested 450 times and had spent a

In Nashville, Tenn., police told the story of Wilma and Theodore Cooper, who had been married for 30 years, been arrested 450 times and had spent a grand total of 25 years of their married life in jail.

In several places, PARADE found that drunks, knowing their own inability to change and accepting the futility of the system, used the local jail as their home address and even received mail and pension checks there. In the Washington, D.C., workhouse, several regular customers even left their false teeth in the warden's custody, knowing they would be back and would need them to eat with.

In most cities, the system of handling drunks is a legalistic farce. Often they are held only overnight and then released the next day on "probation," "suspended sentence" or their "own recognizance." Sometimes they are assessed a token fine—$5 or $10. Hypocritically, those who can afford it are allowed to post bond (usually $10) when arrested—and then forfeit it. And some of the drunks are sentenced to short terms—30, 60 or 90 days—or fined, and if unable to pay—as is customarily the case—they are allowed to work off their sentence at so much per day.

Failure to Cope with People

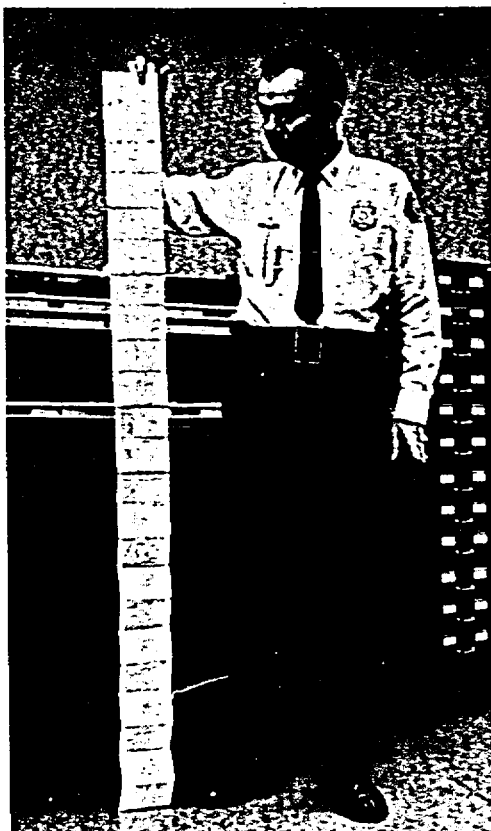

Of course, it would be exceedingly difficult to map and make effective any rehabilitation for these persons. Alcoholism is a baffling problem in any person, and the bafflement is compounded in skid-row types. "These people's inadequacies," Judge William H. Burnett of Denver wrote recently, "would at most be only partially solved by sobriety." A study of police court alcoholics in Monroe County a few years ago found their major failure was one of interpersonal relations—an inability to cope with people.

But whatever the nature of the alcoholic's problem, authorities—including sheriffs' and jailers' organizations—agree that treatment, not jail, is the solution.

PARADE spent a night in the jail in Providence, R.I.—which in handling drunks is no better and no worse than most major cities—watching this exercise in futility play itself out. (Providence in 1963 chalked up 7,415 nontraffic arrests, of which nearly 3,000 were for drunkenness. On an average night more than 20 persons are picked up on drunk charges.)

On the night of PARADE's visit, the drunks began arriving early. The first was a 47-year-old who had celebrated too much. This was only his second arrest for drunkenness. He was clapped into a bare-floored "drunk tank" cell to sleep it off on an iron bench.

Moments later, the regulars began to arrive. A young bricklayer, in his 20's, was first. "He's on his way already," a jailer said. He was followed by an old regular, a violent, abusive type who immediately began to argue with the younger man. Next came a laborer police had arrested several times before. They had to twist his arms and sit on him before they were able to get him into a cell. The next group, old hands, were benign and gentle. They went meekly into their cells and lay down. Meanwhile, in another wing, police jailed two women. Finally, at 4 A.M., the flow stopped.

In all that time, however, the prisoners received only meager custodial care. Nor did they get any treatment after hearings the next morning. An Alcoholics Anonymous representative was on hand to aid those who asked for help, but there was no doctor, psychiatrist or welfare worker. "The city of Providence," one jailer said, "wouldn't spend a damn nickel on these people."

Providence is not alone in this respect. To taste the full flavor of futility as dispensed to drunks, one needs to spend a morning in a magistrate's court. In San Francisco's "Drunk Court," PARADE watched Judge Bernard Glickfeld mete out justice to 60 male drunks and 6 women in 45 minutes flat. After an attendant had sprayed the courtroom with insecticide, the judge called the women prisoners, questioned each briefly, delivered a few homilies and then put them all on probation. Then he called the men 25 at a time. Each humbly pleaded guilty, some with merely a nod. The judge tried to deal with each individually. "You were here yesterday," he told one seedy derelict. To another he said, "We'll try to get you medical attention." To a third, "You need help. Ten days in jail will fix you up." While the attendant sprayed again, the judge gave some 30 to 60 days and urged them to straighten up. Many received suspended sentences, which put them right back on skid row again.

Humane Treatment Isn't the Solution

Ironically, some experts say, this kind of humane treatment is part of the problem. Short stays in jail do no good and may do harm. "How can you hope to accomplish anything in 5, 10 or 30 days?" asks Donald Goff of the Correctional Association.

Why are drunks sentenced to this perennial merry-go-round? Some officials say their hands are tied—"All I can do is what the law says," one contends. Others rationalize that drunks must be arrested for their own protection and that of society—or argue that the men want to be picked up. "To many of them, this is the only home they know," said a jailer in Florida.

Yet the real reasons for jailing are less benevolent. Basically, they boil down to these:

1 The punishment theory. In the past, Americans considered—and many still consider—drinking a sin. Given a jail term, it was reasoned, the sinner would repent and reform. Now science considers alcoholism an illness. But the old notion of punishing the sinner remains locked in law and practice.

2 Indifference. Mental patients have families; even criminals generally have wives and children. Police court drunks usually have no one. "These men have been repudiated by everyone—even themselves," says Warden Thomas Riley of the Monroe County Penitentiary.

3 False economy. Rehabilitative treatment costs money, and taxpayers balk at setting up such programs. Yet one drunk, in a lifetime of drinking, may cost society $50,000 to $100,000. He might possibly be rehabilitated for a fraction of that.

4 Lack of facilities. Psychiatric hospitals have no room; medical hospitals have no facilities; social agencies avoid drunks; penitentiaries are for major offenders; private sanitariums cost too much. The few pioneering long-term treatment centers can accommodate only a handful. By elimination, that leaves jail.

5 The feeling of hopelessness. Even sympathetic observers agree that hard-core alcoholics resist

In court, San Francisco women hear sentences meted out by magistrate. About 1 in 10 skid-rowers is a woman.

Teach your baby how to read— BEGINNING AT TWO YEARS OF AGE!

If you start now, you can give your pre-school child a priceless advantage in school and throughout life.

Competition for college entrance in American schools is rough today, and will get rougher tomorrow. Experience has shown that children who learn to read early start ahead in school and stay ahead — and have the best chance to enter the colleges of their choice.

If your child is between two years old and kindergarten age, the time to start teaching him to read is right now. In How to Teach Your Baby to Read, Glenn Doman — Director, The Institutes for the Achievement of Human Potential, Philadelphia — shows how easy it is, and how much fun it can be for both of you!

Three important reasons why you should teach your baby to read

1. HE WANTS TO LEARN. He is at an age of intense intellectual curiosity — an age at which children often learn to recognize words on their own, even without deliberate help.
2. THIS IS THE BEST TIME OF ALL FOR HIM TO LEARN — now, when his brain is developing more rapidly than it ever will again, and learning is almost as effortless as breathing. (We usually waste these irrevocable years!)
3. IT'S GOOD FOR THE CHILD! Glenn Doman shows conclusively that you can forget about personality problems, adjustment problems, or any other problems you may have heard are caused by teaching a child "too soon". (It's the non-readers who have the problems.)

Seven steps to reading

How to Teach Your Baby to Read presents seven easy steps, ranging from word differentiation to that thrill of thrills, reading a real book. (There is a list of recommended books for beginning readers.) Fascinating case histories demonstrate that it can be done... that it is being done... and that it is an easy, enjoyable process, immensely rewarding to both parent and child.

This book has already started what may become a major educational revolution. Now is the time to join this "gentle revolution" — and give your pre-school child one of the most vital skills he can ever acquire.

reform. Many go further and say they are hopeless. After years of slavish drinking, it is unlikely that skid-rowers will turn their backs on the bottle and start a new life. So why not write them off, give them the care they require to protect themselves and others and spend as little of society's money as possible on them?

Is the situation really that hopeless? Can nothing be done to salvage these lives, to remedy the procedure that brings these men back to jail again and again?

While no one has all the answers, the fact is that something can be—and is being—done in such cities as Fort Worth, Washington, Miami, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Los Angeles, for example, boasts the much-admired Saugus Rehabilitation Center. It has excellent medical, psychological, psychiatric and sociological facilities, can handle 1,200 inmates. Officials admit, however, that Saugus lacks good follow-up.

San Francisco, too, has an enlightened program, which emphasizes, in equal measure, counseling, psychiatry, fresh air and hard work and is largely the work of Sheriff Matthew Carberry.

Perhaps one of the most remarkable programs is that of the Chicago Alcoholic Treatment Center, a small 72-bed facility run by a dedicated staff as part of a municipal hospital. The center brings to bear on each case a team of physician, psychiatrist, sociologist, and it tailors treatment to the individual. Patients get lengthy counseling and therapy, are allowed to govern their own affairs and are given plentiful vocational education, recreation and group sessions. One special feature is a weekly family meeting to help the patient's family (when he has one) understand his problem. The center also has a job placement program and good, if limited, follow-up. Last year a study of 523 patients showed 514 "significantly improved." The center's drawback, however, is its limited space.

And some experts think that no institution, no matter how progressive, is the real answer. What is really needed, these men contend, is to take the problem out of the hands of law-enforcement agencies and turn it over to public health. An adequate program would place the emphasis on research—to find out what makes these men what they are—and establish a plan for rehabilitation, with particular stress on vocational training and follow-up. Finally, the program would call for new dormitory-type, nonjail facilities for those drinkers too far gone to be salvaged.

What You Can Do

Although such a program would cost considerable money, experts think it would pay off in the end. In any case, they feel that some rehabilitation effort should be initiated. Merely to end the practice of jailing drunks would be a beginning.

The experts believe you and your friends should begin to investigate the matter in your own communities, talk it up at civic groups, bring pressure to bear on political leaders for more humane treatment of alcoholics, urge a complete and up-to-date program for rehabilitation.

"It is not merely enough to say, 'There but for the grace of God, go I,'" one official told PARADE. And San Francisco sheriff Matt Carberry adds: "I don't go along with the philosophy that nothing can be done for the chronic alcoholic. You just can't turn your back on human beings."

Hope for future is represented by farm-like Saugus Rehabilitation Center, near

Los Angeles. Experts say good institutions and programs help solve problem.

Now my friends listen when I talk

...all because I've become a regular reader of THE NATIONAL OBSERVER, the new national weekly newspaper that costs me less than 11¢ a copy

"As far back as I can remember, I've felt a little inadequate in group conversation. My friends always seemed so much better informed about world events, the latest scientific discoveries, educational trends, fashions, books, and so on. My contributions were few and unimpressive.

"Then last June I subscribed to The National Observer, a new kind of national news weekly in newspaper form. I hoped it would add scope and depth to my knowledge.

"The results have far exceeded my original expectations.

"For the first time, my friends are not only listening attentively to what I say, but are actually seeking my contributions. One evening last week, for instance, I was able to tell our group...

- ... why dancing with your own daughter could get you arrested in Akron, Ohio
- ... why treading water is no longer the best way to keep from drowning
- ... why 'hillbilly ghettos' are springing up in cities like Cleveland, Chicago, and Detroit
- ... why an American auto company whose $995 car goes 60 miles on a gallon of gas isn't anxious to tell the world about it
- ... why record numbers of Protestants recently turned out for Catholic masses in St. Louis
- ... why Yugoslav smugglers are carrying on a brisk trade in children's marbles
- ... why commuters in suburban Pittsburgh are taking the family garbage with them when they drive off to work

"There's a whole storehouse of important, useful, and entertaining information like this in every week's National Observer. That's why I read it from cover to cover. It makes me feel so much more alive and aware of the world we live in."

So many people are talking this way about The National Observer these days. Why not join them?

The National Observer is published by Dow Jones, the same world-wide news organization that publishes The Wall Street Journal. Recently, The Observer won the 1964 Supple Memorial Award "for excellence in reporting."

Because The Observer is printed simultaneously on high-speed newspaper presses in several of The Journal's own modern printing plants across the country — and because newspapers can be "made up" and printed faster than magazines — last minute stories can be filed only hours before the paper comes off the press.

You get more news — and you get more out of it. In only 18 to 32 full-size newspaper pages (printed on our own special crisp, white newsprint) you often get more reading material than in other news weeklies. The newspaper format permits not just one major "cover story," but five or six. Inside pages are important news pages too — there's no "let-down." Well-written headlines let you learn a lot quickly, and invite easy browsing for the stories that interest you most. More than 50 excellent pictures open windows not only on the people, places and events in the headlines but also such colorful sidelights as Casey Stengel, baton in hand, leading Guy Lombardo's orchestra at Shea Stadium... or the amusing spectacle of an elephant giving his autograph.

MANY ENJOYABLE SPECIAL FEATURES

Each week, too, The National Observer brings you more than a dozen special features that add to your enjoyment or broaden your knowledge in important areas. "The Week in Washington," for example, can be read in seven minutes or less, yet brings you up to date on significant happenings in Congress, the White House, Government agencies, the courts and politics. Similarly, "How's Business?" fills you in quickly on important trends in industry, the performance of the stock market, economic indicators, and company and executive highlights.

For Bridge enthusiasts, there's "Better Bridge"; for crossword fans, a really challenging puzzle; for recipe collectors, a gem or two almost every week in "Food for Thought." And for both you and your youngsters, there's a weekly news quiz, plus "Current Events Classroom" — a column which brings you news background on such topics as how parties replace disabled national candidates... the military capabilities of North Vietnam... history and problems of the Securities and Exchange Commission... the electoral system and its effect on presidential campaign strategy. "A Chat With the Doctor" brings you helpful medical hints on subjects ranging from water safety to blisters. On the lighter side, "Reflections" explores random aspects of life: a tender acquaintance with a little girl and her rag doll... the frustration of opening new improved, easy-open packages... a wild taxi ride in Venezuela. And the whole family will enjoy the dry humor of "Grass Roots Philosophy," culled from the home-town press. ("Remember when you looked forward to earning the salary you can't live on today?")

SHEEPSKIN COATS IN COLOR A FAMILY'S SUCCESS STORY

by LLOYD SHEARER

MIAMI, FLA.

Ten years ago Grace MacDonald, a blonde, peach-cheeked 17-year-old Scottish schoolgirl, decided that she would look "simply scrumptious" in a sheepskin coat of royal blue.

Since her dad was in the skin and fur business, and business was at an all-time low, Grace got some sheepskins, dyed them with three bottles of blue ink, ran up a coat for herself.

Her American-born mother liked the coat so much she made one, too. As mother and daughter, two glamorous blondes, strolled around Glasgow, Edinburgh, London, they were stopped from time to time by other curious women asking where they might buy similar coats.

Thus began a family enterprise (Antartex), whose sales last year topped $1,500,000, employed 300 people in a factory on the shores of Loch Lomond, plus many others in the retail stores in Middleburg, Va., Cambridge, Mass., New York and Miami.

The demand for colored sheepskin coats in this country is now so great that Donald MacDonald—father of the tribe—plans to open new stores in Chicago, Philadelphia and Minneapolis within the next few months, then move on to invade Seattle, Portland, Oakland, Los Angeles, other West Coast cities.

"It is positively amazing," MacDonald declares, "the way these coats are catching on in America. They are light and warm, well-styled and colorful; they're easy to order by mail, and young people—particularly the skiing and winter sports crowd—have taken to them with great enthusiasm.

"Matter of fact," he continues, "Mrs. MacDonald and I now have to spend at least six months a year here, which isn't at all bad, since we've made our North American headquarters in Miami. I know that may sound a bit strange, making Miami a headquarters for sheepskin coats, but harbor fees and airport handling charges here are lower than those of other large cities on the East Coast.

"In addition to our mail-order business we hope eventually to have a chain of 40 retail shops throughout America."

Ten years ago, when he sold his first five coats by placing a small advertisement in a British newspaper, Donald MacDonalds Linn (r.) and Willie model coats that made family fortune.

Father of the clan, Donald MacDonald, and wife Margaret supervise the American branch of Antartex line.

MacDonald wasn't quite so sure that the future of Antartex was all gold, glamour and glory.

He had his two daughters, Grace and Linn, promote his product all over Britain. Shrewd enough to realize that his largest potential lay in America, he had his wife Margaret study the U.S. market. The MacDonald children had spent several postwar years in the States, and agreed with their mother that Americans would go for made-to-order sheepskin coats, provided the garments were fashionably styled. Thus MacDonald called in Ronald Paterson, Scotland's top fashion designer, set him to work.

He then opened his first American shop in Middleburg, outside of Washington, D.C., in the heart of the fox-hunting country. The Antartex line had great snob as well as functional appeal and caught on quickly. At prices ranging from $35 to $140, the coats sold well.

In fact, business expanded with such dramatic speed that MacDonald opened three other stores, returned to Scotland to expand his factory, sent his son Willie (now in charge of the Scottish operation) to Harvard to learn American business methods.

All the members of the MacDonald family still work in the business. Daughter Linn is in charge of the dry cleaning department. Son Willie, in addition to keeping his eye on the home factory, travels to South America, where he buys sheepskins. Young son Donald, Jr., poses as an advertising model. Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald run the American operation. And daughter Grace, who started the whole business with a bottle of ink, has recently branched out into a subsidiary line. She has recruited 30 first-class knitters in Scotland who work in their own homes, turn out hats, mittens, slippers and other knitwear.

The MacDonalds last year produced 25,000 sheepskin coats in 10 colors and 14 styles. This year, with a new factory going in Scotland, they hope to double that figure.

"I think," says canny Scotsman MacDonald, "we have only scratched the surface of the American market. This is our golden period, with the real gold yet to come."

"I think," says canny Scotsman MacDonald, "we have only scratched the surface of the American market. This is our golden period, with the real gold yet to come."

367 TEST CASES PROVE "INSTANT EXERCISE" WORKS!

Get the slimmer, healthier body you want with this fabulous new minute-a-day isometric short-cut... the most popular exercises ever developed in the U.S.

Now it's "instant exercise!" People everywhere are discovering that just one of Dr. Salls' almost effortless 6-second exercises helps keep you fit better than 24 push-ups a day. And why diet when you can take inches off your waist in a few days his easy 6-second way? Or, why torture yourself in a gym when a single 6-second exercise is capable of doubling muscular strength in 3 weeks?

Now you can tone up and trim down in record time... without moving a muscle, without "working out" more than 1 minute a day. Doctors, nurses, athletes, insurance firms, citizens coast to coast are turning to the amazingly simple isometric exercises developed by Alabama Doctor of Education, fitness expert and coach, Donald J. Salls. The Navy and Marines are adopting this type of exercise, too. Even the astronauts will use them!

Why? Simply because isometric exercises, better known to so many as Dr. Salls' "Static Exercises", really do work. In fact, they're so effective fewer than 1% of the thousands who have purchased a set under his personal guarantee have asked for their money back. Less than 1%!

Spectacular results have prompted skeptics to ask for special effectiveness studies under professional supervision. And in test after test it's the same dramatic story:

In one group of 253 girls, over 96% improved in physical fitness and over 50% had marked figure improvements... all in just 3 weeks, using Dr. Salls' motionless exercises for 1 minute per day.

Over 92% of another group had waistline improvements, decreases of up to 3½ inches... thighs, 84%... hips, over 90%. Again in 3 weeks or less!

80% of still another group, measured periodically under the watchful eye of a physician, showed marked measurement improvements in less than 30 days.

A top university had one test group use isometrics for 1 minute daily while another worked on gym equipment for 45 minutes every day. When compared for fitness, the isometric exercisers scored highest in every test!

Here at last are exercises that make sense for car-driving, machine-minded Americans... "weekend athletes," people who hate to exercise or don't have time. Here is the answer for the desk-bound man who wants to look trimmer, more muscular... for the modern woman who knows so well how important a slimmer, more attractive figure can be... for the older who seeks to improve fitness, figure and life-span by restoring long-neglected muscles without prolonged or strenuous exercise.

Each of Dr. Salls' wonderfully simple basic exercises takes 6 seconds. All total just 1 minute per day. Instructions are graded for housewives, executives, teenagers and seniors, for superior fitness and prowess in such sports as bowling, swimming, golf. And you can do most of these exercises almost anywhere... at work, waiting for a bus, while shaving. No gadgets are required. There's no special exertion, not even heavy breathing!

The revolutionary principle Dr. Salls applies has the impressive support of highly respected educational institutions, leading physiologists, Olympic stars, fashion models, police groups, top pro and college athletes, the A.A.U., the President's Council on Physical Education. And Time Magazine, Life, Reader's Digest, TV, newspapers, scientific journals have called attention to the exciting concept.

Followers of Dr. Salls' muscle magic report surprising results. For example, the stronger, tighter muscles resulting from his minute-a-day plan can lead quickly to a slimmer figure... even without weight reduction!

Mrs. P. McMorro of White Plains writes, "I reduced my waist 2 inches, my hips 2 inches — all in 2 weeks, a minute a day, with your exercises."

Jacksonville businessman, J. B. Hammett, states that Dr. Salls' "statics" have allowed him to take 3½ inches off his waistline, trim down to 30½ in a few weeks.

Mrs. E. V. Smith of Madison writes that with Dr. Salls' exercises she's trimmed down her waist from 33½ to 28½, her hips from 43½ to 39½.

Ft. Payne housewife, Mrs. A. Carter, reduced her thighs 1 inch, calves ¾ inch, waist 2 inches in just 2 weeks.

So many users of Dr. Salls' exercises also exclaim: "How much better... more alive, more alert, more youthful... I feel!" But specifically, he offers:

stronger, firmer muscles • slimmer waist, thighs, calves, upper arms and neck • better muscular coordination • stronger back • improved posture.

Results are controlled primarily by the individual's own desires. If a man wants bulging weight-lifter's arms, he simply concentrates on certain of Dr. Salls' exercises. If a housewife seeks a more shapely midriff, a few weeks with several of his 6-second workouts is indicated.

Yes, now you can have a stronger, slimmer, healthier body without the strain or boredom of old-fashioned exercises! Dr. Salls will send a full set of his instructions, complete with illustrations, to interested readers who use the coupon on this page. Remember! These exercises are different: just 6 seconds each!

Significant Winegard Antenna Development for Better Color TV

Improves black and white, too

Although the Winegard Colortron antenna was designed to meet the critical standards for color TV, it is also the most sensitive antenna you can own for your black and white set. Color pictures become brighter, clearer, more lifelike. Black & white reception becomes sharper with greater clarity and contrast, even in difficult reception areas.

Can a TV antenna make this much difference? Yes!

But aren't all TV antennas pretty much alike? No!

There are two reasons Winegard Colortrons outperform ordinary antennas. (1) A patented Electro-Lens design intercepts more TV signals but rejects interfering signals. (2) The TV signal is then amplified by an electronic power pack.

The effect on your reception is this: often you can pull in stations you couldn't reach before. Pictures, on all channels, become brighter, sharper. There's signal power to spare... if you like, you can operate up to 6 sets from one Colortron antenna.

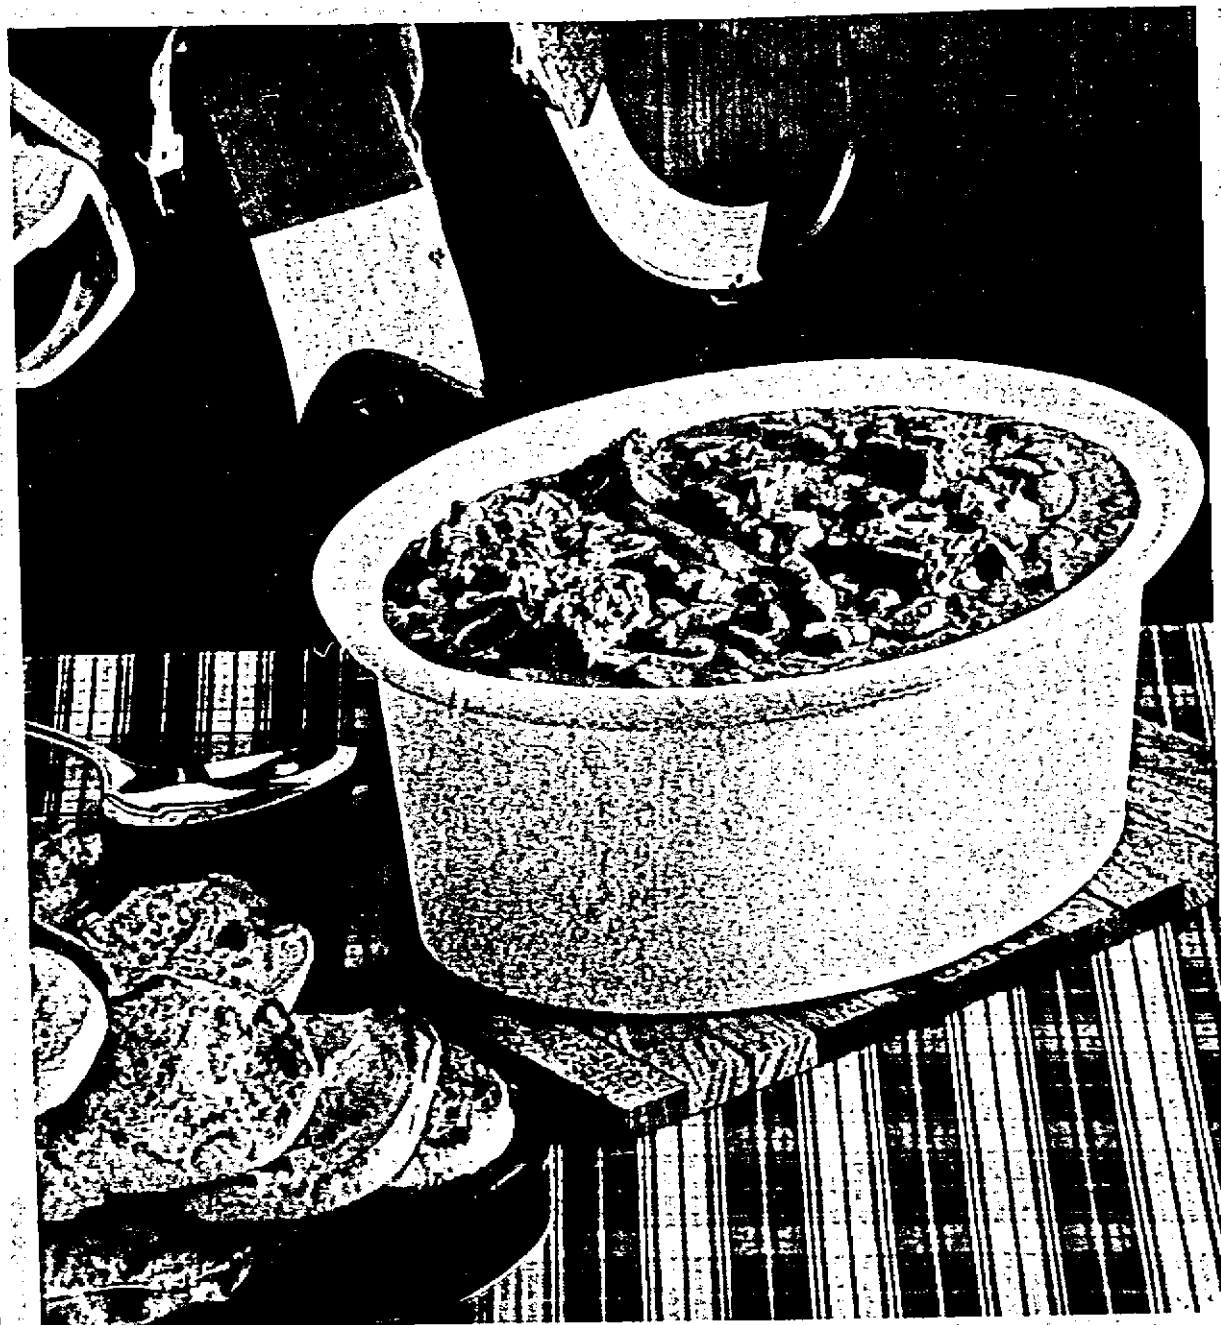

Colortrons are rugged, too. Wind tested to 100 mph. Permanent GOLD ANODIZED finish won't weather-wear—stays like new for years.

For the best reception, a Winegard Colortron is a wise investment. 4 models from $24.95, electronic power pack extra... satisfaction guaranteed. *Ask your TV service dealer or write for full story.

*Guarantee in force for 90 days after installation.

Longden mounted on TV Lark: He twice won Santa Anita Derby, riding Salamagundi and On Trust.

JOHNNY LONGDEN AT 58:

WHY HE WON'T QUIT

by RUBE SAMUELSEN

Johnny Longden, the world's oldest and most successful jockey, is 58 today, St. Valentine's Day. He has broken more bones, ridden more winners, earned more money and made more friends than any other jockey in the business. But he has no thoughts of retiring.

Right now Papa John, as he's known to rival jockeys, is in the homestretch, drawing near his 6,000th win, which he expects to snare some time this coming summer. Race track gossip is that he will retire after that. Longden insists, however, that he'll never quit "as long as I feel good."

He didn't always feel that way. Five years back, when he was a mere stripling of 53, rival jockeys heaved sighs of relief when Longden threatened to leave the tracks to the younger men because he was having trouble keeping his weight down.

But he changed his mind and went on to take race after race. As of last November, Longden had copped 5,901 victory trophies.

Few jockeys riding today were old enough to sit in a saddle when Longden, who is now a multimillionaire, rode his first race 39 years ago. He has, since then, managed to ride almost 1,000 more winners than any other jockey in history.

Longden climbs out of bed at 6 A.M. to work horses at the track. And he almost never deviates from that routine. He strictly regiments his life. Because he has to watch his weight, he's on a rigid diet. His aches and pains have become more frequent. He's had both legs broken in the last three years.

Why does this enigmatic little man, who is worth $32 million according to race track gossip, keep going in spite of all the problems?

"I've seen too many retired people who have nothing to do with their lives," says Longden.

FRIENDS, ANIMALS & SUCCESS

But that explanation is only part of the story. More deeply involved are things Longden rarely talks about: an abiding concern for racing friends, a love for animals and an appreciation of his success.

Longden was born in England, the son of a coal miner. He grew up in Canada where he, too, worked in the mines as a youth. He's come Longden gets wife's congratulations after winning a big one. He has also won the Kentucky Derby.

JOHNNY LONGDEN AT 58:

WHY HE WON'T QUIT

by RUBE SAMUELSEN

Johnny Longden, the world's oldest and most successful jockey, is 58 today, St. Valentine's Day. He has broken more bones, ridden more winners, earned more money and made more friends than any other jockey in the business. But he has no thoughts of retiring.

Right now Papa John, as he's known to rival jockeys, is in the homestretch, drawing near his 6,000th win, which he expects to snare some time this coming summer. Race track gossip is that he will retire after that. Longden insists, however, that he'll never quit "as long as I feel good."

He didn't always feel that way. Five years back, when he was a mere stripling of 53, rival jockeys heaved sighs of relief when Longden threatened to leave the tracks to the younger men because he was having trouble keeping his weight down.

But he changed his mind and went on to take race after race. As of last November, Longden had copped 5,901 victory trophies.

Few jockeys riding today were old enough to sit in a saddle when Longden, who is now a multimillionaire, rode his first race 39 years ago. He has, since then, managed to ride almost 1,000 more winners than any other jockey in history.

Longden climbs out of bed at 6 A.M. to work horses at the track. And he almost never deviates from that routine. He strictly regiments his life. Because he has to watch his weight, he's on a rigid diet. His aches and pains have become more frequent. He's had both legs broken in the last three years.

Why does this enigmatic little man, who is worth $32 million according to race track gossip, keep going in spite of all the problems?

"I've seen too many retired people who have nothing to do with their lives," says Longden.

FRIENDS, ANIMALS & SUCCESS

But that explanation is only part of the story. More deeply involved are things Longden rarely talks about: an abiding concern for racing friends, a love for animals and an appreciation of his success.

Longden was born in England, the son of a coal miner. He grew up in Canada where he, too, worked in the mines as a youth. He's come a long way since then, and he knows it. He is a soft touch for race track people down on their luck. For friends in distress he has paid many hospital bills, loaned large amounts of money with little thought of getting it back. The total outlay amounts to thousands of dollars. But, if asked for details, Longden gets angry.

SILENT SAMARITAN

"I hear about these things all the time," comments his son, Eric, who at 21 is a full-fledged trainer. "But I never hear them from Dad."

Hardly a day passes that the grizzled little man doesn't do one of his good deeds.

"He'll do anything to help a friend," states his wife, Hazel.

Longden comes from a deeply religious, church-going family. "I was taught," he says, "that people should always help each other. My mother taught me early the meaning of loyalty. I suppose that guides most things I do."

Longden's money does not all come from racing. He's part owner of Alberta Ranches, in Canada, on which oil was found. From that venture alone he is reputed to have earned some $20 million.

But money doesn't seem to have changed him much. He used to keep horses and ponies at home for the children (there are three, and two grandchildren) until city laws ended all that. Now he has only five poodles, two cats and a cockatoo.

In pounds and height, Johnny Longden may be little—but look at his heart. No wonder he was born on St. Valentine's Day.

What would happen if you should die without a will?

New free booklet shows how a will can prevent hardship and heartache.

There are few subjects less understood—yet more vital—than the need for having a will. Now New York Life offers an informative booklet, approved by the American Bar Association, to answer your questions on this basic need. It shows how a simple, inexpensive but legal will can save your rightful heirs from costly, drawn-out court proceedings, even poverty.

Without a will, you can't be sure. Having talked with legal experts around the country, the booklet's author, prominent journalist Lester David, points out that only by having a proper will made can you be sure your intentions will be faithfully carried out. He also discusses the role of your executor, and gives helpful hints on changing your will in the future. In particular, he stresses that the stakes are big and the cost is small.

Get your free copy! No matter how young you are or how small your estate, you should have an up-to-date will drawn by your lawyer, and so, you'll find this booklet invaluable! Just send the coupon or ask your New York Life Agent.

PAT CARROLL

EDITOR'S NOTE: Pat Carroll, born in Louisiana and raised in Los Angeles, has been making people laugh since she began playing the accordion at age 13. Her first exposure to show business, however, came when she arrived in Hollywood many years ago as a secretary in the sound effects department of CBS Radio. She then studied drama and from 1947 to 1949 appeared in almost 200 stock company productions. In 1956 she won television's Emmy as best supporting actress, for her appearances on the Sid Caesar Show. Until it went off the air, she was also a regular on the Danny Thomas Show. Married to talent agent Lee Karsian, Pat is the mother of two children, Sean, 8 and Kerry, 7. Currently free-lancing as a comedienne, Pat will appear Monday, February 22nd, on the 90-minute Rodgers and Hammerstein TV special, Cinderella. Herewith some of her favorite funnies:

A dust-covered cowboy rode through town shouting: "Big Mike is coming! Big Mike is coming!"

Doors slammed, shades were lowered, streets were emptied.

And then a man, 6-foot-6, astride a giant horse, rode into town. He hitched his mount to a railing and stomped into the saloon, tearing the doors from their hinges as he entered.

He accosted the frightened bartender, ordered a drink mixed in a gallon bucket. The drink consisted of one quart scotch, one quart rye, one quart gin, one quart bourbon. While the fear-stricken bartender looked on, the man downed the drink in one long gulp.

"W-w-would you like another one, sir?" the terrorized barkeep asked.

"Hell, no," answered the giant. "I gotta get outa here. Haven't you heard? Big Mike is coming."

It was Sam's wedding anniversary, and he purchased a $5,000 diamond ring for his wife. His partner, Harry, became enchanted with the ring and insisted that Sam sell it to him at a profit of $500, which Sam did. But then Sam had misgivings and pleaded with Harry to sell the ring back for $6,000.

The ring passed back and forth between these two partners until the cost had skyrocketed to $10,000, and Harry left with the prized ring. The following day Harry told his partner that he had run into an old friend on the way home. The old friend had admired the ring and purchased it for $12,500.

"Harry," said Sam pleadingly. "Why did you do a stupid thing like that? We were both making such a fine living from that ring."

A golfer was positioning his ball just before teeing off on the first hole. Suddenly from out of the country club a gorgeously gowned bride-to-be came running up to him. The golfer waved her away. "Doris," he said, "I told you specifically, 'ONLY if it rains.'"

Did you hear about the Detroit mechanic who invented a new electric car? You can drive it to Chicago for only 30¢ in fuel... But the extension cord costs $16 million.

A gentleman is a husband who holds the door open for his wife when she carries in the coal.

"I don't think so," his wife answered. "It's fine."
